LOESCH WARNS GANGLAND WARS ON WILKERSON

Urges Senators to O. K. Appointment.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 3.—[Special.]—When Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson announced, one day last July, that he would be bound by no agreement to let "Al" Capone off with a six year sentence, Chicago thrilled to the realization that here at last was a judge who was independent and without fear.

FRANK J. LOESCH. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

That was what Frank J. Loesch, head of the Chicago crime commission and generalissimo of the Chicago army of law enforcement, told the five senators, members of the senate subcommittee who have under consideration Judge Wilkerson's elevation to the Circuit Court of Appeals.

Thrill Goes Over Chicago.

"Senators"—and the vigor of Mr. Loesch's voice belied the eighty years he bears so sturdily—"I can't impart to you by any testimony the thrill that went over Chicago when Judge Wilkerson said he would not be bound by any bargain.

"Throughout the city there swept an exultant feeling that at last there had been found a judge who was independent, who wasn't afraid.

"For it is my belief, through what I have learned, that the judges of the state courts in Chicago—not so much the federal judges—are afraid to try a prominent politician or criminal."

Details Crime History.

The description of Chicago's reaction to Judge Wilkerson's announcement came as a climax to a detailed recital by Mr. Loesch of Chicago's crime history and the "sinister influence" that dominated the city.

The "sinister influence" was Capone.

Mr. Loesch revealed himself as the instigator of federal action. He told how he had gone to President Hoover and asked for help from the government.

Earnestly he faced the row of attentive senators—Borah [radical Rep., Idaho], subcommittee chairman; Walsh [Dem., Mont], Blaine [radical Rep., Wis.], Dill [Dem., Wash.], and Robinson [Rep., Ind.].

Puts It Up to President.

"I don't believe I am violating any confidence," he said, "when I say that I went to the President of the United States and laid before him the three possible methods by which these fellows could be gotten. I told him that the situation in Chicago was hopeless; that these fellows were walking the streets as free as air.

"I told him that if the United States did not get hold of them for violations of federal law, I did not know what would happen."

That was the beginning of the federal drive against Chicago gangsters. Mr. Loesch told how he had followed up his move by publishing his famous list of 28 "public enemies" headed by Al Capone. Since that publication, he said, two of the list have been murdered; two have disappeared without trace; one is under a deportation order; two are under investigation for deportation; one is serving a 25 year sentence in the Maryland penitentiary; one, who was out on suspended life sentence, is back in the Illinois penitentiary serving that sentence, and between nine and eleven are in the federal penitentiary or on their way there.

Borah Asks a Question.

Senator Borah turned to another topic.

"The charge has been made," he said, "that the underworld is opposing the promotion of Judge Wilkerson. What would be their motive?"

"The satisfaction of beating a judge who, as they say, had put the rap on them, to terrorize other judges by showing their power and how long their arm can be," Mr. Loesch answered.

"Capone's term in the penitentiary I believe is going to break up the combination and destroy the sinister influence under which we have been living in Chicago."

Strikes at Judge David.

Mr. Loesch told of his experiences as special prosecutor investigating the Granady murder and other acts of election violence. And as part of that

SHANGHAI TRUCE ENDS AS NEW BATTLE RAGES

Armies Locked in Fierce Fight.

BULLETIN.

SHANGHAI, March 4 (Friday).—(AP)—Official Chinese dispatches from Taitsang, 25 miles northwest of Shanghai, this afternoon said the Japanese Eleventh division attacked the Chinese forces there and a severe battle was under way. The dispatches from Taitsang reached here by way of Nanking. They said the Chinese were putting up a stiff resistance. Taitsang is eight miles northwest of Kating, which the Japanese occupied yesterday.

BULLETIN.

[Copyright: 1932: By the New York Times.]

SHANGHAI, March 4 (Friday).—The informal truce between the Chinese and Japanese armies was ended early today when severe fighting broke out at Nanziang, west of Shanghai. The Chinese government was officially informed that a new engagement had also started at 4 a. m. between Kating and the old Chinese positions at Tazang. The Chinese are holding the village of Luipangchen.

BULLETIN.

TOKIO, March 4 (Friday).—(AP)—Rumors spread in Tokio today that the American government had approached the J. P. Morgan interests in an effort to bring pressure on Japan in connection with the Shanghai situation through the New York financial markets. Officials said the rumors could not be confirmed.

BY JOHN POWELL.

SHANGHAI, March 4 [Friday].—Cease firing!

This order went up and down the 20 mile Shanghai battle front last night. It was issued by both the Japanese and Chinese commanders. Thus 36 hays of warfare came to an abrupt if not a definite end.

Only an occasional rifle crack was heard early today as the two opposing armies consolidated their positions considerably beyond the 12½ mile area from which Japan originally demanded that the Chinese troops withdraw. The cessation of hostilities came without a formal armistice, the commanders merely ordering their troops to stop fighting unless the enemy attacked.

Though the Chinese commanders announced that their retreat was ordered to pave the way for a peaceful solution of the conflict, and that they are prepared to continue their struggle against the invaders, the nature of the retreat and the difficulty in obtaining badly needed reinforcements and munitions are not conducive to an early renewal of Chinese resistance.

Japanese in Possession.

The victorious Japanese army is now in practically undisputed possession of a section of extremely valuable Chinese territory, roughly 25 miles square, composing approximately 660 square miles.

The area the invaders now control is roughly bounded on the east and north sides by the Whangpoo and Yangtze rivers, while the western border is bounded by a line extending from the Yangtze a short distance west to Liuho, and thence southeast to the Shanghai-Nanking railway, embracing the town of Nanziang, while the southern border corresponds to Soochow creek.

The territory is of vast strategic, commercial, and industrial importance, since it comprises a valuable river valley and, including the hinterland, contains practically half of China's population of 400,000,000.

That Japan intends to hang on to this territory is indicated by the presence here of three divisions and one mixed brigade of troops with a fleet of more than fifty warships, including cruisers, destroyers, gunboats, and aircraft carriers.

Japan's real aim is shrouded in mystery but it has long been a common saying in the Orient that "the territory which Japan gains through expenditure of imperial man power and treasure, Japan holds."

Send Message to Geneva.

China's decision to cease fighting was reached yesterday, when the government sent the following message to the league of nations at Geneva:

"Pursuant to its policy of peace, the Chinese government has instructed the commanders of the Chinese forces to order a cessation of hostili-

Gilday Found Guilty; Gets 1 to 14 Years

Daniel L. Gilday, reformer and dry agitator, was found guilty of assault to murder by a jury late yesterday afternoon in the court of Judge John Prystalski. The jury fixed his punishment at one to fourteen years in the penitentiary for the shooting of Herman Knol, 17 years old. The shooting occurred on the night of Nov. 29, when young Knol and a companion tried to help the reformer, who was staggering tipsily along a street in the Englewood district.

The jury returned its verdict after an hour's deliberation. His chin resting on his hand, Gilday was silent after the verdict was read. When he was asked for a statement he pointed to his attorney, William Scott Stewart. "He won't have anything to say," Attorney Stewart said.

Judge Prystalski set March 11 for the hearing on a motion for a new trial. Meanwhile Gilday will be free on his old bond of $10,000.

Jury Takes Three Ballots.

Members of the jury said they had taken only three ballots before reaching their verdict. The first ballot stood 8 to 4 for conviction and the second 11 to 1 for conviction. Then followed a heated discussion, the jurors said, because the majority wanted to find Gilday guilty on both the felony and misdemeanor counts in the indictment.

A finding of guilty on both counts would have been impossible, for the charges were merely different classifications of the same offense, court attachés said. When this was understood, the final ballot was taken, convicting Gilday on the felony count, which provides the prison term of one to fourteen years. The misdemeanor count carried a penalty of one year's imprisonment, $1,000 fine, or both.

Young Knol, who recovered from his wound and testified at the trial, expressed satisfaction over the verdict.

State Demands Prison.

The jury retired to deliberate at 4:20 p. m. after Judge Prystalski had read his instructions. Before the jurors filed out they heard Assistant State's Attorney Daniel Covelli characterize Gilday as "a man who walked the streets with a lily in one hand, a gun in the other, and a bottle of booze in his pocket." In the final argument for the prosecution Assistant State's Attorney Mal Coghlan called the shooting "a low, despicable, wanton criminal act." He demanded that the defendant be sent to the penitentiary.

Gilday, who is 66 years old, looked straight ahead and thumped on the table with his fingers during the arguments of the prosecutors. The courtroom was crowded.

Both sides in their closing arguments dwelt on Gilday's intoxication at the time of the shooting.

Stewart Dramatizes Plea.

"If a drunken man was weaving down the street," said Attorney Stewart, dramatizing his plea by reeling up and down before the jury box, "and two boys came up to him suddenly, naturally he would be frightened."

Attorney Stewart contended that Gilday, whom he referred to continually as "the old man," had been punished enough and deserved mercy. He said that Gilday had no intent to kill when he shot young Knol.

Prosecutor Coghlan declared that intent is a state of mind. "Gilday had a gun and took it with him," asserted Mr. Coghlan. "He knew it was a deadly weapon. He had a bottle of liquor and didn't want to be exposed."

"Age Makes No Difference."

"Gilday," continued Mr. Coghlan, "poses as a higher individual, going around and dictating what our morals and habits shall be, hiding behind technicalities in the law, and using methods resorted to by the lowest of gangsters.

"It makes no difference whether a man is 66 or 26 years old. If young Knol were on trial instead, Dan Gilday and his reformers would come into court and see that he was sent to the penitentiary."

Insured for $285,000, He Dies 'for Wife'

That his wife, threatened with poverty if he continued to live, might return to affluence with $285,000 of insurance he was leaving her, Albert E. Shutz, 48 years old, shot and killed himself late yesterday.

His body was found early last evening in a stock room of his company, Porter-Shutz, millinery importers, on the fourth floor at 220 North Michigan avenue. There was a pistol by his right hand and a bullet had gone through his head.

Daniel Porter, 6101 Sheridan road, his partner, made the discovery. He had been sent to the firm's quarters by Mrs. Shutz, who became alarmed when her husband failed to return to their home at 105 East Delaware place for dinner.

Note Explains Action.

In one of the pockets of the man who had taken his own life was a note, addressed to the wife and explaining his action:

"Honey dear," he had written in clear script, "it is almost impossible for me to comprehend that this is my last day alive; here among the people and things I know so well."

After telling that he had policies to total $285,000 and stating that he had borrowed $800 a few days ago to reinstate one of them, he continued:

"With that money you will again be able to take your place in the society where you belong. Do so without regret. My tranquility must be born of the knowledge I can do this for you.

Wants No Funeral Rites.

"The only requirement I make is that you have my body cremated without ceremony. Keep no ashes; have no funeral service. I suppose people will call me a quitter, but you know I wasn't afraid to live, nor am I afraid to die.

"I am doing this so you will be happy. You must live for both of us. Don't disappoint me. Naturally it is difficult for me to leave you. Shall I say good-by forever, or only au revoir? For the last time I sign myself—your Ab."

Utilize Radio to Warn Man Bitten by Mad Dog

Los Angeles, Cal., March 3.—[Special.]—Efforts were made by radio from Los Angeles today to reach Thomas B. Scott, said to be on the way to Grand Junction, Colo. Scott was bitten by a dog here last Sunday and started for his home in Colorado by automobile the following day, unaware that the dog was suffering from rabies. If he is not intercepted and given Pasteur treatment within the next few days he will probably die, according to Dr. J. L. Pomeroy, county health officer.

Baby Falls Into Goldfish Pond and Is Drowned

Nancy McDonald, 23 months old, toddled to the artificial pond in the rear of her home at 1301 Schilling avenue, Chicago Heights, yesterday to look at the gold fish. She fell into the pool and was drowned. Her mother, Mrs. Guy A. McDonald, found her body a little while later.

LINDY MAKES AIR PLEA TO ABDUCTORS OF BABY

Evanston 'Cradle' Visit Possible Lead in Case.

BY TOM PETTEY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, March 3.—[Special.]—Two potential clews in the Lindbergh baby kidnaping case developed tonight following an exchange of telegraphic messages between New Jersey police and the Chicago detective bureau. These angles, with ramifications in Evanston, Ill., and Detroit, Mich., were based on the following:

1. New Jersey state police sent a request to the Chicago detective bureau for "any information relative to 'Scotty' Gow," reported to be a member of the notorious Purple gang of Detroit. The name of the kidnaped baby's nursemaid has been given as Betty Gow, a Scotch girl, but the police explained there is no significance to the similarity in names.

2. The Chicago detective bureau advised Hopewell, N. J., authorities [who have immediate jurisdiction in the abduction inquiry], of a Mary Rogers who made an unsuccessful effort to adopt a baby boy at the Cradle [a children's home], in Evanston, in 1930, and who allegedly was the associate of Joseph Bossone, reputed to be a New Jersey kidnaping ring chieftain. The baby which she tried to adopt was to have been used, police were informed, in a kidnaping scheme at the time.

Police in Chicago declined to comment in any detail on the two possible clues, but admitted they were coöperating with New Jersey authorities. It was admitted that the request for information as to "Scotty" Gow had been investigated, and that it had been referred to Detroit, stronghold of the Purple gang.

All Clews Fail.

Wealth, fame, and a nation-wide man hunt on an unprecedented scale had failed otherwise to produce an authentic clew to the whereabouts of the child in the two days since he was kidnaped from his crib in his parents' home near Hopewell, N. J., on Tuesday night.

The message to Chicago on the mysterious Gow went from Col. H. Norman Schwartzkopf, superintendent of New Jersey state police, who is in charge of one phase of the search for the missing Lindbergh heir. His telegram, which was sent to Chief of Detectives William Schoemaker, reads:

"Kindly furnish any information you may have regarding 'Scotty' Gow. His first name and address are unknown. Also let us know whether he is confined or at liberty. He is supposed to be a member of the Purple gang. Kindly rush information care of Lindbergh residence."

No Trace of Him Found.

Police records were hastily inspected, but no trace of "Scotty" Gow was found. Nor was his name listed among known gangsters or criminals of the country, although from Detroit it was learned that a man named Gow had once headed a bootleg ring in the region, and once had fled to Canada to avoid arrest. Police assumed he was a British alien because records showed the Canadian government refused to extradite him.

At the request of Chicago agents, an effort was made tonight to reach Col. Schwartzkopf at the Lindbergh home. It was announced there that he was asleep, and was not to be disturbed. An interviewer met Maj. Schoefeld at the Lindbergh home.

Maj. Schoefeld said Detroit authorities had been communicated with on the matter.

The second angle developed in Chicago came in a wire from Chief of Detectives Schoemaker to Capt. J. J. Lamb of the Hopewell police. It told of the Mary Rogers incident.

Baby Incident Reported.

"We have received information here," began the message, "that a woman who gave her name as Mary Rogers and the address of 138 Kensington avenue, Jersey City, N. J., came here in October, 1930, and went to a home [the Cradle society, Evanston] to adopt a 12 months old boy. She represented herself as married and very fond of babies."

The message went on to state that the Rogers woman gave a fictitious address in Philadelphia, and that it was learned that she was a divorcee, her maiden name being Rogers, and that "she has been living with a notorious gangster, Joseph Bossone, whose home is supposed to be in Asbury Park, N. J."

"The crux of the information, police admitted, rested in the following paragraph:

"From investigation it was learned that the purpose of getting the baby was either for blackmail or to have a place ready where a kidnaped baby could be maintained without attracting suspicion. The adopted baby was to be sent some place else for the time being. Bossone is supposed to be the leader of the gang of kidnapers and rum runners."

One police official, explaining the use of the adopted baby in a kidnaping scheme, said it was possible that the infant would be maintained by a woman member of the kidnaping gang for weeks or months. People seeing her would believe the child to be hers. Then the kidnap gang stealing its tiny victim would substitute him for the adopted child. The woman confederate would appear with the kidnaped child. Suspicion would be warded off because the kidnaped child would be considered the one she had previously.

After nightfall Col. Lindbergh moved

LAST BULLETINS IN SEARCH FOR LINDBERGH BABY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, March 4 (Friday).—(Special.)—With high hopes of obtaining a definite clew to the kidnaping of Charles A. Lindbergh Jr., a posse of state troopers was speeding over New Jersey highways early this morning in search of an ex-convict who had boasted he would abduct the child. His name and the license number of his car had been given them by a Cranford, N. J., garage mechanic whom he told three weeks ago he planned to "get away with that Lindbergh kid."

[Copyright: 1932: By the Associated Press.]

Hopewell, N. J., March 4 (Friday).—A promising clew to the kidnapers of America's most publicized baby, Charles A. Lindbergh Jr., developed early today from the disclosure that a third ransom letter, in handwriting similar to the first, had been received by the anxious father. Its contents were kept a guarded secret.

Hopewell, N. J., March 3.—(Special.)—Despite the fact that the Lindbergh servants were reported "cleared of suspicion" after questioning, it was learned late tonight from Inspector Harry Walsh that what he termed "a technical check-up" was being made on three employes. Three cablegrams have been sent abroad, two to England and one to Scotland, requesting information about Betty Gow, the nurse, and Ollie Wheatley and his wife, the butler and cook, respectively. Investigators refused to comment upon reports that they were seeking to learn the present whereabouts of Marie Cummings, who was Mrs. Lindbergh's nurse before Charles Jr. was born.

Hopewell, N. J., March 4 (Friday).—(AP)—Maj. Charles N. Schoeffel, deputy superintendent of the state police here, said early today there was "nothing to reports" that an automobile bearing license plates 3L-97-NY was sought in the Lindbergh kidnaping case. An alarm for the car was broadcast by New York police at 11:11 a. m. yesterday after it was reported seen to pass through the Holland tunnel bearing a man and a woman and a child about two years old. This morning New York police headquarters said they were no longer interested in the car.

Englewood, N. J., March 3.—(Special.)—Policemen guarding the Morrow home on Lydecker street were equipped tonight with riot guns, by order of Chief Charles A. Peterson. Automobiles passing the Morrow property were stopped and the occupants questioned. In some cases the rumble seats of cars were opened and the contents investigated. No definite reason was available tonight for the adding of the riot guns to the usual equipment of the Englewood police, but it was said that there was a possibility that Mrs. Morrow, mother-in-law of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, and her daughter, Mrs. Lindbergh, might return to the Morrow home tonight.

desperately to find a trace of his son. He sent a personal appeal to the police of Philadelphia, Camden and Atlantic City to aid him in running down the latest clew which, like the others, later proved worthless. His message, which he signed, was carried over the police teletype machine. It read:

"I request you to make a check of all second class hotels in these cities for the Lindbergh baby."

Still striving with every means to establish contact with the kidnapers and willing to pay whatever ransom they demand, Col. Lindbergh, through a representative, authorized broadcasting companies to appeal to the captors of his child to get in touch with him. This is the message sent over the air:

"Col. and Mrs. Lindbergh not only wish but hope that whoever is in possession of the child will make every effort to communicate with them."

Note Pledged Baby's Safety.

The note demanding $50,000 ransom, which was found pinned to the window sill of the nursery in Col. Lindbergh's home the night of the kidnaping, contained a promise by the kidnapers that the baby would not be harmed and would be well cared for, it was learned tonight.

The note was devoid of signature, but where a name would have been signed were three tiny holes punched in the paper as if with a pin.

No time limit was set in the note, nor was there a clew to guide Col. Lindbergh in establishing contact with the kidnapers.

The note said, however, that the family of the stolen baby would hear from the kidnapers within a few days —less than a week—after the baby was stolen.

Small Bills Specified.

The kidnapers, in demanding $50,000 ransom, specified that this sum was to be paid in bundles of bills, none in a denomination larger than $20.

Until tonight the only part of the kidnapers' note made public was its demand for the $50,000. John F. Toohey, secretary to Gov. A. Harry Moore of New Jersey, in making public these additional facts, explained that the text of the note had been kept secret for fear of antagonizing the abductors.

The care of the kidnapers in specifying that the bills be of small denominations leads investigators to believe the abductors are members of an experienced criminal gang. Painstaking care had been taken, it was said, to avoid leaving fingerprints.

"Most of the fingerprints taken today in the house," said Mr. Toohey, "were made by members of the household, and many of them were evidently left in and around the nursery after the crime."

Anxiety Increasing.

As the hours passed and no contact was established with the abductors hope dwindled for the 20 months' old baby's safe return. The anxiety of the parents was increased when a postcard—an exact duplicate, even to the handwriting, of the one received yesterday announcing that the baby was safe—was sorted out of the more than 700 crank letters addressed to Col. Lindbergh during the day. This one, mailed at South Orange, N. J., bore three penciled words:

"Baby will die."

There were four other communications in the pile of mail which were considered of sufficient importance to be given special attention. The letters concerned ransom. One, mailed in New York, was addressed to Col. Lindbergh, but apparently was meant for Mrs. Lindbergh.

Letter Contains Threat.

"You read this letter and keep your mouth closed," it read. "Do not open your trap to a living soul. If you do it will be your last pale. Your father has plenty of money, so do as instructed. If you do not, harm will come to you—you must know the fate of the Smith girl, who received a similar letter and did contrary to our instructions by making it known to her friends and her father. She dropped out of the picture and just so will you if you tell anybody about the contents of this letter."

"We want fifty thousand and we will forward instructions for delivering the same. Do not set a trap or the price will be high and the penalty severe."

It was unsigned and the police waded through thousands of words of similar writing during the day. Nevertheless some importance was attached to the letter at the Lindbergh home.

Expect Big Ransom Demand.

The delay of any specific communication from the kidnapers has revived the original belief by the Lindberghs and some of the detectives that the kidnaping was done by an organized gang. It now appears to them that the kidnapers are doing all they can to increase the anxiety of the Lindberghs by delaying authentic demands for ransom and permitting the flood of crank mail to arouse false hopes. In some quarters it is forecast the kidnapers will come through in a day or so with a demand for ransom totaling several hundred thousand dollars.

The extent of the Lindbergh fortune can only be guessed at. In some circles it is rated at considerably less than a million dollars, but Mrs. Morrow, the kidnaped child's grandmother, inherited $16,000,000 from her husband, the late Senator Dwight W. Morrow. The fact that the baby was not named in the Morrow will and has no wealth in his own name may be unknown to the kidnapers and may play a part in the ultimate disposal of the child.

Gov. A. Harry Moore of New Jersey spent several hours at the Lindbergh home today and upon returning to Trenton emphatically denied there was any basis for the report that Col. Lindbergh had been in communication with his son's captors.

The governor also denied reports that Col. Lindbergh had expected his baby to be restored to him today. There was no happy ending to the story in sight, the governor said, adding that "it is going to take a long time to complete this case."

Gov. Moore revealed that the baby might have been kidnaped while Col. Lindbergh was out of the house early Tuesday evening. He fixed the time of the kidnaping definitely at between 8:30 and 9:15 p. m.

"Col. Lindbergh returned home in his car at 8:15 p. m.," said Gov. Moore. "He went to a desk in the library at 9:15 p. m. That room is directly under the window from which the child was taken. Col. Lindbergh is certain that had there been any unusual noises he would have heard them."

Believe 2 Men Involved.

The governor said the police now believed two men had taken part in the actual kidnaping. One entered the room, seized the child and handed it to a companion standing at the top of the ladder. The window, it was pointed out, was comparatively small and it would have been difficult for a man with a baby in his arms to have crawled through it.

The Lindbergh home on Sourland mountain was far from the place of seclusion it was built to be today. It had become the nerve center of the entire police force of New Jersey and 15 telephone circuits, a teletype machine and a radio microphone connected it with all the units of law enforcement throughout the nation.

The wires buzzed and state troopers rushed up and down the rutted lane on motorcycles on secret missions. But tonight all their errands had been fruitless and the hunt for the kidnapers was rapidly becoming a desperate race against time.

300 Suspects Questioned.

More than 300 suspects have been traced and questioned since the Lindbergh baby vanished through an unguarded window without developing any definite clew. A part of today's activities were given over to questioning servants in the Lindbergh home and in the home of Mrs. Lindbergh's mother, Mrs. Morrow.

All have been investigated and police tonight said they were cleared of complicity. None of the questions asked them or the names of any other than the three in the Lindbergh home on the night of the kidnaping was revealed, however, and the questioning was conducted under great secrecy. The following details concerning the servants in the Lindbergh home were made public:

Betty Gow, the nurse, is a good looking 23 year old brunette with bobbed hair and blue eyes. She was born in Glasgow, Scotland, and came to this country three years ago. She speaks with a slight Scotch accent. Miss Gow has been in the employ of the Lindbergh family approximately a year and the family has been well pleased with her work. She was recommended to the Lindberghs by Elizabeth Morrow, Mrs. Lindbergh's sister.

Often Visited New York.

On her day off the nurse usually went to New York if the family was at Englewood, or to Trenton or Princeton if the family was at Hopewell. The same taxi driver whose identity was not learned usually drove her from the Morrow home to the New York ferry.

Ollie Wheatley, the butler, is a medium sized, wiry Scotchman with a pronounced accent. He acts as caretaker of the Lindbergh estate when the family is in Englewood.

Mrs. Wheatly acts as maid and cook in the Lindbergh home. She has always appeared to be extremely fond of the baby and the day after the kidnaping her eyes were red and swollen. The Wheatleys have quarters above the garage connecting with the house.

Plane Clew Investigated.

Late today, just as the day's crop of false alarms had been run to earth, word was received at the Lindbergh home that two men and a woman carrying a baby had been seen leaving a green monoplane which landed in an isolated spot on a farm near Richboro, Pa. They were seen getting into an automobile which apparently met them. Investigation disclosed that a plane had landed there but had taken off immediately. The pilot was the only passenger and there was no automobile, according to witnesses.

All day long the emergency police headquarters was filled with a constantly growing stream of witnesses. Many of them were workmen who were on the job when Lindbergh's home was built. None of the witnesses were placed under suspicion or held.

The late afternoon "hot tip" that four men had been arrested was considerably exaggerated, it developed tonight. The report stated that four men from Hudson county had been arrested and were being questioned in the garage at the Lindbergh home. Col. Schwartzkopf, head of the Jersey state police, said his detectives were investigating an anonymous tip that four Hudson county men had been overheard scheming a month ago to kidnap the Lindbergh baby.

An elderly woman in black mailed a letter addressed to Col. Lindbergh in a Boston postoffice today, and within a few minutes police and postal officials were in conference, telegraph and teletype instruments were flashing signals and police reserves were struggling with crowds outside the building. But it turned out to be valueless.

This was only one of dozens of clews that caused excitement at widely scattered points in the east. It seemed to promise more than some others, but it was like them in that after scores of policemen and detectives had worked on it throughout the day, the whereabouts of the kidnaped baby were still unknown.

In the course of the day the child was "found" in an automobile in New Hampshire, in a green sedan in Westchester county, and even on a rum runner off Asbury Park; but in this and other instances either trace was lost of the vehicle or the infant turned out to be somebody else.

Tells of Two Suspects.

Inspector Harry W. Walsh of Jersey City today had taken over the policing of the Lindbergh grounds. After the questioning of witnesses at the emergency police headquarters Inspector Walsh said:

"We have uncovered several material facts. There are at least two suspects who may continue to be suspects or be eliminated in a day or two."

Inspector Walsh would not enlarge upon his statement or reveal whether the suspects had been encountered in the day's questioning of servants and former workmen on the house. Other police officials said the servants had been cleared.

Inspector Walsh, however, showed in his attitude that he did not believe in going gently in the investigation.

"If we get in touch with the kidnapers they will think they are in a China war," he said.

The inspector said both Col. and Mrs. Lindbergh were holding up splendidly. He scouted reports that Mrs. Lindbergh had been under medical care. Except for a short period last night the Lindberghs had not rested at all, the police officer said.

"They just keep going as hard as we do, and we are not sleeping much these days," he added.

LINDBERGH KIDNAPING AN 'INSIDE JOB,' VIEW OF HIS GRANDMOTHER

Englewood, N. J., March 3.—[Special.]—Mrs. Dwight W. Morrow, grandmother of the missing Lindbergh baby, believes the kidnaping was an "inside job."

Mrs. Morrow, grieving because Mrs. Lindbergh had not brought "Charlie" to her Englewood home on Monday or Tuesday, as usual, expressed the view that the crime was perpetrated by some one familiar with the habits and the hours of the Lindbergh home.

"How would they have known the Lindberghs were staying at their place on Tuesday night when they never had done so before?" Mrs. Morrow asked.

"It was their practice to pass the week with me and come here only for week-ends," said Mrs. Morrow.

It was the infant's cold which kept him from being transported from Hopewell to Englewood.

SCHOOL CHILDREN OF NEW YORK TO PRAY FOR BABY

New York, March 3.—[Special.]—The school children of New York will raise their voices in prayer tomorrow for the safe return of little Charles Augustus Lindbergh Jr. to his parents. At the same time religious groups in other parts of the world also will pray for the safety of the baby.

Plans were completed today for members of the Associated Local School Boards of the Borough of Manhattan to visit the schools and lead the children in a prayer as follows:

"Almighty God, we fervently pray to thee in thine infinite power and wisdom, please send forth thy holy angels to protect Charles Augustus Lindbergh Jr. and to restore this precious child safely and promptly to his beloved ones."

In a letter to the clergy of his diocese Bishop William T. Manning asked that prayers be offered in all Protestant Episcopal churches "for the distracted parents, for the safety and immediate restoration of their child, and for those who are guilty of this act that their hearts may be softened and that they may realize the full meaning of their heinous crime."

CHINESE CABLE THEIR SYMPATHY TO LINDBERGHS

Washington, D. C., March 3.—[Special.]—A message of sympathy which is to be conveyed to the Lindberghs through the Chinese embassy in Washington, D. C., was received today from the Changchow Merchants' guild in Peiping, China. It read:

"Sympathy to Col. and Mrs. Lindbergh. All China is shocked with news of his baby's kidnaping. They will soon recover baby. This is the world's wish in which we wholeheartedly share. They have been so divinely of great good to the world that they will not suffer long. Assure them of our very deepest sympathy."

LINDY DRIVEN TO LONELY SITE BY CURIOUS CROWDS

Price of Popularity Aid to Kidnapers.

Hopewell, N. J., March 3.—[Special.]—An unimposing two-story white wooden frame farmhouse, flanked on each side of its four corners by four apple trees, stands a few hundred yards off the road on a side lane near the main road midway between Princeton and Hopewell.

It was into this modest house, with but four small rooms on each of the two floors, that Col. Charles A. Lindbergh and his bride moved shortly after their marriage in their attempt to find a secluded home in the country.

Located on Rural Lane.

The house, being off the main road, did not attract the attention of the passerby. But it happened to be situated but a few hundred yards back of the road which led to it, a road which at best was a country lane leading nowhere in particular.

This same country lane, however, became practically a city highway shortly after the Lindberghs moved into their home. Every week-end a long line of cars would stream past the doors and park in the hope of catching a glimpse of the man who had flown the Atlantic.

The few scrubby trees lining the lane still bear witness to the fact that their grandchildren could some day come and swell with pride with the knowledge that their grandparents had parked their cars near the Lindbergh house.

The Price of Popularity.

The traffic congestion, especially week-ends, gradually became so bad that the Lindberghs decided they could no longer live in so public a spot—public, despite the fact that the nearest farmhouse was at least half a mile away.

The Lindberghs consequently looked about the neighborhood. They found the site where their present house is located—a site which is about as secluded as one could find anywhere in the country.

3 HELD AFTER RUM RAIDS.

Three men were held on charges of violating the prohibition law yesterday following raids on Wednesday night on a still at 1903 South 55th court, Cicero, and saloons at 880 Milwaukee avenue and 2250 West 35th street.

DETAILED DESCRIPTION OF LINDY JR. REVEALS HE HAS DIMPLED CHIN

New York, March 3.—(AP)—Here is a more detailed description of the missing Lindbergh baby.

The thickness of his blond hair and its curliness gives his head the appearance of unusual largeness.

There is a pronounced dimple in his chin.

Strangers cause him to whimper and draw away if they seek to handle him.

He is invariably attracted by telephones and will attempt to take the receiver from the hook and talk into the instrument.

His speech is limited to such elementary phrases as "Wanna get down," "Big bow wow," "Day-day," and the like.

He is teething and likely to be fretful about it.

His eyes are blue and his facial features bear a resemblance to both parents.

He weighs 30 pounds and is two feet nine inches tall.

HUNT SCREAMING CHILD IN AUTO IN MELROSE PARK

Several persons reported to the Melrose Park police last night that a red colored sedan, which was turned from 14th street into 14th avenue in the suburb, contained a screaming child. Two or three men were in the car, they said, and several heard the child scream for his mother. The automobile was driven toward North avenue at a high rate of speed, the police learned. Among those who heard the child's cries were Mrs. Rose Jedicke, 1404 West 14th avenue, Melrose Park, and Mr. and Mrs. Edward Silsdey, 1305 North 14th avenue, Melrose Park. A check by the police revealed that there were no missing children in the suburb. A radio alarm was broadcast.

MOFFETT BLAMES PROHIBITION FOR LINDY KIDNAPING

Big Money from Liquor Sales Finances Gangs.

Washington, D. C., March 3.—[Special.]—Responsibility for the kidnaping of the Lindbergh baby was placed squarely upon prohibition law today by Rear Admiral William A. Moffett, chief of the bureau of aeronautics of the navy and one of the pioneers in the military airship field.

ADMIRAL W. A. MOFFETT. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

In an interview tonight the naval officer asserted that the prohibition laws finance the big criminals of today making it possible for them to operate boldly in other fields. He also declared that national prohibition has caused such a wave of crime throughout the country as to make possible kidnapings such as that of the Lindbergh child.

Booze Gives Criminals Cash.

"The prohibition law furnishes the capital with which the big criminals of today operate," Rear Admiral Moffett said. "The dry law has furnished such a lucrative field for criminals that crime has grown enormously since the eighteenth amendment became effective. Before prohibition the big money in the field of crime lay largely in bank robbery or counterfeiting. Big money came hard and the average gang was not well enough financed to go in for kidnaping on a big scale.

"Today the bootlegger can bribe officers of the law to let a truck loaded with liquor go through. He thinks nothing of dealing in big money because bootleg cash comes in easily. If an officer can be bribed to let a truck of liquor go through why could not a kidnaper grease the way for passage of an automobile carrying a kidnaped person?"

Admiral Moffett concluded with the assertion that prohibition is ruining the nation.

Rush Kidnap Law.

Members of congress today expedited action on legislation making kidnaping a federal offense when interstate boundaries are crossed.

"I urge congress to take prompt and vigorous action to provide the most extreme penalty for kidnaping," Representative John G. Cooper [Rep., O.] asserted today. "These recent kidnapings emphasize the need for legislation making such offenses punishable by death."

In an address tonight Representative John J. Cochran [Dem., Mo.] urged prompt passage of his measure making it a capital offense to kidnap a person and transport the victim across an interstate boundary.

"We are confronted with a situation which the state police are unable to control," he said, "since police powers of the states are limited to their boundaries. Knowing this, kidnapers immediately upon seizing their victim rush to another state.

Police Chief Tells Difficulties.

"The chief of police of St. Louis recently testified before the committee on the judiciary of the house that he could get no help from enforcement officers in other jurisdictions. One member of the committee said that in some instances the kidnapers probably had corrupted certain state officials before they started on the job and rushed back to that locality with their victim, knowing they would be protected.

"Early yesterday morning the President, through the attorney general, placed department of justice agents at work on the Lindbergh case. Every one will applaud the action of the President, but he acted without any authority of law. I seek to give that authority in my bill."

MOTHERS PRAY FOR SAFE RETURN OF LINDYS' BABY

Urge Stern Penalty for Kidnaping.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Milwaukee, Wis., March 3.—[Special.]—One hundred young mothers here today prayed for the safe return of Charles Augustus Lindbergh Jr., kidnaped infant son of Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh, and adopted a resolution calling for federal and state legislation tending to decrease kidnaping.

The young mothers are members of the Maternity Hospital and Dispensary association and held their regular weekly meeting in the chapel of the Milwaukee general hospital today.

What Resolution Says.

The resolution adopted reads:

"We, as young mothers and others assembled here today for the study of the spiritual and scientific care of young children and the proper guidance thereof, appreciate with heartfelt gratitude the fact that our own beloved babies and the children in whom we are interested are safe and are within the protection of our arms, our homes, and personal guardianship.

"We, in our prayers of thankfulness for the safety of our own little ones and those entrusted to our care, pray today for the safe return to the arms of his parents, the little son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Augustus Lindbergh.

"The Mothercraft Society of the Maternity Hospital and Dispensary Association of Milwaukee pledge support to advance all federal and state legislation that will tend to decrease that heinous crime—kidnaping.

Call on Congressmen.

"A copy of this resolution will be sent to Mr. and Mrs. Lindbergh as an expression of our tenderest sympathy; to each of our Wisconsin congressmen—senators and representatives—in Washington, D. C., with an assurance of our support in their efforts for legislation along these lines of crime prevention."

Dr. John A. Grab addressed the mothers on "importance of a once a year health examination." He stressed the need of preventive medicine rather than curative.

A musical program was given by student nurses of the Milwaukee general hospital.

WOMAN ROBBED OF PURSE.

Mrs. Marion Keeler, 35 years old, was robbed of a purse containing $70 yesterday afternoon near her home at 847 Clinton avenue by a youthful thief who came up from behind her and snatched the receptacle.

HOPEWELL IS SHOCKED, BUT GETS COIN WHILE THE GETTING IS GOOD

Hopewell, N. J., March 3.—(AP)—The kidnaping of 20 months old Charles Augustus Lindbergh Jr. shocked the nation and shocked Hopewell, too, but a boom's a boom and Hopewell has it.

Overpopulated overnight, the tiny town has hiked the rates, or, rather, is hiking the rates, for every trainload of newspaper reporters arriving from Philadelphia or New York places a new premium on the prices.

Ham and eggs, once 30 cents, now 75. Hotel rooms, $5—take it or leave it. Taxicab fare—how much have you got?

Even the bootleggers have the spirit and applejack is going up where expense accounts won't stretch.

Little groups of permanent residents stood around today and watched the feverish activity of police and reporters. Business recalled Shelby, Mont.; Goldfield, Nev., and Dayton, Tenn., with their "one night" inflations.

The telephone operator, who had to cope single handed with the deluge of long distance calls Wednesday, was still sleeping today. Two new operators had been added, and telephone calls were going through with the addition of four new trunk lines.

Folks in the outlying section were cautious, as one New York photographer who knocked at a farmhouse door at night to inquire his way, learned. The farmer met him at the door with a pistol in his hand.

FOUR CONFESS ROBBING AUTOS; LOOT IS FOUND

Four men, held at the Chicago avenue police station since Monday, confessed yesterday to Capt. Michael Grady that they had broken into 35 or more automobiles parked on the near north side and stolen luggage and other articles.

They named Mrs. Rebecca Cohn, manager of the Colonial hotel, 617-19 North Clark street, as the receiver of their loot. She was arrested in a raid on the hotel in which Capt. Grady, Detectives Martin Joyce and Raymond McMahon and Sergt William Smith recovered fifty handbags and suitcases and a roomful of other stolen articles.

The men who confessed the thefts are Harold Chapman, 44 years old; Leroy Linn, 27 years old; Manuel Touron, 28 years old, and Edward Wanda, 30 years old. Detectives Joyce and McMahon caught them breaking the lock on an automobile door at Rush and Delaware streets on Monday.

CAPONE MAY BE CONFINED IN ATLANTA PRISON

Al Capone may be sent to the federal penitentiary at Atlanta, Ga., diagonally across the country from his brother, Ralph, who is in the prison on McNeil's island, off Seattle, Wash., according to dispatches from Washington, D. C., yesterday.

United States Marshal Henry C. W. Laubenheimer was in Washington conferring with Sanford Bates, director of federal prisons, on whether to send Capone to the penitentiary at Leavenworth, Kas., or to the one at Atlanta. It is the policy of the justice department to keep Capone gangsters separated, and two of them, Sam Guzik and Frank Nitti, already are at Leavenworth.

Capone is under sentence of eleven years and the United States Circuit Court of Appeals has upheld his conviction. He is in the county jail, having been denied bail, and probably will remain there at least until the Appellate court acts on his petition for a rehearing, which will require three or four weeks.

WHAT'S GOING ON ON IN MIND OF KIDNAPED BABY?

Child Scarcely Aware of Change, Expert Claims.

New York, March 3.—[Special.]—Of all the persons who are distressed over the possible fate of the Lindbergh baby, little Charles Augustus Jr. himself undoubtedly is discomforted least of all, in the opinion of Dr. Arthur Frank Payne, child psychologist and author. While his parents are suffering from a grief almost beyond description, with average care the baby undoubtedly is scarcely aware of a change in his surroundings, Dr. Payne said today in discussing the Lindbergh tragedy.

Ironically enough, he is more than likely making up to his kidnapers, and is just as interested in them, as individuals, as he would be in his nurse, his mother, his father, or any other persons with whom he might come in contact. As for the change in diet, if the child receives ordinarily good food he won't notice any change. He may even like it, Dr. Payne declared.

"If diet were that important," he said, "you and I wouldn't be here today discussing the Lindbergh baby."

If Charles Augustus had been 6 or even 4 years old, his kidnaping, Dr. Payne believes, would have proven a severe shock to his nervous system. At 4 he might have suffered from a vague, indefinite fear. At 6 he would have been aware of himself as an individual, and would have the capacity for experiencing terror, through the imagination, just as his mother today is suffering. But at 20 months the baby is sublimely unconscious of fear.

WIDOW FIGHTS TO CLEAR BANKER SUICIDE'S NAME

Attacks Ex-Secretary's Story to Judge.

A fight to clear the name of Frank E. Lackowski, former president of the defunct Second Northwestern State bank, who committed suicide last Tuesday night after a bank hearing before Circuit Judge Feinberg, was begun yesterday by the banker's widow, Mrs. Harriet Lackowski.

To bring to Judge Feinberg's notice what she regards as the true version of an alleged affair between the dead banker and his former secretary, the widow yesterday instructed her attorney, Joseph Pleck, to renew his efforts to have the judge examine Superior court records bearing on the case. On his own initiative Attorney Pleck had brought the records to Judge Feinberg's court the morning after Lackowski's death, but was informed by a bailiff, he said, that "the judge wasn't interested."

After four hours' effort Attorney Pleck succeeded last evening in reaching Angus Roy Shannon, attorney for Judge Feinberg in bank cases, who promised to bring the records to the attention of the judge at 11 a. m. today.

Widow's Theory on Suicide.

The circumstance which, in the widow's opinion, drove her husband to suicide, was the appearance before Judge Feinberg of the former secretary, Miss Harriet Shosky, who intimated in her testimony that Lackowski had "framed" a situation which indebted her to the bank, "forced" her to sign a $55,900 note covering the indebtedness, and finally discharged her because she had rejected his advances for five years.

During Miss Shosky's testimony Lackowski was called forward from a rear bench where he was sitting beside his wife and told to sit in the jury box facing the witness. Following her on the stand, he testified in a nervous manner that her story was untrue. From the courtroom he went to his lawyer's office and from there to Lincoln park, where his body was found in the lagoon shortly after midnight.

It was disclosed that the now bitter foes, Mrs. Lackowski and Miss Shosky, were girlhood friends and that it was through the secretary that Mrs. Lackowski first met her husband. Mrs. Lackowski is a niece of Julius F. Smietanka, prominent Democratic politician.

In defending her husband's name, Mrs. Lackowski is relying, according to her attorney, on the statement Lackowski made in an answer to a suit filed against the bank in Superior court on Jan. 21, 1931, in which Miss Shosky sought cancellation of the $55,900 note on grounds of fraud and coercion. The suit has never been pressed and the only available copies of Miss Shosky's bill and Lackowski's answer were found yesterday in the office of the secretary's lawyer, Edgar J. Cook.

The Secretary's Story.

Miss Shosky's bill sets forth in detail the story she told on the stand, but omits mention of Lackowski's alleged attentions to her. It stated that in May, 1929, one Gus Engstrom, a supposed customer of the bank, telephoned Miss Shosky, then secretary of the bank, to purchase $27,500 worth of securities for his account, and called next day with a $200 cash deposit.

After ordering the securities through Charles Sincere & Co., a brokerage house, the bill avers, Miss Shosky found Engstrom nonexistent and told her predicament to Lackowski. The banker, according to the bill, told her the brokers must be paid, agreed to carry the stocks in the name of his brother-in-law, Henry Novak, and suggested that she guard against any losses in the account by purchasing other stocks.

In fear of losing her position, Miss Shosky followed the banker's instructions, according to her bill, and borrowed $30,000 in bonds from an aunt for collateral on her market commitments. When, in October, the market slumped, Lackowski required her to reassume the account carried under Novak's name and ordered her to "beg, borrow, or steal" collateral for the consolidated account, the bill said. In desperation, she said, she procured the signatures of her mother and her aunt to couple with her own for the note, whereupon Lackowski discharged her.

Banker's Answer to Charges.

The banker's answer contained a categorical denial of the charges. It averred that Miss Shosky had "fabricated the character of Gus Engstrom to deceive not only her mother and her aunt but also the bank officials for the promotion of her own gain as opposed to the interest of the bank."

If she accepted a $200 deposit for a $27,500 order of stock, as claimed, Miss Shosky violated a specific rule of the bank, the answer states. When she informed Lackowski of her suspicions concerning Engstrom, it continues, he instructed her to find Engstrom immediately. She left the bank and returned with a report that Engstrom was dead, the answer states. Lackowski then told her to produce a death certificate, which she failed to do, it is averred.

Lackowski admitted demanding her resignation upon learning of the Engstrom episode, but declared he did not try to exercise it until later.

When the October market crash came Mrs. Lackowski was among those from whom Miss Shosky sought loans to cover her commitments, the answer states, adding that Mrs. Lackowski raised $6,000 and gave it to Miss Shosky. Finally, the answer declares, Miss Shosky continuously accepted and made use of the dividends from the stocks and the dividends from the borrowed bonds until after she was discharged from the bank.

J. F. Mansfield, president of the village of Brookfield, issued a statement last night denying that he had ever borrowed a dollar from the closed Brookfield State bank. At a hearing before Judge Feinberg last Wednesday Arthur H. Hein, cashier of the bank for 19 years, was quoted as saying the village president owed the bank $1,000. Mr. Mansfield said Hein had denied to him that he made the statement.

KIDNAPED

JAMES DEJUTE, JR.

Niles, O., March 3.—James Dejute, wealthy contractor, whose son, James Jr., was kidnaped yesterday, is secretly dealing with the abductors for the return of the 12 year old boy, it was reported here tonight as police made little progress in their search for the missing youngster.

It was reported that the contractor received a second communication from the abductors, threatening to send the body of the boy back on the "installment plan," unless the $10,000 ransom demanded was paid within the next 24 hours.

The boy was pulled into an automobile by two men yesterday morning as he was walking to school with his cousin.

THOUSANDS BUY AS SEARS OPENS STATE ST. STORE

Shoppers Crowd Aisles on First Day.

One more mercantile establishment entered the great State street field yesterday, when the new Sears store was opened to the shoppers swarming about its doors. From 10 o'clock in the morning when City Controller Szymczak snipped a ribbon across the main entrance until 9 last night the emporium was the center of thousands who came to see and remained to shop.

Happily pushing and shoving, the crowd gazed admiringly at the floral pieces, speculated audibly upon the number of employés who had gained salaried jobs, sniffed approvingly of the odorously new stocks, and bought with a will. Manning the counters and policing the aisles were 1,350 sales people and department heads.

Ceremony Is Brief.

There was a brief dedicatory ceremony at the main entrance on State street before the doors were opened, but there was no attendant fanfare in the way of souvenirs, special sales, or orchestra music. Eighteen pages of advertising had announced the opening, without a single mention of price, in line with the policy of the executives to show the public the store as it will be day by day.

Both Gov. Emmerson and Mayor Cermak sent messages of congratulation. The former was represented by Speaker David Shanahan of the state house of representatives, and the latter by Mr. Szymczak. Lessing Rosenwald, who succeeded his father, the late Julius Rosenwald, as chairman of the board of Sears, Roebuck & Co., replied to their expressions of good will, on behalf of the firm, and handed Mr. Szymczak the scissors with which he cut the ribbon.

Twenty Police Handle Crowds.

Immediately the spectators waiting in the street charged the doors. There was a stampede in which the twenty police detailed especially to handle the crowd bobbed about helplessly. The store continued jammed solidly until past midafternoon, when it thinned somewhat.

Last night store officials announced that a few more than 151,300 persons had passed through the doors during the day.

Although a preview had been given the day before to prominent business men of the State street area, most of the well-known merchants drifted back again yesterday to see the opening and tender best wishes in person.

BUREAUCRACY IS STRANGLING U. S., THORPE ASSERTS

Calls on Business Men to Strike for Liberty.

Bureaucracy has already achieved such a strangle hold upon the nation that business men fear to condemn it because of its far reaching influence. This statement was made last night by Merle Thorpe, editor of Nation's Business, official organ of the United States Chamber of Commerce. He addressed 40 railroad presidents and 700 members of the Traffic club of Chicago at the club's annual dinner in the Palmer house.

"With the loss of our economic freedom under the rule of the bureaucrats goes also the loss of our political freedom," Mr. Thorpe declared. "We as a nation are galloping toward socialism by way of taxation, to feed the insatiable thirst of ever growing bureaucracy.

"There are 26,000,000 people on the public pay roll. I'd rather see a dictator in the White House than the bureaucrats in control. We could dislodge a dictator with a bomb, but we have found no way as yet to stem the steady, subtle growth of bureaucracy."

Cites Huge Cost Increase.

Mr. Thorpe cited the enormous increase in expenditures in all branches and departments of federal government since 1924—the year when the national income was approximately at the same level that it is today—and declared there is no evidence of an intention to cut government expenditures to stay within that income.

He ridiculed the "self perpetuating commissions and the wasteful restricting agencies set up to regulate the lives of the citizens." He asserted that the government is on the road to bankruptcy, spending $7,000,000 a day more than its income. And he urged that every business man exert all his influence to prevail upon representatives in congress to stop "the mad flow of more and more appropriations."

"Losing Political Freedom."

Referring to the loss of political freedom which he said confronts the American business man along with his loss of economic freedom through the government's competition with private business, Mr. Thorpe told of interviewing an automobile manufacturer in Detroit. The manufacturer, he said, declared that business methods could perform the functions of the postoffice department with an annual saving of $250,000,000.

"I began to write that down," Mr. Thorpe said, "when the manufacturer interrupted and said, 'My Lord, you can't print that!' I asked him why not. He said he was selling thousands of trucks to the postoffice department and that if he were quoted in those words he'd never be able to sell another truck to the postoffice officials.

"That is but one instance of the loss of political freedom. There are thousands of others. Business men have come to fear the bureaucrats. Herbert Spencer and many other students of the age old struggle of man versus the state have forecast that democracy will break upon the rock of bureaucracy. They say that an organization of government officials, once passing a certain stage of growth, becomes almost irresistible. We have reached that stage."

Suggests a First Step.

Mr. Thorpe urged as the first step in a program for the government's retirement from business the sale to the highest bidder of $2,000,000,000 worth of federal property that is not used for government purposes. Restoration of property of that value to the tax base would be a relief in itself, he said.

Mr. Thorpe was followed on the program by Fred W. Sargent, president of the Chicago and North Western railway. Mr. Sargent remarked that while Mr. Thorpe had centered his attention on federal taxation, it must be remembered that only 34 cents of the tax dollar goes to the federal government, 16 cents to the state government, and 50 cents to local government.

"We have bureaucracy on every hand, federal, state, and local," he declared. "Unless we have the courage and the ability to do away with bureaucracy there can never be a lasting prosperity."

The speakers were introduced by J. H. Mangold, president of the Traffic club.

JOBLESS VOTED 40 MILLION BUS. OF FREE WHEAT

House Bill Dips Into Farm Board Supply.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 3.—[Special.]—By a vote of 344 to 2, the house today passed a resolution authorizing the distribution of 40,000,000 bushels of farm board wheat for the relief of the unemployed and of farmers in drought stricken areas. A similar measure already has been passed by the senate, and the legislation now will go into conference where differences arising out of house amendments inserted today will be composed.

CHARLES ADKINS. [U. & U. Photo.]

The two dissenting votes were cast by Representative Charles Adkins [Rep., Ill.] and Representative Clifford R. Hope [Rep., Kas.].

No Profit for Miller.

The wheat is to be distributed through the American Red Cross or any organization the Red Cross may designate. It may be milled or exchanged for flour, and, in farm areas, may be traded for feed for live stock. The measure stipulates that all expenses of transportation and processing are to be borne by relief agencies to which the wheat is allotted, the bill providing, however, that, if processed, the miller is to realize no profit on the deal.

An amendment introduced by Representative F. H. La Guardia [Rep., N. Y.], and voted into the measure, provides that in cities of more than 25,000 population the wheat be baked into bread by the relief agencies before distribution. Mr. La Guardia declared that in large cities the cost of baking bread in the home, when the recipient had a home, would be more than the cost of buying bread.

Farm Board Gets Nothing.

Representative Bertrand H. Snell [Rep., N. Y.], minority floor leader, inserted an amendment providing that the wheat be made available before May 1, 1933. The original measure provided no limitation on the period during which the wheat would be available.

An attempt to reimburse the farm board out of the treasury was frustrated when an amendment to that effect was ruled "not germane" since it called for an appropriation. Under the terms of the measure as passed, the farm board's half billion dollars revolving fund will be curtailed by the amount of the value of the wheat. The board credits the account of the Grain Stabilization corporation with an amount equal to the current market price of wheat at the time of delivery.

Save Carrying Charges.

During the debate on the measure Representative Marvin Jones [Dem., Tex.], chairman of the agriculture committee, asserted that the farm board is now paying approximately 18 cents a bushel a year in carrying charges on the 155 million bushels it holds. His assertion was reiterated later in the day by Mr. La Guardia, who declared that the carrying charges on the 40 million bushels to be released under the bill amount to $600,000 a month or $7,200,000 a year.

Since the farm board has announced a policy of disposing of not more than 5,000,000 bushels of wheat a month, Mr. La Guardia asserted, the cost of carrying the forty million bushels released today will be saved. This, he said, would very closely approximate the value of the 40 million bushels donated to the unemployed.

SUIT FOR DIVORCE IS FILED AGAINST ROARK BRADFORD

New Orleans, La., March 3.—[Special.]—Roark Bradford, former New Orleans newspaper man, now author of American short stories and books dealing with the Negro character, was used for separation here today by his wife, Lydia Bradford.

In the suit his wife brings out that Mr. Bradford's income has run into as high as six figures a year due to the popularity of his writings and to the royalties he receives from "Green Pastures," as the author of the book "Father Abraham and his Chilluns," from which Mark Connelly wrote the celebrated play.

Mrs. Bradford in her suit for separation asks $500 a month alimony. She alleges that Mr. Bradford has deserted her since January, 1931. During that time, and long before and since, she has been in Arizona, bedridden most of the time from tuberculosis. Mrs. Bradford was Miss Lydia Sehorn, a childhood sweetheart of the author. The couple has one child

SEATTLE DENTIST ADMITS SLAYING RICH MOTHER, 81

Breaks Down as Police Show Him Evidence.

Seattle, Wash., March 3.—[Special.]—Dr. Albert G. McKeown, oral surgeon, has confessed killing his 81 year old mother, Mrs. Rhoda McKeown, of Muscatine, Ia., Sheriff Claude G. Bannick announced this afternoon.

The doctor broke down when confronted with evidence obtained by county detectives, the sheriff said, and when quieted, announced: "I killed her." He told of choking her and battering her head against the cement floor in his basement.

Killer Favorite Son.

The detectives had found a will Mrs. McKeown made three days before she was found dead in the doctor's basement yesterday morning. It provided that her estate be divided equally between him and his physician brother, Dr. A. Royal McKeown.

The old will, they said, had bequeathed to Dr. Albert McKeown the major share of her estate. Press dispatches from Muscatine, where Mrs. McKeown's elderly and wealthy husband is, quoted him as saying Albert was her favorite son.

Changes Loan Payments.

The county detectives added Mrs. McKeown had drafted new notes to make a $10,700 loan owed her by Albert payable to her estate if she died. They had been drawn several days before she was killed, but were unsigned. The original notes, they found, canceled the debt if she died.

After Dr. Albert McKeown had detailed how he killed his mother, the county detectives permitted him to go to bed, Sheriff Bannick said, and added they had had difficulty in quieting him sufficiently to obtain his confession. The sheriff said Dr. McKeown "went to pieces, blew up, and confessed" when confronted by the detectives' evidence.

WETS OF G. O. P. RALLY HERE FOR MEETING TODAY

Party Fund Donors Vote Against Dry Plank.

BY JAMES O'DONNELL BENNETT.

All last evening rebel Republicans from fourteen states of the Union were arriving at the Blackstone hotel for today's national conference there of the Republican Citizens' Committee Against National Prohibition.

At midnight, after hours of informal discussion, the 150 delegates on the scene announced the outstanding measures which will be taken at the all day sessions beginning at 10:30 o'clock this morning in the crystal ballroom of the Blackstone.

They are:

1. Adoption of resolutions demanding unequivocal repeal of the eighteenth amendment.

2. Appointment of a ways and means committee authorized to launch local campaigns throughout the Union for the selection of anti-prohibition delegates to the Republican national convention in Chicago next June.

3. Authorization for the ways and means committee to launch campaigns of finance and publicity, the purpose of which shall be:

Systematic appeals to former contributors to the Republican war chest to give no more money to a dry Republican party.

Establishment of relations with the platform committee of the impending Republican national convention to the end that that committee shall not write a platform which will drive anti-prohibition Republicans from the party.

Predict Thrills at Convention.

The discussions leading to the decision for emphatic action at today's sessions were vehement and were described by Republican leaders as a foretoken of the excitements to be expected at the party's presidential convention in June.

Summing up yesterday's decisions and today's prospects, Raymond Pitcairn of Philadelphia, a leading man in the Republican Citizens' Committee Against National Prohibition, said last night:

"These Chicago sessions of today and tomorrow are strictly partisan. We delegates are not seceders from the Republican party. Our organization is Republican and we are playing the game as Republicans. But we have cut our political teeth. We know what we are about and what we want.

"First of all we are not content that the party should again go before the country on a platform of straddle as to prohibition. Already we have appealed to men of conscience not to continue their contributions to the Republican war chest if the party continues to straddle and evade. Responses to those appeals have been so heartening that we feel that we can just raise particular Cain if the evasive policy is not abandoned.

Politicians Joining Drive.

"Not only private men who are interested in public affairs—lawyers, editors, bankers, and manufacturers—are listening to us but we also are daily receiving pretty forthright assurances from practical politicians in Washington that there is good prospect that Mr. Hoover will consent to run on as wet a plank as the next Republican convention will put in the platform. It is not without significance that the President's closest political counselor, Postmaster General Brown, is a wet."

The result of tabulation yesterday at the Blackstone of returns from former contributors to Republican campaign funds was considered of large significance by Mr. Pitcairn and his associates. To ten thousand substantial party contributors and to directors and executives of corporations throughout the country they had sent inquiries as to whether those contributors would give to the next campaign fund if the party continues to be prohibitionist.

Replies up to midnight numbered 7,844. The noes were 7,105; the ayes, 739.

One Rebel Goes Democratic.

The Republican rebels received one emphatic rebuff. An important rebel who, they expected, would join their deliberations, informed them by telegraph that he was no longer a rebel within the party's ranks but had gone clear off the reservation. He is Hugh McK. Landon, chairman of the executive committee of the Fletcher Savings and Trust company of Indianapolis and president of the Harvard club of that city. His message reads:

"I have lost all faith in the Republican party as an agency for constructive effort in any direction. It is bankrupt of principle and without leadership. It has not only failed utterly to sense the gravity of the situation of the country but has aggravated it by a mass of menacing legislation. Watson and Fess are only opportunists. Whatever influence I may have will be used this year to return the Democratic party to power in national and state government."

Chicagoans to Attend Meeting.

Among the Chicagoans who will take part in today's meeting are:

Benjamin F. Affleck, Mitchell Follansbee, H. L. Stuart of Halsey, Stuart & Co., A. W. Goodrich, former fire commissioner; John Richmond Dean of the Dean Lumber company, Howard Linn, Bernard W. Snow, chairman of the Republican county central committee, who will deliver the address of welcome to the delegates; John H. Van Hagen, Frank R. Warren, and George W. Dulaney Jr., president of the Dulaney Trust company.

Notable participants from other cities will be Representatives F. H. La Guardia of New York and Ralph Horr of Washington state, who are coming by plane from Washington, D. C., to speak at the night session; J. J. Seelman, Milwaukee; Thomas C. Woods, Lincoln, Neb.; Edwin L. Lindell, former state commander of the American Legion and secretary of the Young Men's Republican organization of Minnesota; Allen V. Junkin, St. Paul; Hugh Galt, president of the Southern Alkali corporation, Akron, O.; former United States Senator George H. Williams, St. Louis; Nelson A. Gladding, Indianapolis; G. Decker French, state commander of the American Legion, Davenport, Ia.; C. T. Revere of Munds & Winslow, New York bankers; Samuel Harden Church, president of the Carnegie institute, Pittsburgh; John Wright, Jamestown, N. Y.; Wade Stevenson, Buffalo, N. Y.; Clarence M. Brown, chairman of the Pittsburgh Plate Glass company, and Mrs. Katherine Watt, secretary of the Women's Organization for National Prohibition Reform, Norristown, Pa.

RHODE ISLAND SENDS TEST CASE ON BEER TO FEDERAL COURT

Providence, R. I., March 3.—(AP)—Providence police last night threw a beer case into the federal jurisdiction, the first to come to the notice of the police since Gov. Case signed the Republican bills setting up the 3 per cent by weight beer standard last week.

The defendant, Antonio Tirrochi, arrested with two cases of beer in his possession, will make a test case on the ground that he did not intend to sell the beer, but was to give it to a friend. The state law provides that posession of intoxicating liquor is legal except in cases of intended sale.

Another possibility of a test case angle is the alcoholic content of the beer, which today had not been determined. If it is less than 3 per cent by weight it would be legal in the state, but illegal in the federal jurisdiction.

Illinois Automobile Club Sued for $300,000 Libel

The Illinois Automobile club and Carl A. Barrett, its president, were named defendants yesterday in the praecipes of two suits, one for $250,000 and the other for $50,000, filed in the Superior court yesterday by the Illinois State Automobile association. Both suits were brought by the law firm of Poppenhusen, Johnston, Thompson & Cole, whose representatives said that an advertisement printed in a newspaper yesterday was the basis of both actions, which were for libel.

WETS FAR AHEAD, BUT DRYS GAIN IN PROHIBITION POLL

New York Still Wettest of Wet States.

New York, March 3.—[Special.]—Although the total vote at the end of the third week of the Literary Digest's nation-wide prohibition poll, as made public in this week's issue of the magazine, continued to show an overwhelming sentiment for repeal, a gain over more than three per cent in the dry vote, as compared with last week's total, was listed.

Of the 1,323,294 votes tabulated at the end of the third week, 1,024,077 were for repeal and 299,207, or 22.61 per cent, were for retention of prohibition. Last week the percentage for repeal was 19.28 and the first week of the poll it was 15.85.

Kansas Only Dry State.

Initial returns from seven additional states listed in this week's poll include fragmentary returns from Kansas, the first state to report a dry majority. Even in traditionally dry Kansas, however, the vote is close, 8,167 votes being recorded for repeal as against 8,590 for continuance of prohibition. Another state which may swing into the dry column is Tennessee, where the dry vote to date is 48.68 per cent of the total.

The other states listed for the first time are Massachusetts, Arkansas, Iowa, Mississippi, South Carolina and Tennessee. Based on first returns Massachusetts is wet, three and a half to one.

New York still is the wettest state, as it has been since the announcement of the first returns. However, with tabulation of additional ballots from the upstate territory the dry percentage showed a slight gain, the repeal advocates having cast 86.88 per cent of the total.

Votes in Other States.

Following Kansas and Tennessee the driest states are Arkansas and North Carolina, which show prohibition retention percentages of 47.30 and 43.85, respectively.

Iowa and Kansas are the only two among the seven states reported initially this week which figured in the third report of the Digest's 1930 prohibition poll. At that time the Kansas vote was 60.50 per cent for enforcement, 22.98 per cent for modification, and only 16.52 per cent for repeal. In Iowa in 1930 the percentages were 42.85 for enforcement, 29.59 for modification, and 27.56 for repeal. This year Iowa to date has returned a vote 62.93 per cent for repeal.

DRY AGENTS CAN'T TAKE SIP BEFORE THEY GET JOBS

So Ability to Judge Rum Is Questioned.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 3.—[Special.]—You cannot get a job as a prohibition agent if you have taken a drink of intoxicating liquor within a year of your application.

This was disclosed by a colloquy between Representative John J. Boylan [Dem., N. Y.] and Thomas E. Campbell, president of the civil service commission, at the hearings on the independent offices appropriation bill. Mr. Campbell said the commission enforced this requirement at the request of the director of prohibition, Amos W. W. Woodcock.

Not a Single Drink.

"You would not even consider for appointment a man who may take a drink on his birthday or on his wedding anniversary, on any of those festive occasions?" Mr. Boylan asked.

"No," Mr. Campbell replied.

"Do you not think that in setting up that kind of a standard you may really militate against the efficiency of the service? If a man is not familiar with the taste of beverage alcohol, how can he tell whether he shall make an arrest?" Mr. Boyland asked. "How can he tell whether or not the alcohol beverage is really alcohol? It might be cider, something of that kind. In other words, do you not think that you are excluding experienced men by putting up that kind of a barrier?"

Woodcock Demands Drys.

Mr. Campbell, while admitting the truth of Mr. Boylan's assertions, added that Col. Woodcock would not appoint men whose civil service records showed they drink. He expressed the hope of finding, out of 16,000 applicants, between 500 and 700 persons capable of qualifying as prohibition agents. These 500 or more persons, he explained, will be selected from the 1,500 applicants who passed the written test given to 12,000 of the original 16,000 applicants—4,000 of the latter having been dropped for failing to file their applications properly.

E. C. Babcock, assistant secretary of the commission, gave the subcommittee figures showing that in the fiscal year ended on June 30, 1931, of 3,128 persons examined for prohibition agents' positions, only 1,062 passed, and 566 were appointed to fill positions. Three women were among those who passed the tests, and one was appointed, he said.

Aileen Pringle Writes Husband, Asking Divorce

Hollywood, Cal., March 3.—[Special.]—Aileen Pringle today said she had written her husband, Sir Charles Pringle, banker and attorney in Jamaica, of her desire for a divorce decree legalizing their separation which began in 1924. "I have not seen my husband in eight years," she said. "I thought it over carefully and decided divorce is a rightful step." She said she might apply for a decree in Mexico.

STIMSON'S FRIEND SWINDLED; LANDS IN A BREADLINE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, March 3.—Alfred Fisch, 22, son of the owner of a chain of hotels in Connecticut and bearer of an enthusiastic letter of introduction from Secretary of State Stimson, is the latest and most distinguished member of the breadline conducted by police here. It was all because he trusted two compatriots he met in a cafe.

Young Fisch was on his way home after learning about the hotel business in Switzerland. He stopped off at Paris for a few days' relaxation. He met two fellow Americans and the conversation took a turn to what is technically known as the "rosary game."

Fisch turned over his pocketbook to the strangers for safekeeping. It contained $1,000, 1,000 francs, a steamship ticket and the letter of recommendation from Stimson. At the police station where Alfred recounted his sad story it was discovered that he had only one cent left. He was hungry and the police admitted him to a place in the soup line.

KANE COUNTY TO INVESTIGATE ELGIN ASYLUM

The Kane county grand jury yesterday appointed a committee to investigate treatment of patients in the Elgin State hospital. The committee is composed of William J. Wilson of South Elgin, Harrold Davis of St. Charles, and Raymond Dunkle of Aurora. Davis and Dunkle are county supervisors.

The investigation was prompted by charges that patients in the asylum have been beaten by attendants. Three guards in the hospital were dismissed by Dr. Charles F. Read, managing officer, following charges that they had administered a beating to Adolph Pelli, a patient, from which he died on Jan. 10. Charges against the men were presented to the present grand jury, but were dismissed because the only testimony involving them was that of insane patients.

Dr. Read offered the grand jury full coöperation in an investigation of the institution. The committee will report to the grand jury before Judge John K. Newhall on April 18 at Geneva.

. . . for every woman who buys shirts for the men of her family

Field's are First in Chicago with Men's Shirts of

Wamsutta Broadcloth

Beginning this morning it is possible to obtain in men's shirts the traditional Wamsutta quality that women have known for generations in household linens.

For more than eighty years Wamsutta has been a byword for quality, fresh appearance and durability, and into the making of the new broadcloth has gone all the "know how" of fabric making accumulated over a period of three quarters of a century.

Only selected, long fibre cotton goes into its smooth, even weave, giving it lightness of weight and maximum strength.

The workmanship of the shirts is equal to the high standard of the cloth itself—smart, fashionable, roomy, of good length and neatly finished. Collars, cuffs and buttonholes particularly are finished with great care. Furthermore, collars are shrunk twice to assure a permanently satisfactory fit.

We predict that after men wear these shirts through several launderings the name "Wamsutta Broadcloth" on shirts will mean as much to them as "Wamsutta Percale" on sheets and pillowcases does to women.

TEACHERS WANT 30% RAISE IF PAID IN TAX WARRANTS

Demand Equality with School Contractors.

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

South side school teachers have petitioned the board of education for a 30 per cent increase in the size of their pay checks. If this request is not granted, the teachers argue that the board will be discriminating against them in favor of contractors and others who sell materials and supplies to the schools.

The point is that the board is paying employés, contractors and supply dealers in tax anticipation warrants instead of cash. In order to convert these warrants into money they must be sold at a discount. What the teachers are asking is that the estimated amount of this discount be added to the pay checks.

Telegram to Mrs. Hefferan.

One view of the situation is presented in a telegram to Mrs. W. S. Hefferan, member of the board, which said:

"The faculty of the Morgan Park High school wishes to point out that the board of education in fairness to its employés must allow the same per cent increase in salaries as it allows increase to contractors in payment for materials. This increase will give the board employés an equal opportunity with contractors to sell tax warrants received as pay at a discount without sacrifice to these employés."

Two weeks ago certain coal contractors for the board declined to deliver any more fuel because the board had not paid for what it had received. The board readvertised for coal. The bids received were approximately 30 per cent higher, and the board ordered about 80,000 tons at the advanced price.

South Side Teachers Act.

This is the basis of the plea for a 30 per cent increase by the delegates from all of the south side schools, expressed at a meeting in the Hyde Park High school. The resolution adopted by that gathering says:

"Whereas It has been stated that the coal companies will increase their bids 30 per cent to cover loss on tax anticipation warrants, due to discount, therefore be it

"Resolved, That the teachers' salaries from now on—as long as tax anticipation warrants are issued in lieu of vouchers good for cash—be increased 30 per cent to cover cost of discount on such warrants."

Increase Would Be $10,500,000.

The $90,180,263 budget passed by the board on Wednesday sets aside $35,234,128 for teachers' salaries, so that a 30 per cent increase would mean a boost of $10,500,000. The board adjourned until next Wednesday, when under the statute it is said the trustees are authorized to either increase or decrease the budget adopted.

Trustee James A. Hemingway, chairman of the finance committee, said yesterday that no changes in the budget are contemplated. However, he said, the board may make some decreases when it obtains the report on the Columbia university survey of the school system next June.

No one was found yesterday who would forecast how the board proposes to finance the $90,180,263 budget, nor when nor how it will get $134,111,194 to pay off its accrued current debts.

Board Warned by Kelly.

The citizens' committee headed by D. F. Kelly told the board there is little hope of selling tax anticipation warrants on a $90,180,000 budget, and urged the trustees to reduce their appropriations.

Trustees Joseph P. Savage, H. Wallace Caldwell, and Hemingway made attacks upon the Kelly committee at the meeting in which the budget was passed.

"Mr. Kelly is the spokesman for the committee," said one of the committee members yesterday, "and I should not talk; but it is no surprise that men of ability and experience hesitate to help the municipalities, in view of such unwarranted attacks.

Recalls Plea for Committee.

"It was upon the plea of the school people that the committee was appointed to sell tax anticipation warrants, and Mr. Kelly consented to head it. He did not seek the job and can get no possible advantage from it except what every other citizen may gain—namely: a maintenance of essential government in Chicago.

"Everything has been deflated except the cost of government, and that must come down to a cost which the taxpayers can pay. Mr. Kelly urged upon the board a budget that would indicate an intention to get the schools on a sound financial basis.

"He was attacked because he did that civic duty. I surmise that the purpose of the attack was to mislead the teachers and the parents of the school children. Such a budget will hinder, rather than help, the sale of tax warrants."

$1,442,748 IN TAXES PAID ON FIVE LOOP BANK PROPERTIES

The county treasurer yesterday received real estate tax payments for the 1930 levy on five loop bank buildings. The payments, on the Continental Illinois, First National, Harris Trust and Savings, Foreman State and State Bank of Chicago buildings, aggregated $1,422,748.

Of the amount paid, $648,748 was in cash and $774,000 in 1930 tax anticipatio. warrants of the city, school board, county and other governmental bodies. The payments were 89 per cent of the taxes levied, $1,603,033. Payments in full were made on the Harris and Foreman bank properties, but the other three building protested $180,285 as overassessments, which will be adjudicated in the courts.

The payments and amounts protested were as follows:

	Tax paid.	Protested.
Continental Illinois	$435,571	$89,263
First National	368,664	35,107
State	286,021	55,913
Foreman State	225,778	.....
Harris Trust	106,712	.....

The bank payments yesterday raised the total of 1930 taxes collected by the county treasurer to approximately $7,500,000. The collections on hand will probably be disbursed today to the city and other taxing bodies.

Among the personal property tax payments yesterday were: Donnie O'Brien on the Charles A. Sullivan estate, $13,480; Julius Rosenwald administrator, 4901 Ellis avenue, $5,000; John M. Nicholas estate, $10,110; executor of Emma F. Vial, $18,000; Upper Avenue bank, $10,290; and Interlake Iron corporation, $21,905.

COUNTY LISTS 78 JOBS FOR AX INSTEAD OF 222

Saving of $270,000 Is Made During Day.

County department heads yesterday agreed to dispense with 78 pay rollers as a concession to the county board's attempt to pass an "economy budget." The previous proposal, however, had been to fire 222 employés in these departments, and the commissioners declared they must slash supply and contract appropriations to keep within the total of $37,000,000 which they have set as their maximum.

County Clerk Sweitzer agreed to get rid of seven jobs; Superior Court Clerk Zintak said he could get along with three less employé; a representative of the county treasurer conceded that the office could function with 65 less extra employés. Other officials agreed to lop off a few names.

Other Savings Made.

Among other savings made last night by the commissioners was a slash of $50,000 from the $725,000 appropriation for the board of assessors. The board declared that with J. L. Jacobs as assessor a much larger saving probably will be made. Thirty thousand dollars was cut from the $677,000 previously alloted to State's Attorney Swanson.

The commissioners also cut out the $38,000 appropriation for Camp Reinberg, where undernourished children are cared for each summer, agreeing that the sum could be raised by popular subscription. Approximately $130,000 in appropriations and another $140,000 in jobs were saved in the day's work. The commissioners expressed confidence that a balanced budget will be completed tonight in time for passage tomorrow.

Hear Chief Justice.

The board listened to some plain talk in the afternoon from Chief Justice William V. Brothers of the Circuit court, who was called in to advise the commissioners if they could cut jobs below the figure set by the Circuit court.

"Of course you have nothing to do with fixing the number of jobs in the fee offices," the judge said. "But if you tell a department head that you have only so much money for him, do you not hold the balance of power? You'll find the department head getting rid of jobs if you can give him only a limited appropriation. Your problem is simple if you could only see it."

Sheriff Meyering protested the proposed discharge of 46 highway policemen.

"Why don't you fire your forest preserve police?" he inquired.

"Their main occupation seems to be arresting couples who park without lights on quiet roads," remarked Mrs. Edward J. Fleming.

"Well, we all like to be human once in a while," commented the sheriff.

CHICAGO RELIEF RATE 6TH ON LIST OF LARGE CITIES

Ryerson Urges Buying of Tax Warrants.

Facts on the emergency relief work for Chicago and Cook county, set forth yesterday by Edward L. Ryerson Jr. at the noon luncheon of the Chicago assembly at the Hamilton club, showed Chicago to be sixth in a list of cities in its per capita expenditures for relief. Cities cited by Mr. Ryerson, who is head of the Joint Emergency relief, showed the per capita rates to be: Detroit, $6.59; New York, $4.69; Cleveland, $3.18; Cincinnati, $2.88; Philadelphia, $2.87, and Chicago, $2.41.

"So if it strikes you that Chicago is expending a terrific amount on this relief work that must be done, please remember how we stand in reference to other metropolitan centers," Mr. Ryerson told the assembly, which was organized recently to discuss the problems of the community in the present emergency. Allan T. Gilbert, president, introduced the speaker.

"This is a problem," continued Mr. Ryerson, "that is vital not only from the standpoint of immediate relief but from that of permanent improvement. It can only be solved by every individual doing his part not only now but when trade conditions and work bring us to the readjustment that must come. Relief is a permanent problem in Chicago."

At the present Mr. Ryerson's concern is for the sale of the state tax warrant, which remains the one source of revenue to keep on feeding and housing the large number of families requiring it. Out of a total of $18,750,000 of these warrants about $3,100,000 worth still remain to be sold.

"In October of 1930," said Mr. Ryerson, "the five major relief agencies were caring for 10,650 families at a cost of $138,000 a month. In January of 1931 the figures had risen to $4,405 families and $349,000; in October of 1931 the number was 62,000 families and the expense $918,000, and in January of 1932 we were helping 104,000 families at a cost of $1,800,000.

"In 1931 we went to the public for contributions to carry on the emergency relief work. We got $10,000,000 in contribution and about half a million more in pledges. And we estimated this would last to Oct. 31, 1932, provided state funds could be secured to help out. This matter of public funds being used for private aid is much disputed, but we cannot possibly at this time go back for help to the public, consequently we must sell these state tax warrants. It is our only hope of revenue."

AUSTRALIA HOLDS BAG AFTER SALLY INTO ECONOMICS

Loses $180,000,000 on Railway Venture.

BY QUENTIN POPE.
[Copyright: 1932: By The Chicago Tribune.]

SYDNEY, Australia, March 3.—The chief lesson to be drawn from Australian experience is that when the state enters the economic field to compete with private enterprise it is left holding the bag. Departmental control of state trading departments has resulted in loss after loss. Government delay, official ceremony and public service laziness have cost millions.

In the few cases where enterprises have been a success they have succeeded only by virtue of the fact that there was no means of comparison with any standard of efficiency in operation. Test of what private capital could have done has never been made because this exceptional operation has been in monopoly fields.

All these cases have seen utilization of a system of statutory corporation control independent of politicians, but the temptation is always present to push development ahead of present needs regardless of cost. Freedom from the severe check of responsibility to stockholders has resulted in indifference to immediate returns on the ground that "the public pays." Justification of wildest extravagances is always to be found in faith in the future.

Railroads Case in Point.

No better example of state muddlement is to be found than the railroads. Early development of the railroads was without thought of coördination or of federation and when federation came it found the states with three different gauges which had to be linked by years of work and millions of dollars. By 1928 almost half the Australian public debt had been incurred to lay down new trackage, and from 1920 to 1929 track mileage rose from 22,647 to 26,329 and cost of construction and equipment spiraled even faster. Today Australia has 4.65 miles of track for every 1,000 inhabitants, while the United States has only 2.23 miles.

With development rushed at this pace it is not remarkable that the six years 1925 to 1931 saw Queensland and Tasmania show six successive deficts, New South Wales and South Australia, five; West Australia and Victoria, two. Victoria, previously most financially well off of the states in her railways, now is as badly in the red through the menace of motor competition in a closely settled state.

In the washup the commonwealth came out of these six years with railroad deficits totaling $180,000,000. The beginning of the internal crisis was the financial breakdown of the railroads, for it gave the first heavy blow to confidence in Australia as a land of investment. Combined with the habit of floating a short term loan to balance state and federal budgets, it proved too much for the foreign investor. Worse still, it became obvious that the people no longer expected the railroads to pay.

People Didn't Worry.

The roads, the people held, were there for development, to maintain service at cost or below it and to aid local industry. That capital was being written up because track had to be relaid, that reserves were nonexistent and that replacements were made from new loans did not worry them at all.

Only in the case of the corporation controlled Victorian railroads did the Commonwealth see rigid supervision and technical efficiency. Collapse of these roads will now greatly heighten the annual railroad loss. Weak and poorly paid management has aided failure in many of the roads. Strange as it seems, this country which sets high minimums for labor fails to appreciate high bracket salaries—strange because here there is equality of opportunity.

Offered the regular pay check of $25,000 a year, a New South Wales railroads commissioner recently refused the money on the ground that the job was not worth it. Recruitment of railwaymen at too early an age without special knowledge or training has not aided administration. Even the Victorian roads were able to show a surplus in only four years between 1915 and 1930. They were building too many tracks for the future.

"Easy Come, Easy Go."

Australia was aided in her spending path by the ease with which money was made. Production figures mounted in a steady arc from $1,649,000,000 in 1919 to $2,497,000,000 in 1928, with only one halt. Encouraged by this string of good years, the country's recklessness grew. The loans poured in still faster and the expenditure on developmental works took the ratio of interest to recorded production from 9.8 per cent in 1919 to 12.3 per cent in 1930. Most significant of all, the external interest liability moved from 4.4 to 6.1 per cent, a burden soon to be felt with paralyzing weight.

In the crises of 1930 came another realization. The millions invested in public utilities and various forms of socialism were frozen. Railways, irrigation schemes and land settlement plans became more of a burden. Losses were heavier and more taxation had to be loaded upon the country to stay utter breakdown of the schemes.

Refinancing of the plans was the way out, but refinancing was impossible for the railroads had been built with money for which bonds were held in London and New York and pledged to the bondholders was the financial reputation of the state. The policy which worked so well as long as no one cared how the money was spent had failed.

Political Sabotage Charged.

While this was happening there were dangerous conflicts between politicians and the public service. F. W. Eggleston, legislative councillor, has charged that Victorians are destroying their system of state socialism by political sabotage. In one instance a commission recommended that railway finance should be removed from the New South Wales treasury and placed in the hands of commissioners who would be responsible for their own rates, reserves and charges. All responsible opinion now subscribes to the belief that it is impossible to have political control and efficiency. Though many are reluctant to agree that parliament must be removed from any contact with the roads their objections are theoretical rather than practical. They spring from reluctance to admit that the people's representatives should lose their authority.

Australia is the last country to make it clear that if operation of railways is to have the slightest chance of success, it must be left to private ownership or entrusted to a management which is practically independent of the politicians. Just how that second course is possible no one has yet figured out.

AUSTRALIA PASSES BILL TO STOP DEBT DODGING BY STATES

CANBERRA, Australia, March 3.—(AP)—The Australian house of representatives passed by a vote of 46 to 16 today a bill enabling the commonwealth to seize the revenue or bank deposits of any state defaulting on debt payments.

The legislation was a direct outgrowth of New South Wales having defaulted interest payments due overseas on Feb. 1. Another bill, passed today by a vote of 54 to 5, gives holders of Australian bonds direct rights against the commonwealth.

The commonwealth has paid the amount of New South Wales' default.

Beer Strike Ends; Suds Flow Freely in Berlin

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, March 3.—The beer strike collapsed today and suds flowed freely in Berlin. The strike had reduced the sales of breweries by $600,000 and the government's income from tax by $157,000. The reich has promised to reduce the beer tax from over $5 to $3.50 for twenty-two gallons by March 20. Negotiations were under way tonight to end the strike at Hamburg also.

GAS DEATH CALLED SUICIDE.

A verdict of suicide while temporarily insane was returned yesterday by the coroner's jury which investigated the death of Miss Anna Gould, 40 years old, an unemployed telephone operator, who was found unconscious Feb. 7 in a gas filled room at 1370 Estes avenue. She died yesterday in the county hospital.

PATRIOTISM ONLY SLUSH IS CORD'S IDEA, SAY PILOTS

House Group Listens to Strikers' Story.

Washington, D. C., March 3.—[Special.]—The pilots' side of the controversy with the Cord corporation, which resulted in the recent strike on the Century Air Lines of Chicago, a subsidiary Cord interest, was aired today before the house postoffice committee investigating the air mail contract situation.

Dean Berford, representing the Pilots' association, told the committee that he had been a pilot for Century at the time of the strike and that he was a member of the committee of five which negotiated with E. L. Cord during the controversy. He appeared today, he said, to "correct" certain statements made two days ago before the committee by Lyndall Young, attorney for the Cord corporation.

Berford denied Young's contention that the strike was "promoted" by labor agitators. The pilots, he declared, had walked out as the result of a pay cut of 40 per cent, effected in the interests of economy. He asserted that the Cord interests had net earnings of about $4,000,000 in 1931, but had nevertheless found it necessary to cut the Century pilots' pay, which was already 25 to 30 per cent lower than the national level.

Berford told the committee E. L. Cord, president of the corporation, believes "patriotism to be sentimental slush," and that the "American standard of living is too high."

A plea for air mail service in the territory of Hawaii was made to the committee by Victor S. K. Houston, representative of the islands in congress.

The position of small air mail contractors was explained by L. H. Brittin of the Northwest Airways of St. Paul, Minn. Should the government withdraw its subsidy from the Northwest company, which in five and a half years has built up a service from St. Paul and Minneapolis, to Duluth, Chicago, and into Canada, Brittin said, the line would be forced to suspend operations. He declared his company operations.

DRIVER BOOMS MILK BUSINESS WITH A WEE NIP!

Mrs. Alice Levanowski, 1755 West 47th street, has a bill for divorce pending in the Circuit court, and has obtained an injunction restraining her husband, Joe, of 2001 West 51st street, from molesting her and their two children.

Yesterday she complained to Judge Daniel P. Trude that Levanowski had violated the injunction five times by appearing at her apartment in an intoxicated condition. In his defense the husband presented the report of a social service worker who had interviewed his boss at the Model Dairy company, for which he is a driver.

"Every house, almost, on Joe's milk route is a moonshine flat," his superior stated. "If he doesn't buy a drink, they don't buy any milk, so he has to drink to keep his job."

"That's just another reason why the prohibition law should be repealed," said Judge Trude. "Nevertheless the defendant has violated the injunction. I sentence him to serve six months in the county jail."

Cleveland-New York—Cloudy sky with rain near Cleveland Friday noon, probably extending to New York; moderate to fresh northeast winds up to 1,000 feet and gentle variable near Cleveland and fresh northerly diminishing near New York at 5,000 feet.

GUNMAN 'LOOKING FOR A MAN' HOLDS UP 30 IN CHURCH

A man, armed with a revolver, interrupted a meeting of 30 elders in the basemetn of the Holy Trinity church, a Greek and Russian congregation at 1121 North Leavitt street, last night, and told every one to raise his hands. He scrutinized them closely, saying, "I'm looking for a man." One member slipped out and called the West North avenue police station. Sergt. Ambrose Mahoney and his squad responded and arrested the man in the basement. At the station he said he was Joseph Lackey, 34 years old, 2545 Homer street, and refused to talk. Joseph Kakernik, 1305 North Damen avenue, secretary of the church, and two other members signed complaints against him for attempted robbery.

CANCER 'DOCTOR' LOSES $500,000 SUIT FOR LIBEL

Jury Absolves Medical Association.

Davenport, Ia., March 3.—[Special.]—The American Medical association stands absolved of libel in branding Norman Baker, Muscatine's erstwhile "cancer doctor," a quack, charlatan, imposter, and fake.

NORMAN BAKER. [A. P. Photo.]

Baker lost his $500,000 libel suit against the medical men in federal court here when the jury returned a verdict couched in these words:

"We find for the defendant."

Five ballots were taken during the six hours of deliberation, but it was reported there was no serious disagreement from the very first.

The trial extended over the greater part of four weeks, during which several cancer experts were called to the stand to support the American Medical association's contention that cancer cannot successfully be treated by such things as carbolic acid concoctions injected into the body. "builders" composed of watermelon and clover seeds and corn silk, and caustics applied to the skin. Such were the "secret cures" and "treatments" used at the Baker Cancer institute, testimony revealed.

The costs of the trial, which will be in excess of $5,000, are assessed to Baker, who indicated he would appeal to the United States Circuit Court of Appeals.

COME AGAIN • SHOP AGAIN • SAVE AGAIN

WE really never knew how much you wanted a Sears store on State Street until yesterday. A store three times as mammoth couldn't have taken care of all of you who came down to attend our opening.

By your overwhelming attendance you State Street Shoppers confirmed our belief that you have been looking for just such a store on State Street for years—a store where waste is conspicuously absent—a store where quality is tested —a store where every price carries the certainty of guaranteed satisfaction and value.

You came downtown to examine our aisles of fresh, new merchandise, prepared to buy, provided everything measured up to the promises we had made in our advance publicity. And you bought as no other crowd has ever bought before. You told us not alone with words that this was the kind of store you liked, but with purchases. You simply loved it, and you proved it by the good-natured way you put up with our overtaxed facilities on the biggest opening day State Street has seen since "way back when."

CHINA WILL NEVER YIELD TO JAPAN! LEAGUE IS TOLD

Assembly Asked to Use "Moral Forces."

BY JAY ALLEN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

GENEVA, March 3.—China and Japan spoke their pieces today before this extraordinary league of nations assembly which has been called to stop its first real war and mend a covenant. The assembly, obviously much troubled by the vastness of its responsibilities, tonight decided to duck into a commission, because there were no other candidates to speak at the general session.

DR. W. W. YEN.
[Acme Photo.]

A queer restraint has fallen upon the assembly in its first hours, but tomorrow league enthusiasts hope it will make a stab at living up to its responsibilities.

China, speaking with alarming occidental directness through Dr. W. W. Yen, a gentleman with a frock coat and a Virginian accent, pointed out to the assembly that she herself invoked its duties with small pity.

"Where Do We Stand?"

"I come before you in the name of a great people at one of the most tragic and critical moments of its long history," Dr. Yen said. "China is here staking her national existence upon the justice and wisdom of the 55 nations represented in this unique assembly."

"Where do we stand?" he queried.

In China's name he asked that the assembly take up the entire dispute—Shanghai, Manchuria, everything—and "explore and exhaust the possibilities of effecting a settlement in conformity with the provisions of our covenant."

He asked the assembly to do everything in its power to halt hostile action in her territory and achieve the withdrawal of invading forces and a peaceful settlement within the spirit of the covenant and without, of course, encroaching on China's sovereign rights.

Asks Moral Forces Massed.

He asked the assembly to recognize that the covenant has been broken and to solemnly declare that the blame for the "terrible state of affairs in Manchuria, Shanghai, and other parts of China" is not China's, and, by so doing, to mobilize the moral forces of the world.

Dr. Yen then launched a thorough indictment against Japan, citing chapter and verse in his charges that Japan had violated the league covenant, the nine power treaty, the Kellogg anti-war pact and had on top of all this defied the league.

His legal adviser, Robert Olds, formerly of the American state department, was looking on from an obscure seat.

At the opening of the meeting the Japanese gave out Gen. Yoshinori Shirakawa's statement that now that the object of protecting Japanese residents has been achieved his forces have ceased advancing for the time being, on condition that the Chinese resort to no further hostile action.

Insists Japs Are Fighting.

Dr. Yen gave the lie to this by reading telegrams to show that the Japanese are pushing on. Woosung was being savagely bombarded, he said, adding that "the fate of the small detachment left there with orders to hold out to the last is sealed because their guns are now silenced."

Armistice proposals broke down, he said, when the Japanese issued new demands which amounted to a rejection of the originals and to the conditions of a conqueror to conquered, which "no member of the league could accept."

Baron Tsuneo Matsudaira, Japan's spokeman, then arose. He said that "it is greatly to be regretted that our attitude of moderation has been required by the unbridled play of arrogance and contempt on the part of the Chinese."

He attempted to prove that Japan was consistently on the defensive at Shanghai. He denied the need for an assembly meeting and refused to consider Manchuria as involved here.

Calls Truce Parley "Informal."

Both Matsudaira and Dr. Yen showed slight consideration for Joseph Paul-Boncour of France and Sir John Simon, British foreign secretary, who arranged that hallelujah session of the council last Monday. Matsudaira actually averred that conversations aboard the British flagship Kent to which Sir John attached such importance here were merely "informal" and Dr. Yen stated baldly that the whole peace gesture had broken down despite Paul-Boncour's claim to the contrary.

So the assembly, like the council for so long, is now in a Micawber mood, waiting for something to turn up. It faces the great unknown. It knows its deliberations could lead anywhere, war being one extreme and complete discredit being the other. How it can go further than the council, since the unanimous vote of the council is required to confirm any decision of the assembly, none can guess, and how, by not going further than the council, it can save the league, none can guess, either.

CHICAGO INSTITUTIONS TO GET G. D. BROWN $1,000,000 ESTATE

The late George Dewes Brown, retired Board of Trade operator, left a fortune of $1,000,000, most of which eventually will be divided by the Art institute and the James C. King Home for Old Men. This was disclosed yesterday when his will was filed with Probate Clerk Mitchell C. Robin. Mr. Brown died at his home at 850 Lawrence avenue on Feb. 28. He was 76 years old.

The widow, Mrs. Isabelle A. Brown, was bequeathed the income from the estate held in trust during her lifetime, after specific bequests to friends and relatives amounting to $15,000. Mrs. Brown was named executrix.

At her death the trust will be terminated and gifts of $5,000 each will be made to the following: Chicago Home for Incurables, James C. King Home for Old Men, Newsboys and Bootblacks' association, St. Mary's Home for Children and Free Dispensary, St. Vincent's Orphanage, Ephpheta School for Deaf, Illinois Society for the Prevention of Blindness, the Improvement Association for Blind People, the Chicago Home for Jewish Orphans, and the Little Sisters of the Poor. The residual estate will be divided equally between the Art institute and the James C. King home.

Mr. Brown came to Chicago from England when he was 10 years old. He became the most active trader of his day in the corn pit.

VETERAN CITY EMPLOYE'S SON KILLED BY AUTO

James Prendergast, 21 years old, was fatally injured by an automobile at Garfield boulevard and Wentworth avenue yesterday. He lived at 5607 South Wells street and was the son of Thomas F. Prendergast, veteran employé of the water pipe extension department. The machine which struck young Prendergast was driven by Walter Arndt, 2434 Shields avenue.

This death and three others increased the automobile deaths in Cook county for 1932 to 189. The other victims:

Joseph Kresher, 56 years old, 1758 Clybourn avenue. Died in the Alexian Brothers' hospital of injuries suffered last Saturday when he was struck by an automobile in front of his home.

Peter Zimmerman, 42 years old, 5027 Wrightwood avenue, was the driver.

Myrtle Bradley, 6 years old, colored, 5733 South Wabash avenue. Killed at 57th street and Wabash avenue by the car of Sidney Smith, 5608 Lafayette avenue.

An unidentified colored woman. Killed at 73d street and Exchange avenue.

Ryston Bigelow, 6737 Paxton avenue, was the driver of the car.

JAPAN TO HALT FLOW OF TROOPS INTO SHANGHAI

Expect Sailing Orders to Be Canceled.

[Copyright: 1932: By the Associated Press.]

TOKIO, March 4.—[Friday.]—Authoritative quarters said that Japanese army units under orders to proceed to Shanghai, but still in Japan, probably would have their orders canceled today.

Other units already on board transports on the way to Shanghai are expected to be allowed to continue their voyagie, probably to relieve the soldiers who bore the brunt of the recent fighting there.

After receiving reports that the fighting at Shanghai was ended, government officials here declared that all Japanese troops would be withdrawn inside the twelve and a half mile zone around the city as quickly as possible.

Units Move Outside Zone.

Some units of the Japanese, especially the eleventh division, which moved across country from the southern banks of the Yangtze, have taken up positions outside the zone, official reports said.

Hope was expressed in government circles that it might be necessary to occupy the border of the zone only a few days.

Information to the government here indicated that the Chinese army was not annihilated, although its organization was badly shattered and the troop morale was low.

Chinese Army Totals 30,000.

These reports said the Chinese still had 30,000 to 40,000 men. There was conjecture about whether Gen. Chiang Kai-shek, former president of China and now virtual dictator, would make use of the opportunity to disarm the defeated 19th route army, which hails from Canton. Gen. Chiang has been identified with the Nanking government.

"The Shanghai mess has ended," a government spokesman said. "It is now unnecessary to arrange a truce."

The cabinet yielded to the insistence of the privy council that a special session of the diet be summoned to authorize a Bond issue which will cover the expenses of the Shanghai campaign. The session will start March 18.

The cabinet had asked a bond issue of 22,000,000 yen [$7,040,000]. The council approved an issue of 15,000,000 [$4,800,000]. The excess of 7,000,000 yen will go before parliament in the form of a supplementary estimate.

CROWD FORCES WAY INTO HOME OF GOV. LAFFOON

Frankfort, Ky., March 3.—(AP)—A crowd of more than 100 men and women forced their way into the executive mansion, frightened members of Gov. Ruby Laffoon's household and slightly damaged the furnishings late today during a demonstration here against the governor's one per cent general sales proposal.

Gov. Laffoon was not at home, being in his office in the capitol nearby. Word of the demonstration was brought to him at the capitol by members of his household, who ran out a side door when the intruders forced their way past a Negro doorman.

The crowd went to the front door of the mansion and when the doorman opened it several men asked to see the "women folk," Gov. Laffoon said.

When Douglas Majors, the doorman, refused to let the crowd inside, he said, one of them offered him $40 if he would tell where the governor was. He said they insisted the governor was hiding in the mansion.

The men in the van of the crowd pushed Majors aside and walked into the reception room. They insisted, he said, on being given an audience by "the women folk."

Armies Are Locked in Fierce Fight.

ties against the Japanese unless again attacked. It is to be pointed out, however, that the Japanese troops in advancing to Kating, Chenju, and Nanziang took undue advantage of the withdrawal of Chinese forces. The withdrawal was ordered to facilitate a truce.

"Although under such circumstances the Chinese had every right to take such action as would enable recovery of the evacuated areas, the Chinese government desires to follow a policy of forbearance in order to give every opportunity for the league of nations assembly to work out an equitable as well as pacific solution.

"Pending such a solution the Chinese forces will faithfully observe the government's order to cease hostilities against the Japanese unless attacked by them."

The Japanese Order.

The message was sent shortly after the Japanese commanders, Vice Admiral Kichisaburo Nomura and Gen. Yoshinori Shirakawa ordered hostilities to cease.

"Chinese forces have now retreated to positions beyond the distance originally requested by the imperial Japanese forces and there are signs that peace will be recovered and that the safety of Japanese residents will be reassured," their order read. "We have therefore decided to order the Japanese forces to halt for the time being at the points actually held and to cease fighting provided the Chinese forces do not resort to further hostile action."

T. V. Soong, Chinese finance minister and brother-in-law of Gen. Chiang Kai-shek, unofficial Chinese dictator, who is the only government cabinet member remaining in Shanghai, said last night that China is desirous of peace and will go a long way to coöperate with the league to accomplish a peaceful solution.

"But," he warned, "no Chinese government worthy of the name will ever consent to Japanese control of one foot of land. Nor will it consent to a Japanese scheme for enlarging the Shanghai foreign settlement. If Japan has ambitions to create a concession here, o: is planning to coöperate with other interests in extending the present foreign administered area, then China's only recourse is to continue the war to the best of its ability."

"China has no knowledge of any plans or of any agenda for a conference and has no intention of taking part as long as Japanese troops occupy Chinese territory."

The Japanese military headquarters today announced their casualties on Monday and Tuesday were 700. This figure covers both dead and wounded. The number of dead was not stated. The total Japanese casualties are about 2,300, including losses of both naval and army units. Chinese casualties are not announced but the Japanese allege they must exceed 10,000.

Chinese Mobs Storm Chapei.

SHANGHAI, March 4 [Friday.]—(AP)—A Japanese effort to reopen the Chapei native quarter to its former residents today was brought to a sharp halt at noon when crowds of Chinese, going to search the ruins, became too great for Japanese bluejackets to control.

Discovers Shanghai Trenches Filled with Slain Chinese

BY JOHN POWELL.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SHANGHAI, March 4.—[Friday.]—Despite the Japanese announcement that no visitors would be permitted within the zone occupied by the Japanese army, I succeeded today in entering the ruined Paoshan and Chapei districts as well as Kiangwan.

Japanese troops were too busy cleaning up the wreckage to pay any attention to battlefield tourists. By checking the speedometer of my car, I found that the burned area in the Chapei and Paoshan sections of Shanghai cover a territory about three miles long and from one to two miles wide. The few houses still standing were so badly damaged by shell fire and air bombs that they must be torn down.

Debris Covers Streets.

The streets are littered with telephone and telegraph wires, charred timbers, and piles of bricks. Although Japanese marines worked strenuously to remove the bodies of slain Chinese, I counted more than fifty bodies of Chinese civilians. Some had been fed upon by hordes of starving dogs.

Many house cats darted about, their fur singed off by the flames. In a vacant lot was a body of a Chinese farm boy alongside his dead pig. The boy apparently had been trying to lead the pig away when both were killed by shrapnel. A cord attached to the pig's leg was still clutched in the boy's hand.

Practically every block contained ruins of small factories such as machine shops, oil presses, printing plants, foundries, dyeing establishments, and silk and cotton weaving plants. The entire area was denuded of population. Some venturesome Chinese entered the Japanese lines to examine the ruins of their homes and factories.

Inspect Ruins of Seminary.

Kiangwan, once a town of 15,000, is a shambles. At the outskirts of the town I met two American women missionaries, Miss Ruth M. Brittain, Birmingham, Ala., and Mary F. Parmenter, Attelboro, Mass. They were ruefully observing the ruins of their seminary, which had contained 70 Chinese women students.

Alongside the railway fronting the town were the ruins of a Chinese university which had an enrollment of 2,000 Chinese boys. Standing in the center of the campus was a statue of Sun Yat-sen, father of the Chinese republic. A Japanese shell had removed the statue's head.

On the banks of Hongkew creek a company of Japanese soldiers were loading trucks with ammunition. Ten dead Japanese soldiers had been placed in the truck. Abandoned Chinese trenches were practically filled with bodies of Chinese soldiers. Some were lying in half upright positions facing peepholes fronting the Japanese lines.

BARE SLAUGHTER OF HUNDREDS OF SOVIET PEASANTS

BUCHAREST, March 3.—Investigation of recent killings on the Russo-Rumanian frontier in Bessarabia has revealed details of a tragedy which befell Russian peasants on the frozen Dniester river as they attempted to escape to Rumania.

Reports of the finding of many bodies were thought almost incredible, but today a mixed Russian-Rumanian commission confirmed them.

One Rumanian newspaper correspondent who attended the investigations said that in Olanesti alone he saw 211 bodies of soviet peasants riddled with machine gun bullets and piled up in a barn. These had been recovered from the Rumanian bank of the river.

FORMER CONVICT EXONERATED IN 2 AUTO DEATHS

After questioning Ralph Rutkowski, alias Root, a former convict, as to the circumstances of his automobile's plunge from a viaduct on Feb. 16, which caused the deaths of two persons, officials of the state's attorney's office said yesterday that they believed the wrecking of the car to have been accidental. The victims were Mrs. Hazel Beckner Root and her daughter, Hazel May, 10 years old. Root admitted that he had married Mrs. Beckner without first getting a divorce from Mrs. Jane Root of Blue Island. He will turned over to the Blue Island police on warrants charging bigamy and wife abandonment, said Capt. Willard Malone of the Gragin police.

COLUMBIA USING 'FREE LOVE' TEXT, WOMEN CHARGE

Condemning a book on sex written by Prof. Ruth Reed of Mount Holyoke college, the Woman's Auxiliary of the Episcopal church in Chicago yesterday charged that the text had been made the basis of an undergraduate course in family relations at Columbia university.

The auxiliary voted to indorse a letter of protest against such teaching, written by Mrs. Charles Spencer Williamson and addressed to Columbia's president, Nicholas Murray Butler. Mrs. Williamson told the auxiliary that Prof. Reed's book, in effect, advocated free love and belittled the integrity of the Christian family as a social unit.

"When the best elements in all communities are doing their utmost to preserve the home and family as a bulwark of civilization," Mrs. Williamson's letter stated, "it seems incredible that you, a Christian and churchman, would as president of your great university permit such a course as outlined by Miss Reed to be given. That it should be required of all undergraduates is unthinkable."

Dr. Butler Denies Charge.

New York, March 3.—[Special.]—The charge that free love is being taught at Columbia university is "an absolute invention," Dr. Butler said tonight. Of the action of the Episcopal women in Chicago he said: "It would be much more Christian and more intelligent if they would first find out what they are talking about."

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—WITHOUT CALOMEL

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

If you feel sour and sunk and the world looks punk, don't swallow a lot of salts, mineral water, oil, laxative candy or chewing gum and expect them to make you suddenly sweet and buoyant and full of sunshine.

For they can't do it. They only move the bowels and a mere movement doesn't get at the cause. The reason for your down-and-out feeling is your liver. It should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily.

If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You have a thick, bad taste, and your breath is foul, skin often breaks out in blemishes. Your head aches and you feel down and out. Your whole system is poisoned.

It takes those good, old CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." They contain wonderful, harmless, gentle vegetable extracts, amazing when it comes to making the bile flow freely.

But don't ask for liver pills. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Look for the name Carter's Little Liver Pills on the red label. Resent a substitute. 25c at all stores. © 1931 C. M. Co.

STATE TICKET FAIRLY CHOSEN, DEMOCRATS SAY

Leaders of Organization Defend Procedure.

BY PARKE BROWN.

Protests by Michael L. Igoe and Bruce A. Campbell against the methods used in making up the Democratic state ticket headed by Judge Henry Horner for governor were answered by speaker after speaker yesterday at a meetig of Democratic workers that jammed and overflowed the big ballroom of the Hotel Sherman.

A composite of the replies would run like this: The same method has been used in past primaries. It is the only method by which a balanced ticket can be produced. Abolition of the practice would bring about the nomination of a heterogeneous lot of candidates, mostly from Cook county. There was not a single protest against the plan of selection until after Igoe and Campbell had failed to receive the indorsement.

Leaders of Party Speak.

Statements covering this ground were made by Clayton F. Smith, chairman of the county managing committee; County Clerk Robert M. Sweitzer, Thomas F. Donovan, chairman of the state committee; Senator Thomas J. Courtney, head of the county ticket as candidate for state's attorney, and by Judge Horner.

They were the speakers at the first of two meetings of the rank and file of the county organization, a gathering of precinct captains and workers from the first six congressional districts that was attended by approximately 3,000 men and women. The second meeting, for Democratic workers of the four other congressional districts in Cook county, will be held this afternoon.

The only group of employés in Democratic offices that was noticeably absent yesterday was that of the jobholders under Sheriff Meyering, who is supporting Igoe. It was reported Meyering had issued orders for his employés to stay away from the meeting.

Explain Ticket to Workers.

"There is no reason for our defending the building up of the strongest state ticket possible," said Chairman Smith, "but we'll do it at these meetings so that our workers will understand exactly what occurred. Then we'll drop the subject, for it is a false issue raised by minority candidates who have nothing else to talk about."

County Clerk Sweitzer said that the Horner-Dieterich-Courtney ticket was the "best judgment" of the men selected by the whole membership of the party to act for it.

"No man is a good Democrat," he said, "who places his own selfish purposes above party welfare, who proclaims himself bigger than the organization and challenges it to give him a contest on primary day."

Donovan "Reads from Record."

State Chairman Donovan "read from the record," he said, when he told how the state committee—with Igoe and Campbell present—authorized the appointment of a subcommittee of five to coöperate with similar representatives of the country committee in making up a ticket.

"Not one voice was raised to charge irregularity or unfairness, not one protest was made, and the report of the joint subcommittee was unanimous," Mr. Donovan said. "Do you suppose that if either of these gentlemen had received the indorsement he would have challenged the method followed?"

Senator Courtney said that the defeat of Judge Horner would mean defeat for the party in November. He said that Judge Horner is the only governorship candidate who has a strong appeal to the independent vote.

Horner Points to Precedents.

Judge Horner put a touch of humor in his talk after quoting Lincoln's "A house divided against itself cannot stand" and speaking seriously on the subject of party loyalty for a few minutes.

"Do you think for a minute I'd be a candidate if the party organization had not indorsed me?" he asked during the serious part of his speech. "Any man who thinks he is greater than his party doesn't last long in the esteem of its membership."

His humorous references concerned largely the precedents for his candidacy. He said that Judge John P. Altgeld, a Chicago Democrat, was elected governor in 1892, that in 1912—twenty years later—Judge Edward F. Dunne, a Chicago Democrat, was the next representative of the party elected governor—and that in 1932—twenty years later—

Then he left the conclusion to his audience, which shouted proof that it had followed his line of thought.

POSTAL GARAGE NAMED IN DRIVE AGAINST SMOKE

A public school and the garage of the United States postoffice were listed yesterday by Frank A. Chambers, chief city smoke inspector, among twelve buildings against which smoke complaints were made. The owners or occupants of the buildings have been summoned to appear today at Mr. Chambers' office. Those named in the summonses are:

Board of education, Bryn Mawr school, 7343 Jeffery avenue.
United States postoffice garage, 1015 West Congress street.
Mrs. Marie Johnson, 152 Carl street.
Kirkham & Hayes, 6700 Crandon avenue, agents.
Ackley Brothers, agents, 6208 Dorchester avenue.
New Chicago hotel, 441 South Halsted street.
Shoreland hotel, 5454 South Shore drive.
2231 East 67th street apartment building.
Hotel Wedgewood, 6410 Woodlawn avenue.
Antonsen Motor Sales company 6718 South Western avenue.
Schoenbrun & Co., corporation, 844 West Adams street.
Mrs. W. E. Colburn, 7306 South Shore drive.

At the hearing Mr. Chambers will warn that suit will be started in the Municipal court if a violation of the city smoke abatement ordinance is noted within thirty days subsequent to attendance at the hearing.

"The newspaper is an institution developed by modern civilization to present the news of the day, to foster commerce and industry, to inform and mold public opinion, and to furnish that check upon government which no constitution has ever been able to provide."

THE SCHOOLS AND THEIR NINETY MILLIONS.

The majority on the board of education has adopted the $90,000,000 budget for 1932. Three trustees voted against it, President Myers, William D. McJunkin, and Robert F. Carr. The majority has abused the citizens who tried to help the board by getting money for it. Advice has been rejected. The persons offering it have had their motives impugned. Mayor Cermak has been run off the scene. The board is almost hopelessly in debt. The school teachers, given only a few scraps of pay since last April, are moneyless, in debt, and in want. The board can't pay its bills. The trustees paraphrase the legendary remark of Foch: "Our employés are ruined; our money is spent; our credit is lost; we are broke; the taxpayer is broke; we appropriate 90 millions."

The board has its budget. Now let it operate it. There is no reason it should receive any longer the voluntary coöperation of citizens who tried to find money for it and who tried to arrange its affairs so as to restore its credit. The board has its tax rate. It issues its tax anticipation warrants against estimates of revenue. These warrants are salable or they are not. The board can or cannot get money. It can or cannot pay its bills, keep its school teachers from starving and keep the schools going.

The responsibility is entirely upon Trustees Hefferan, Brandenberg, Durante, Caldwell, English, Hemingway, Blatchford, and Savage. They should not be relieved of any of it. They are accountable for the schools. They should see through what they have started. It is their trusteeship. It would be unwise further to interfere with it.

THE ORCHESTRA IN TROUBLE.

The announcement by Charles H. Hamill, president of the Orchestral association, that the Chicago Symphony orchestra will disband at the end of the present season will shock the higher musical world of America and Europe. It will be felt most deeply, of course, by the lovers of symphonic music in Chicago and by those citizens, not necessarily patrons of music, who look upon this famous institution as a source of pride in their city.

Founded over 40 years ago by Theodore Thomas, a great personality in American musical history, it has been cherished as an outstanding expression of the community's civilized interests. When there were but three orchestras in America worthy of comparison with the great orchestras of Europe, the Chicago orchestra was one of them, and under its present gifted and large minded conductor, Frederick Stock, it has sustained the standards of its founder. No cultural possession of Chicago has redounded more to the credit of the city in the eyes of a world disposed to take Chicago for what H. G. Wells once called it, "a lapse from civilization." And probably if the orchestra lapses it will be widely regarded as evidence that Chicago is lacking in appreciation of the finer interests which are cultivated by great centers of civilization elsewhere. Chicago is not insensitive to such opinion, but we are not disposed to exaggerate its importance. What is important is what the orchestra has meant and means to the musical life of the city and the nation, and that is difficult to overestimate.

The community must realize also that the disbanding of the orchestra cannot be considered merely as a temporary interruption. An orchestra maintaining the highest musical standards is the product of years of consistent development. It cannot be broken up and reassembled like a piece of machinery. Even if reëstablished later and under the same eminent conductor, it will have lost ground which it will take great effort and a good deal of time to regain. It is therefore earnestly to be hoped that circumstances will permit the trustees of the Orchestral association to reverse their momentous decision.

Meanwhile, the community may meditate on this unfortunate event as another reminder of the high cost of exorbitant taxation and impossible economics. The innocent suffer with the guilty. The orchestra is an institution founded by private initiative, supported by private funds. Yet it cannot escape the consequences brought about by the public extravagance which exacts destructive taxation from us all. Its support is depleted by this taxation, its financial resources shut off. It is confronted by costs of service and maintenance which its reduced resources cannot meet. It must retrench drastically or give up. Like every other enterprise, public or private, it must adjust itself to a new and lower economic level or close down. If public expenditure continues, if readjustment to imperative conditions is not made, government and private enterprises of every kind will soon be bankrupt, and the fate of an institution like the orchestra, seemingly so far removed from the welter of our material affairs, illustrates strikingly the extent of the sacrifices we shall be obliged to make. The Civic Opera is in a like dilemma, as is the Metropolitan of New York. The universities all over the country are in trouble. We need not mention the crisis in our own public schools and local institutions. In productive enterprise throughout the country, in government, and in the cultural activities which no civilized people will willingly give up, the iron law rules. Expenditure must be brought down to income and the first essential is the reduction of taxation. Relieved of this destructive burden, the resources of the nation will soon restore the normal prosperity of the nation, and with it the means which support its constructive activities, in business, in cultural service, and in the proper functions of government.

FORCING PROHIBITION TO A VOTE.

Representative Mansfield of Texas has signed the petition which will force a vote in the house of representatives to discharge the judiciary committee from further consideration of the resolution for the modification of the eighteenth amendment. Under the new house rules 145 signatures can compel a vote to take a bill from committee. One name was needed and Mr. Mansfield added it.

The opponents of prohibition do not attempt to deceive themselves as to what may be expected in the further voting. A majority is required to take the resolution from the committee. A two-thirds vote is needed to submit the modification of the amendment. The makeover of the house in response to the sentiment of the country has not proceeded so far as that. Nevertheless, a vote bearing upon the essence of the question is now possible. That is making great progress against legislative obstructions.

National prohibition, being in itself a contravention of American government in nearly every particular, naturally refuses to yield to any of the processes supposedly inherent in such government. National prohibition is primarily bigotry. Bigotry is indifferent as to methods. It regards fraud and force as legitimate. Moral thunder upholds physical punishment. Clerical coercion backs up the constable's club.

The modification proposed in the Beck-Linthicum resolution would give congress the right to regulate the manufacture, sale, and transportation of intoxicating beverages, but would restore to the states the right to determine whether they would have prohibition. The passage of the resolution would do nothing more than submit the question. All the arguments which the drys used to obtain the submission of the eighteenth amendment are valid again, but the bigots now invalidate them. Applicable once, they are inapplicable now. If a military dictatorship were necessary to continue the United States under the intolerant constraints and intolerable corruptions of the Volstead act the drys would invoke the dictatorship. The dictator could be otherwise a scoundrel. The military rule could be inhuman. Both would receive the sanction and blessing of fanatics who would willingly ruin the country rather than surrender control of it.

TO LET THE PARTY SPEAK.

Meetings will be held today in Chicago of the Republican Citizens' Committee Against Prohibition which has been carrying forward, with encouraging response, a movement to organize Republicans opposed to the régime of prohibitionism. The committee, of which Mr. Raymond Pitcairn of Philadelphia is chairman, is made up of well known Republicans of the east and midwest and proposes to appeal directly to the members of the party who had attested their active interest in its affairs by making contributions of $25 or more for the campaign of '28, but they expect and will receive the support of all Republicans who are opposed to trimming on prohibition.

This movement, in short, is not only against prohibitionism. It is for party sincerity and responsibility in regard to a great issue. That issue will be evaded by both parties, if practical professional politics sees advantage in evasion. The weakness of the opposition to the prohibitory system, especially the weakness in the Republican party, is lack of an organization which registers directly on the party management and representation. The Anti-Saloon league knew how to register. For years it cracked the whip and the politicians came promptly to heel. A good deal of the crack is out of the league's whip now, but the committee recognizes that the obstruction to reform is better organized than the demand for it. The committee proposes therefore to make itself an effective vehicle to convey to the party management the demand of millions of Republicans that the party in convention assembled face the crying evils of prohibition and declare without equivocation for repeal and for the establishment of a control of the liquor traffic consistent with the constitutional liberties of the American people.

Editorial of the Day

THE JUDICIAL COUNCIL AND THE JUDGE.

[New York Evening Post.]

The American Bar association has long since adopted a code of judicial ethics, but what we should like to inquire is, how thoroughly is that code observed and to what extent, particularly, is it properly construed from time to time as occasion arises? We have a strong suspicion, in the light of recent experiences, and we believe we shall be sustained in that regard by most lawyers of experience, that the conscience of the judge has been too generally held to be "in his own keeping" and that hence, as a matter of fact, many judicial consciences have at times attained a state of atrophy.

There is a committee on ethics in the Bar Association of the City of New York and also in the County Lawyers' association. But we understand that, although these committees are supposed to have in their jurisdiction the consideration of the conduct of "members of the profession" [which would seem to include members of the judiciary], they rarely pass upon questions of judicial conduct.

If we need a committee on ethics for the members of the bar, we surely need one for the judiciary, for even with a judge familiarity with his own conscience in isolated association is apt to breed a certain contempt. We need the consciences of others to keep our own in trim. If the committees on ethics of the bar associations do not now have that jurisdiction, they should be given the jurisdiction to take up important and constantly recurring questions affecting the propriety of judicial conduct as they inevitably arise.

In the judicial council proposed by the Merchants' association and recommended at the New York State Bar association no provision whatsoever is made for this important phase of the administration of justice. Judge Seabury recently appointed a committee of the bar association to consider the question of nominations of judges. What in the name of heaven is the use of continuously fussing around with procedural remedies for speeding up so-called justice if, when the trial is reached, the litigant cannot be assured that the judge will be familiar with and will apply correct ethical concepts?

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the quips fall where they may.

MORE THINGS FOR THE BOARD OF MEDITATION TO MEDITATE ABOUT.

The amounts recommended by the President's budget compared with the committee's allotments follow:

	Budget.	Committee.
White House	$ 429,380	$429,380
American battle monuments commission	400,000	400,000
Arlington Memorial bridge commission	1,000,000	840,000
Board of meditation	169,885	152,185

—News from Washington.

Now there's one bureau down in Washington we can see an excuse for—the "Board of Meditation." If there's any one commission or board really needed in that place it's a Board of Meditation. It will only draw down $152,185, and if it sits right down and does some first class meditating on conditions down there it will be cheap at twice the price.

The first thing we'd like the Board of Meditation to meditate about is that the house appropriations committee was asked to give over a billion dollars out of the treasury to the budget for the White House and twenty-five boards, commissions, and other independent offices for next year. We want the Board of Meditation to meditate on the nerve involved in asking over a billion dollars out of the treasury of these United States when the said treasury is as empty as a restaurant next door to a speakeasy.

Then the Board of Meditation should meditate on the fact that right now, when we are face to face with quite a good sized depression, the congressional appropriations committee, begged from every corner of the country to economize, finally (and shedding bitter tears the while) pared all of fifty-four million dollars off the appropriation, leaving the beggarly sum of exactly $986,446,506 to be expended next year on the White House and all of our many commissions.

The Board of Meditation should next sit down on the steps of the capitol and meditate on the million dollars that the Federal Farm Board is going to receive for its activities. They should meditate deeply on the fact that the farm board is now holding one hundred and eighty million bushels of wheat, which represents an outlay of $1.17 a bushel. The chairman of the farm board said on Feb. 6 last that if the wheat were sold then the board could only get sixty cents a bushel for it. Which same would represent a loss of $102,000,000 to the treasury of the said U. S. Meditate on that, Board of Meditation!

Also the Board of Meditation might do a little meditating on the fact that good, old, patriarchal Uncle Sam is now holding a large sack containing about two million bales of cotton, which if sold today would represent a loss of between thirty and forty millions. Oh, there is something on which the Board of Meditation could meditate and meditate and meditate.

Then the Board of Meditation could meditate on all the bureaus in Washington and the great army of bureaucrats and clerks and commissions and special offices, and the big deficit in the treasury of one billion seven hundred million dollars. There's a grand thing to meditate about. And the fact that it's getting more every day is more food for meditation. Oh, we're strong for the Board of Meditation at Washington. They've got their work cut out for them. And there's nobody else down there to do it. Go ahead, boys, meditate and meditate and see how far you get.

DEO VOLENTE.

Your eyes remain, my dear,
When you are gone;
I see them in my dreams,
And when the dawn,

As ever, all too soon
Comes back again,
They still are glowing there
Through mist or rain.

I must be patient, dear,
And so must you;
The day will come, no fear,
When dreams come true!

DOWNSTATE FOLK ask the Illinois road commission for concrete highways to cost two hundred million dollars. . . . The Chicago school board passes a budget calling for $90,180,263. . . . Mr. Hoover wants eight hundred and fifty million dollars for a power and irrigation project for the Columbia river. . . . Hard times? Why, dearie, where?

RAYMOND PITCAIRN, the chairman of the Rep. Cit. Com. vs. Nat. Prohib., says that unless the G. O. P. nails a lot of dripping wet planks into the 1932 platform it can have no hope of victory. Oh, Ray, be yourself; the G. O. P. has always the hope that the Jefferson boys will forget all about winning in their frantic attempts to knock each other's l d off. There is always that hope for the G. O. P., Ray, and it so often comes true.

THE WEATHER MAN says a zero wave is snooping around somewhere up in North Dakota and is headed this way. Goodness, we hope it gets sidetracked. All the roses in our gardens are now in full bloom and the orange and lemon trees are loaded with young fruit. But, ha, ha, many a zero wave has threatened Chicago this winter, but not one has arrived. What a climate! What a climate!

AND HERE'S SOME MORE WORK for the congressional committee that is going to put the dramatic critics on the grill. Bring in the music critics! By criticizing music the music critics are slinging large hunks of black mud at Handel, Meyerbeer, Verdi, Debussy, Chopin, and the rest of those boys. Bring 'em in, congress, and make 'em stop.

WE CAN'T SAY what we'd like to say about the fiends who stole Lindy's baby, and if laws would do any good we'd hope that one dismembering kidnapers would be passed in every state. All we can do is to join with the rest of you in hoping with every breath we breathe that the baby will be returned at once safe and sound. R. H. L.

HALIBUT LIVER OIL.

FOR a long time the cod was unique among fish in that it was the only one of its kind that was regarded as the source of a medicine. We ate cod for the nutrition its meat afforded, and then we drank oil from the liver to cure us of some of our diseases.

Recent discoveries have shown that other fish supply us with products that have therapeutic values. The liver of the halibut supplies an oil which contains the vitamins found in cod liver oil. These are A and D. In one of these, halibut liver oil is far richer than is cod liver oil.

Since we are accustomed to the proportions of vitamins found in cod liver oil, the manufacturers readjust halibut oil according to the plan followed in preparing cow's milk for use by babies. Cow's milk is richer than human milk in fat and proteins. Therefore, in preparing cow's milk for babies we dilute it with water. Thus diluted it is poor in sugar. Therefore we complete the modification by adding sugar.

Halibut oil is very rich in vitamin A. In order to standardize it, this oil is diluted with neutral oils. Thus diluted, it is below standard in vitamin D. It is brought up by the addition of some viosterol preparation. This modification is entirely proper and, in fact, is common practice in the case of milk for baby feeding.

It is altogether probable that additional fish sources of vitamin-rich oils will be found. Salmon meat is very rich in vitamins, according to C. D. Tolle and E. M. Nelson. However, R. W. Truesdail and L. C. Boynton do not agree with all of Tolle and Nelson's favorable findings with reference to salmon meat.

There are several kinds of salmon and the vitamin content of the meat varies. It is agreed that those salmon meats that are reddest are richest in vitamins, and those that are most yellow and white are the poorest. The oils extracted from salmon waste are found to be moderately rich in vitamins, though they scarcely rank with the oils of cod and halibut. It has been known for several years that salmon meat is a good medicine for pellagra. Its acts as a preventive and it has some virtues as a cure.

Oysters, clams, scallops, and sea fish are of service in goiter. They are especially helpful in prevention, though they have a limited field in cure.

CHILBLAINS.

H. S. B. writes: As you say, information on chilblains is very scarce. The following remedy has proved effective in one case, to my knowledge: My young daughter suffered several winters with chilblains. I went to the drug store seeking a remedy and a customer, overhearing my conversation, advised me to try oil of peppermint rubbed on the feet and to leave them unconfined until evaporation had ceased. I followed his advice and my daughter experienced immediate relief. She continued to use it that winter, but has never had occasion to use it since. That was twenty years ago.

A. E. Q. writes: About fifteen years ago I used the following, after home remedies and a doctor's prescription had failed: Due to frost bites, my feet would swell, itch, hurt, turn blue, and break into ugly cracks. I suffered agonies and, at times, was unable to work. Then I had a druggist mix ¼ ounce spirits of ammonia, ¼ ounce turpentine, ¼ ounce olive oil, ¼ ounce oil of peppermint [or wintergreen].

M. C. B. writes: Do you know of oil of hemlock for chilblains? It was recommended to me by a teacher many years ago and proved very effective. My toes were swollen dreadfully, and at times I could not get my shoes on. Applications of the oil seemed to relieve the itching and burning, to draw out the inflammation, and to shrink the skin, the chilblains finally disappearing entirely.

A. O. P. writes: May I tell what a chiropodist has learned about chilblains? The trouble is produced by a chilling of the part, which slows the cutaneous circulation and leads to congestion and inflammation. The parts most frequently affected are the toes and joints. It is characterized by redness and itching. Often much pain is present. In severe cases the color may be a deep purple, and the skin may present a "bruised apple" appearance. A pus formation is not uncommon.

Dampness, cold rains, melting snows, and cold floors are more apt to cause chilblains than dry cold of low temperature. Young people are more affected than old, and it is more common among women. Excessive perspiration renders the victim more susceptible.

The general circulation must be kept up in tone. The feet must be kept dry and warm. A broad-toed Oxford tie affords far better protection than the thin pump or strap shoe which exposes half the foot.

Powder the feet daily to take up excess moisture. Daily hot and cold foot baths are helpful. On coming in out of the cold, avoid the radiators. Sponge the feet with cold water and give them a brisk rub with a coarse towel. Then put on fresh footwear.

A lead water lotion [shallow teaspoonful of lead acetate to a pint of cold water] will relieve intense inflammation and swelling. Ichthyol ointment [as high as 40 per cent strength] is also beneficial. For mild inflammation apply a 5 per cent solution of silver nitrate.

REPLY:

There are many chilblain remedies. I am sure readers could supply fifty more. Each has proved satisfactory on certain occasions and unsatisfactory on others. The question is somewhat more intricate than use of a local application for relief.

Rubbing a frozen member with snow is serviceable provided the snow is very clean. Much of the snow used for rubbing such cases acts like sandpaper. The snow should be used as soon as the frozen or badly chilled condition is discovered.

NOT SAFE TO KEEP.

Aurora, Ill., Feb. 21.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—Ten years ago I bought a Colt .45 automatic in Kentucky. This gun has the numbers defaced. It has been in my possession constantly all these years and I am a peaceful citizen. 1. Am I liable to be prosecuted? 2. Apparently this gun was originally stolen from some military department of the U. S. government as it is the regular army model. Am I liable for having stolen property in my possession? 3. If I am liable under 1 and 2 what steps should I take to clear myself and retain possession of the firearm? I have no bill of sale. L. R. F.

1. Yes, if it should be found in your possession. 2 and 3. If you have reason to suspect that it was stolen from the U. S. government it is your duty to check this up and turn it over to the government if your suspicions are verified.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

WHEN THE WIND BLOWS.

Chicago, Feb. 21.—[Friend of the People.]—I wish to complain about the way the trash, papers, boxes, etc., are lying around between the alley on Pine Grove avenue and Diversey. This has been going on some time, and it seems to me the building managers would get after it, but they must be very untidy people to let this condition exist. One cannot walk down this stretch without getting some of the dirty paper blown in one's face if there happens to be the least wind. M. C.

Report is made that the building complained of is a hotel. Neither management nor occupants are responsible for this condition. A private scavenger gives regular, frequent and efficient service. Report further states that there is an air pocket in the alley with consequent accumulation and blowing about of paper, etc.

JOSEPH J. BUTLER, Superintendent of Streets.

FROM THE TRIBUNE'S COLUMNS

CHINA-JAPAN WAR, 1894

CHICAGO, Aug. 26.—Prince Toriheto Komatsu of Japan, cousin of the mikado and admiral in the Japanese navy, is in Chicago. He arrived from the east last night and will leave this evening for San Francisco, where he will take a steamer for home. He said he had been traveling for a year and could give no news concerning the war between China and Japan.

SHANGHAI, Aug. 25.—The activity of the Chinese in hunting down Japanese spies increases every day, and if the Chinese are to be believed the coast must be overrun with agents of the Japanese government. Seven Japanese in Chinese costume were arrested here. In the island of Formosa the Chinese authorities have been decapitating Japanese subjects supposed to be spies in large numbers. Formosa advices say that fifty Japanese had their heads cut off recently.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Aug. 27.—A new treaty has been negotiated between Japan and Great Britain by which the claim of extra-territorial jurisdiction by Great Britain is abandoned. Negotiations looking to the ratification of similar treaties are going on between Japan and the United States and other European nations than Great Britain, and it is believed they will now speedily follow the example set by the latter and fully recognize the right of Japan to administer justice in its own territory.

YOKOHAMA, Aug. 27.—The war feeling here is growing more intense every day and there is great popular demand for the transfer of operations from Corea to China.

28 YEARS AGO TODAY

MARCH 4, 1904.

CHEFOO.—Six Japanese cruisers, escorting ten transports, have been sighted steaming in the direction of the Gulf of Liaotung. This movement it is believed is connected with the reported intention of the Japanese army to affect a landing north of Saddle bay a short distance below Newchwang. From Russian sources came reports of an engagement yesterday in the vicinity of the Yalu river between small parties of scouts who exchanged shots and retired. Japanese forces are approaching within three days' march of the Russian encampments and a big battle is expected shortly.

YINGKOW.—The Russians are making hurried plans to safeguard Newchwang from attack. They are sawing off the masts of the gunboat Sivoutch, intending to use it as a floating fort. The Russians will place mines at the river mouth. British and American gunboats now at Newchwang will be piloted out between the mines.

CHEFOO.—The military and naval position at present is briefly as follows: Although Japan has lost one small cruiser and the machinery of a battleship and another vessel has been damaged, these latter are probably now fully repaired. In any case, Japan possesses complete command of the Yellow sea and will through sea power effectually blockade and isolate Port Arthur. In the meantime the Japanese seem to have decided to make an advance in strength along the Peking roadway from Seoul. Her forces already have advanced from the Corean capital and, having secured the Yalu river, they will threaten Kirin, cutting the railway and menacing Vladivostok, whilst another force deals with the Liaotung peninsula when the rigor of winter has moderated. It is anticipated they will occupy the territory near Dalny.

16 YEARS AGO TODAY

MARCH 4, 1916.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—After the senate, by a vote of 68 to 14, had declared itself opposed to interference with the President's foreign policy at this time, the fight over Mr. Wilson's attitude in the submarine controversy with Germany shifted to the house of representatives. Tonight the friends and foes of the President are marshaling their forces for the conflict in the house. There seems to be no reason to doubt the rejection of the McLemore resolution, which is similar in general terms to that laid aside by the senate, by a majority of more than two and perhaps three to one.

LONDON.—The Germans have resumed their violent attacks against Verdun and have made gains, some of which, apparently, have been lost again to the French. The official report issued in Berlin said the Germans had cleared the village of Douaumont of the French and smashed their lines to the west and to the south of the village and of the armored fort of the same name. The statement adds that more than 1,000 prisoners were taken and also that a number of heavy guns were captured. The latest Paris statement asserted that the French have occupied the highest part of the mound, on the northern slope of which the village is situated, and also in counter attacks have regained ground in the immediate vicinity of the village.

FROM A REPUBLICAN CANDIDATE.

Chicago, March 1.—I heartily commend your editorial in this morning's paper in which you state that every candidate for congress should be given the opportunity to make a definite pledge on retrenchment of federal expenditures. I served in congress for a number of years and am familiar with the expenditures of our national government and I know of my own knowledge that they can be cut down very materially; and at this time, in the present condition of business, the greatest possible relief must be given to the taxpayer. The cost of government has increased far beyond the ability of the people to support it and especially so in these days of vanishing incomes, salaries, and wages. There must be drastic retrenchment and the pruning knife must be driven to the quick. This should be our first step toward reducing taxation and in this way we will restore the confidence of the people in our institutions and in our ability to govern.

I believe congress has done good work in passing the reconstruction finance measure and the Glass bill for extending credits and making our financial institutions safe, but these benefits must be passed on to the people. While there has been undoubtedly a great deal of hoarding of money because the people were scared of the banks, now that the banks are assured security by the government through the federal reserve, they should now encourage business wherever they can do it. Bank hoarding is just as bad as individual hoarding.

We have a large deficiency in our revenues. Our income taxes have fallen off. It requires a billion and a quarter to balance our budget. Business is halted today for fear of heavy increased taxation on production and consumption.

We used to raise large revenues from taxation on beer. In this great emergency why should we not do it again? I was not in congress when the Volstead act was passed, but I felt at the time that the limitation of the alcoholic content—one-half of 1 per cent—was absurd. Our foremost scientific and medical authorities have stated that this could be raised to 3 or 4 per cent and still not be intoxicating. If this is done the government could license the sale of beer with proper safeguards of distribution and put a revenue tax on it which would bring in hundreds of millions of dollars and help us balance our national budget. No sensible temperance man could object to this. It would satisfy the people and lessen many of the evils of bootlegging, racketeering, and hijacking which are a strain upon our body politic. It would also be welcomed by our citizens of foreign ancestry, who have been brought up to believe that beer as well as bread is the staff of life.

So far as the eighteenth amendment is concerned, the commission appointed by the President, composed of many of our prominent lawyers and judges, a majority of whom thought the amendment was not enforcible, recommended modification and resubmission to the states; but, of course, it would take some time to bring this about. In the meantime, we can modify the Volstead law and help out our national finances and relieve the people of burdensome taxation, and this should be done.

GEORGE EDMUND FOSS.

HIS GAS BILLS.

Chicago, Feb. 22.—I have noted in your column the weeping and wailing in regard to the cost of natural gas. I have all my gas bills since 1919, am operating the same gas appliances, and have the same sized family. I find that by averaging my bills for the thirteen years they are no higher since the new gas was installed. S. SIEMEN.

CARLSTROM ON PROHIBITION.

Waukegan, Ill., Feb. 29.—I read a story in this morning's paper where a prominent politician has stated that Oscar E. Carlstrom, candidate for governor, has declared for a wet platform wherein he states the governor of the state has little authority of action and recommends the resubmission of the whole question of national prohibition through state government.

He knows this cannot be done, and if you call this a wet platform when thirteen prohibition states can block it, this prominent politician has another guess coming. That is just another Johnny-make-believe, and Carlstrom has plenty of them. E. V. ORVIS.

MARK TWAIN ON SCHOOL BOARDS.

Chicago, Feb. 28.—I ran across a forgotten gem the other day in Mark Twain's "Following the Equator":

"In the first place God made idiots. That was for practice. Then he made school boards."

FRANK M. PATTERSON.

SOME TAX CALCULATIONS.

Chicago, Feb. 27.—Why all the glittering generalities concerning the tax situation? The 1930 real estate assessment, based on full appraised value, was $9,348,888,024. Since 1930 the value of real estate has declined at least 25 per cent. The recent cases before Judge Williams and Judge Jarecki disclosed a total of approximately $16,000,000,000 personal property in Cook county, only a fraction of which was assessed in 1928, 1929 and 1930.

Any sane analysis of the capacity of real and personal property to pay taxes forces the conclusion that 1 per cent of the full appraised value is the maximum. Let us assume that only 8 billion dollars in personal property is placed on the 1931 tax roll. Add to this amount the present approximate value of real estate in the county, 7 billion dollars. The total value of real and personal property is 15 billion dollars. One per cent rate means an income of 150 million dollars, or an amount approximately 30 million dollars less than the average collections in 1928 and 1929. On account of previous fraudulent assessments and gross inefficiency by the tax spending bodies, it is a safe bet that not to exceed 100 million dollars will be collected for 1930 taxes. Notwithstanding the facts, the local tax spending bodies persist on the theory that over double this amount will be available, a thoroughly impossible assumption. S. H. BODDINGHOUSE.

DISREGARD OF TRAFFIC RULES.

Chicago, Feb. 24.—Our attention is called to a letter printed today in the Voice of the People signed F. F. Y. and headed "Disregard of Traffic Rules."

We think it is rather unfair to publish anything of this sort without also printing in full the name and address of the one making the complaint. While we feel that publicity of this sort is uncalled for, at the same time this company has always insisted that its drivers observe all traffic regulations and conduct themselves in a gentlemanly manner at all times. As in any organization, infractions of rules are possible, and whenever such are brought to our attention they are always given full and careful attention.

If the one making this complaint will be kind enough to report the facts directly to us we shall appreciate it very much. WM. R. BORUSZAK, United Dairy Company.

SMOKING ON THE BUSES.

Chicago, Feb. 23.—May I, through the Voice of the People, call the attention of our health commissioner to a health menace of no small proportions? I refer to the unventilated and smoke filled tops of the Chicago buses. One ride on a north side bus top, the air and closed windows thick with smoke, would convince Dr. Bundeson of the necessity of a little discipline for our motor coach company. The rule concerning the open windows and the restriction of smokers to rear seats is flagrantly disregarded. And, of course, there is no conductor present to enforce it. E. N.

SOMEBODY'S INCOME.

Chicago, Feb. 23.—Any reduction of taxes and government waste will cut into somebody's income and that somebody will oppose such a move.

When we consider the great number of people who receive tax money—all the officials, employés, those who sell to the government, those who lend money to it, those who receive pensions—it must amount to perhaps one-fourth of all the people. All of these will vigorously fight any economy drive or any reduction of taxes. This is the condition all over the world, and it has reached such a stage that the workers—that is, the taxpayers—are in the same condition they were hundreds of year ago before they were "liberated." D. DAVIDSON.

CONVICT-MADE GOODS.

Chicago, Feb. 22.—Every dollar's worth of merchandise made in our penitentiaries is keeping an honest workingman out of employment. The public does not know they are buying penitentiary merchandise, and for this reason all merchandise made in penitentiaries should be stamped, "Made by Convicts." L. C. GREEN.

SLUR ON CHICAGO IN HOUSE ROUSES SABATH'S WRATH

Reminds Ohioan of Crime in Own State.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 3.—[Special.]—The mention of Chicago as an example of a city rife with crime sent Representative Adolph J. Sabath [Dem., Ill.] rushing to the well of the house today to defend the city's name against "libel and slander."

It was Representative John G. Cooper [Rep., O.] who defamed the city in the opinion of Mr. Sabath when in the course of a speech deploring the prevalence of kidnaping he held up Chicago as representative of the present crime situation.

Sabath Leaps To His Feet.

Mr. Sabath leaped to his feet and launched into a bitter attack on Mr. Cooper, reminding him that "there are not only crimes of kidnaping but also crimes of 'libel and slander.'"

"I deplore kidnaping as much as the gentleman from Ohio," said the Chicago representative, "and I believe that it should be summarily dealt with."

"But deliberate and willful attacks on my city in this matter are unjustifiable and not to be let go without an answer. We are doing everything possible in Chicago to eliminate crime, and have recently made considerable headway."

Points to Ohio Crime.

"There are 32 other cities, several of which are in the gentleman's own state," Mr. Sabath declared, "which have a higher crime record than Chicago."

"We cannot stop crime as long as the prohibition law which breeds it is on the statute books," he asserted. "If you would spend the money in an honest attempt to apprehend criminals that you spend in trying to seek out a man taking a glass of beer we might be able to make progress."

Nor have members of congress been the only ones to cast reflections on the name of Chicago, according to Mr. Sabath. He disclosed later in the day that Mayor Cermak had recently called his attention to the fact that the official publication of the U. S. S. Chicago was entitled the "Racketeer." This Mr. Sabath thought unjust and unfair and stated so to the secretary of the navy, Charles Francis Adams. To give their paper such a name, he declared, was extremely ungrateful on the part of the crew of the Chicago, especially in view of the donation of radios and other luxuries to the ship by the city of Chicago.

Secretary Adams, Mr. Sabath said, has informed him that he has protested to the officers of the Chicago and that the name will be changed to something more appropriate.

ROCKFORD BANK PRESIDENT'S SON DENIED DIVORCE

District Judge R. M. Hattersley in Cut Bank, Mont., yesterday denied Alexander D. Forbes a divorce from Mrs. Lucille Forbes, 4246 Sheridan road.

It was ruled that Forbes, who is 27 years old and a member of a wealthy Rockford, Ill., family, had failed to show that he was a legal resident of Montana or that he had been deserted, as he charged, by his wife. The judge also found that Forbes had deserted Mrs. Forbes and failed to provide for her.

Pupil's Search for Lost Penny Sets School Afire

More than 100 pupils marched out of the Hayes Elementary school at 253 North Leavitt street yesterday when fire broke out in the manual training room and the alarm was sounded. The fire, which was extinguished quickly, started when a boy dropped a lighted match into sawdust while looking for a penny, Chief Christian Peterman of the 18th battalion said.

CITY OF CHICAGO IS 95 TODAY; STORY OF ITS GROWTH RECALLED

Chicago is 95 years old today.

It was on March 4, 1837, that Chicago was incorporated as a city. Exactly four months later, July 4, the first municipal census was taken, showing a population of 4,170. The first census, in August of 1833, when Chicago was merely a town, showed 350 permanent residents.

These figures were recalled yesterday by Frederick Rex, municipal librarian, who has charted the city's progress from a straggling town to its present position as one of the largest cities in the world. Today, according to the latest census, Chicago has a population of 3,491,635, a figure which exceeds the individual populations of all but ten states.

OFFICIAL WEATHER FORECAST.

The official forecast for today and tomorrow and yesterday's table of records follow:

Indiana—Rain Friday; Saturday snow, except rain or snow extreme south; much colder Saturday.

Wisconsin—Cloudy, followed by snow, except rain or snow in extreme south portion; colder in central and north portion; much colder in northwest portion Friday; Saturday partly cloudy, preceded by snow in east portion; much colder in east and south portions.

Lower Michigan—Cloudy, probably rain or snow south portion Friday; Saturday snow and much colder.

Upper Michigan—Mostly cloudy Friday, followed by snow in extreme west portion; snow and much colder Friday night and Saturday.

TRANSFERS FOR FEBRUARY SHOW GAIN OVER 1931

Both Consideration and Number Increase.

Clayton F. Smith, recorder of deeds and registrar of titles for Cook county, yesterday announced that transfers for the month of February disclosed an encouraging increase over the same month last year, both in number and stated consideration. For instance, there were 3,999 transfers filed for record, as compared with 3,773 in February of 1931. This is a gain of 221 in number. The total stated consideration for transfers filed during last month was $2,071,771. This compares with $1,979,428 in February last year. This an increase of $92,333.

The recorder's monthly figures show 1,494 less trust deeds and mortgages filed during February of this year than the same month last year. The decrease in stated consideration was $9,885,825. The total number filed during February, 1932, was 1,871, with a total stated consideration of $11,630,127. The same month last year the total of trust deeds and mortgages filed for record was 3,391, with a total stated consideration of $21,515,952.

Torrens System Gains.

Comparisons in the Torrens department also disclose a gain in the total stated consideration but a slight decrease in number of deeds filed. The total stated consideration for last month was $419,000, as compared with $328,000 in February, 1931, or a gain of $91,000. The actual number of transfers filed last month was 735, which was fifty-six less than February of last year, when the total was 791.

The Harry Alter company, wholesale distributor of refrigerators made by the Grigsby-Grunow company, has leased space at 1728-30 South Michigan avenue for an undisclosed term. The rental was not announced. The Alter company has been at 340 North Dearborn street for the last three years.

New Palmer Chain.

I. E. Weiss and David H. Weiss, former vice president and treasurer of the Palmer Apparel Shops, a chain of twenty-eight ready-to-wear stores in Chicago, have formed a new concern known as the Palmer Dress Shops, Inc., and have leased the corner store and basement at the southwest intersection of Roosevelt road and Kedzie avenue. The lease is for 9½ years on a guaranteed rental and percentage basis, totaling in excess of $200,000, according to Joseph O. Kaplan. The latter and Samuel J. Greenspahn negotiated the lease.

Asks Senators to O. K. Appointment.

recital he struck savagely at the conduct of Judge Joseph B. David. His fist came down with a bang on the table as he declared:

"The judge in that case was so manifestly unfair that nothing like it has been seen since the days of Judge Jeffreys in England."

"Who was the judge?" demanded Senator Blaine.

"Judge David," Mr. Loesch replied.

"And where is he now?" inquired Senator Walsh.

"He was put back on the bench by a bi-partisan nomination," Mr. Loesch answered. "It has got so that a bi-partisan slate is put up with what amounts to an announcement that the voters will take that slate or nothing."

Graft and Threats of Death.

"None of the leading criminals were ever caught," the witness continued. "The reasons were, first, because the huge amount of money controlled by the syndicate was so distributed among the police and the law enforcement officers that they would not act; second, because of threats of death with just enough killing to back up the threats."

In his four years as head of the crime commission, said Mr. Loesch, there had been 252 gangster killings without a single arrest.

The money of the syndicate came, he declared, from prohibition violations, from gambling and from protected vice resorts. Lately, he explained, racketeering also has contributed its yield.

"During all this time," the aged witness went on, "I kept in constant touch with the criminal situation.

"And it was plain that there was a sinister influence hanging over the police, the judges, all the officers charged with law enforcement, so that it was impossible ever to bring one of the arch criminals to justice."

The "sinister influence," he declared emphatically, was Capone, "who walked the streets with ten or a dozen bodyguards, dark skinned fellows."

Tells of Warning Capone.

Loesch hold how, prior to the presidential election of 1928, he had gone to see Capone and had told him that "a man of his ability ought to be a better American citizen."

"I warned Capone," said the noted law enforcer, "that the gunmen or the law would get him one of these days. He agreed that the gunmen might—but he wasn't so sure about the law.

"I told him, 'Keep your damned hoodlums out of the election this fall.' He said nothing then, but just before I left he said, 'I'll help.'"

Mr. Loesch described the precautions taken against fraud and violence.

"As a result," Mr. Loesch told the committee, "we had the first really honest election in the city of Chicago in thirty years."

Bargaining by Criminals.

When Mr. Loesch came to his conclusion—the Capone case and the bargain for a plea of guilty—he accompanied his description with a denunciation of "trading with criminals."

The senators broke in eagerly to inquire what knowledge Judge Wilkerson had of the bargaining, and by whom and on what authority it was made. Mr. Loesch said he did not know how Judge Wilkerson knew; that District Attorney Johnson had thought it best to accept a plea because the government's case was considered none too strong.

"I suppose the district attorney had the approval of his superiors," he explained. "Surely he would not have acted without higher authority."

Mr. Loesch described the sanitary district graft case.

"Capone wasn't responsible for that corruption," remarked Senator Walsh with a dry smile.

Senator Walsh also wanted to know about newspaper connections with the underworld as indicated by the murder of "Jake" Lingle. Mr. Loesch answered that he was unaware of any conspiracy between the underworld and the press.

"Now wouldn't it be more disturbing to the underworld," asked Senator Borah just before adjournment, "to have Judge Wilkerson where he is, rather than elevated out of sight and contact to the Court of Appeals?"

"No," replied Mr. Loesch, with emphasis, "he is the man from whom the underworld got the rap. And the underworld believes in getting even."

RUTH JUDD WINS AUTOMATIC STAY BY APPEAL PLEA

Phoenix, Ariz., March 3.—(AP)—Formal notice of appeal to the state Supreme court has automatically stayed execution of the death sentence imposed upon Mrs. Winnie Ruth Judd, convicted "trunk" murderess, which had been set for May 11.

Mrs. Judd made an affidavit that she is without funds to pay for the appeal record and the transcript of the trial, so the state, under Arizona law, must bear those expenses.

BULLFROG LOVE LIFE AGAIN STIRS PAT HARRISON

Lashes Hyde for Cost of Farm Pamphlets.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 3.—[Special.]—Laughter tumbled from the galleries in the senate today; for Senator Pat Harrison [Dem., Miss.] chose the occasion to break another spear against Secretary of Agriculture Hyde and to add a postscript to his recent speech on "the love life of the bullfrog," in which he challenged the extravagance of issuing useless farmers' bulletins.

"I am not going," said Senator Harrison, "to style the secretary of agriculture with that strong expression uttered by one who knew him for many years, and much better than I do, the distinguished former senator from Missouri, Jim Reed, who, in speaking before Mr. Hyde's home folk in Missouri referred to him as 'the steam whistle of a fertilizer plant.' I do not go that far. I don't say that, because I have respect for the fertilizer plant."

Printing Cost Is Small.

The cause of the senator's ire was a recent article by Secretary Hyde questioning the senator's facts and figures as given in the "bullfrog" speech. Secretary Hyde declared the pamphlets cost only 1¼ cents apiece.

The cost of printing, said Senator Harrison, was but a small item compared to the cost of gathering material, preparing it, and then sending out the finished product.

There were, he said, 400,000 agricultural year books printed, with only $756 worth sold last year. Franking such matter through the mails, he reminded the senate, only served to add to the postal deficit. Millions and millions of periodicals and pamphlets are thrown away every year, he declared.

Urges Hoover to Coöperate.

"I know it is a mere bagatelle," Senator Harrison said. "I know it is a small amount. I know when we come to effecting a savings of $100,000 here or $1,000,000 there, and then come in and wipe out all such savings by appropriating 750 million dollars for some purpose it is inexcusable. We are up against it, Mr. President. We must realize, and the secretary of agriculture and the President of the United States and his cabinet and every other man in high place, whether he be in the house of representatives or the senate, ought to cooperate at this time in the interest of effecting as many economies as are possible."

And then he concluded by inserting after his remarks in the Congressional Record, which costs $55 a page, an already printed list of pamphlets issued by the department of agriculture.

Senator W. H. King [Dem., Utah] moved for reconsideration of the vote by which the senate added to the agriculture department appropriation bill $1,450,000 for grasshopper control. Senator King insists the appropriation is unnecessary. The motion will be debated tomorrow.

The senate voted to retain in the bill a provision against the use of federal and highway funds on projects involving convict labor.

MOVIE GROUP SEEKS TO END LONG PROGRAMS

All the independent motion picture theater owners in Chicago were invited yesterday to attend a meeting in the Congress hotel next Monday to discuss the elimination of the two feature program.

The Allied Theater Owners of Illinois issued the call for the meeting. Members of this association have urged a return to one feature programs. Aaron Saperstein, president, declared that complaints of patrons indicated that the public was dissatisfied with the long drawn out entertainments.

"The quality of pictures has declined," he said, "because of the necessity of providing eight films a week. Only about five good ones are released weekly. The length of shows apparently is keeping many people at home. They do not want to stay up so late when they must get to work in the mornings."

CHILDREN'S SHOW NETS $100 TO FEED HUNGRY IN SCHOOLS

Leading yesterday's contributions to the Hungry School Children's fund was a $100 gift from the Hyde Park School for Little Children, 5445 Hyde Park boulevard. This was the proceeds of an entertainment given on Feb. 27 by Chief Whirling Thunder and Evergreen Tree, American Indians, at the St. Paul's Episcopal church.

"Although the enrollment of the school numbers about 30, we were able through the coöperation of our parent and alumnae group to welcome a good sized audience," explained the principal, Juanita Stapp.

The contributions are acknowledged as follows:

APPEALS COURT SAVES SENATOR FROM JAIL CELL

But Rules Committee Can Call Him.

Albany, N. Y., March 3.—[Special.]—The Court of Appeals in Albany today saved Senator John A. Hastings, intimate friend of Mayor James J. Walker of New York and perennial antagonist of the Hofstadter committee, from going to jail. A decision in his case voided the order finding him in contempt and revoked his thirty day sentence on the ground that the procedure followed in the case had been improper.

The court's ruling, however, strengthened the hand of the Hofstadter committee and its investigation. It set forth that the committee had full power to summon the senator before it in spite of the fact that he is a member of the legislature.

The court, in a second decision, flatly overruled the contentions of Samuel Seabury, counsel to the Hofstadter committee, and freed Dr. William F. Doyle, the millionaire veterinarian, who also was a balky witness at the city investigation.

Upholds Doyle's Attorney.

The Albany bench upheld the contention of Dr. Doyle's attorney that he had purged himself of contempt by testifying before the committee that he had split fees with lawyers and others in his practice before the board of standards and appeals. Mr. Seabury maintained that he perjured himself in the answers and that, therefore, he had not relieved himself of contempt.

The decision in the Hastings case was written by Chief Judge Benjamin N. Cordozo, recently appointed to the United States Supreme court, but not yet a member. The decision held that the subpoena served upon Hastings was valid, but that the steps taken to punish him were improper.

Only Temporary Victory.

The voiding of the action was, as a matter of fact, only a temporary victory for Senator Hastings. The court, although finding that he could not be found guilty of contempt under the routine followed, laid down the method by which he might be called by the committee and forced to testify.

Before Senator Hastings may be sent to jail he must be actually brought before the committee, Justice Cardozo's opinion declared.

Pair Rob Mail Man, Risking 5 Year Prison Sentence

Two men yesterday risked heavy federal penitentiary sentences when they held up John F. Koukelik, 2328 Elmwood avenue, Berwyn, a mail carrier, at 18th street and Racine avenue. They escaped with a $1.95 c. o. d. package. The possible penalty for such a robbery is five years in prison.

PEARSONS SHOWS HOTEL REGISTERS TO DISPUTE WIFE

Seeks to Prove They Were Together.

In keeping with his previous portrayal of himself as a modern knight errant who marries a woman "to save her honor," former Mayor Harry P. Pearsons of Evanston, on the witness stand yesterday, produced photostatic copies of pages from hotel registers in an attempt to show intimacy before marriage.

The copies were introduced as evidence in his defense in the suit for separate maintenance brought by his wife, Mrs. Elizabeth Schmitt Pearsons. Judge Harry B. Miller of the Superior court is hearing the case.

Previous to introduction of the photostatic copies, Pearsons' attorney, Lloyd C. Whitman, cross-examined Mrs. Pearsons. Regarding a trip they made in May, 1928, to the Kentucky Derby, he asked her if she occupied a room with Pearsons in Indianapolis, en route to Louisville. She replied that they had a difficult time obtaining a room, and finally found a "sort of double room" in an old hotel or private home.

Tells of Double Room.

Q.—Did you share his bed? A.—I did not.

Q.—Well, what sort of a double room was it? A.—Well, it had a sort of drape or something partitioning it off. It had, O, several beds, and the alcove was separate from the room.

The Pearsons were married in June, 1928. Mrs. Pearsons explained in answer to questions that the plan was for them to be married at their first stop on this trip, but that it was postponed because of the illness of Pearsons' father.

Q.—And you were not intimate with Mr. Pearsons either in Indianapolis or Louisville? A.—O, no, because the first time I stayed with Mr. Pearsons was when we were in Lafayette, on the return trip.

Pearsons' Side Is Told.

Pearsons previously had testified he married the then Mrs. Schmitt after she told him in April, 1928, that she was to become a mother, that he was responsible, and that she intended to undergo an operation. Her heart was bad and she feared she would die with a stigma against her name, she said, according to Pearsons' previous testimony.

He explained he had been to Indianapolis, Lafayette, and Louisville and obtained the photostatic copies, which he identified, pointing out the signatures, "Mr. and Mrs. H. Pearsons, Chicago," as his own handwriting. They shared "an ordinary room" in the Hotel Lincoln, Indianapolis, a "first class hotel"; a room in the Hotel Fowler, Lafayette, and a room in the Cortland hotel, Louisville, he said.

Charges Fish Alienated Her Husband's Affections

Mrs. Mary Janousek, 816 West Garfield boulevard, charged yesterday that her husband, Joseph, lavished his attentions on 50 tanks of tropical fish which he kept in their home, and failed to show her the proper affection. The charges were contained in a bill for divorce filed in the Superior court by Attorney Victor Froehlich. Mrs. Janousek asked the custody of her daughter, Maria, 17 years old.

COURT ENJOINS HUSBAND FROM ILLICIT ROMANCE

Forbids Him to See Girl Again.

Upon the appeal of a wife, Superior Judge Harry B. Miller yesterday stepped between a man and his alleged mistress after the latter had refused to end a clandestine relationship which had broken up a home. He issued an injunction order restraining the two from seeing or communicating with each other pending the hearing of the wife's bill for separate maintenance.

The wife is Mrs. Della L. Dunham, 38 years old, 344 South Maple avenue, Oak Park, who recently filed suit against her husband, Henry, 42 years old, a wealthy wholesale merchant. In her bill she alleged that he deserted her on last Jan. 3 to live with Miss Lorretta Gilborne, 22 years old, 4342 Drexel boulevard.

Goes to See Girl.

When she discovered the name of the young woman, Mrs. Dunham recited in the bill, she went to the girl's home and asked her to cease seeing her husband. She spoke of her 11 year old daughter, Louise, she asserted, but her pleas were disregarded.

In appealing to the protection of the court through her attorney, Robert E. Cantwell yesterday, Mrs. Dunham explained that her husband and Miss Gilborne had posed as married and had been living with the girl's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry B. Gilborne.

She said that she had gone to the girl's home to find that both she and Dunham were on a business trip to El Paso, Tex. Miss Gilborne's parents telegraphed to their daughter asking her to return home immediately. When the girl arrived she and Mrs. Dunham were brought together.

Refuses to End Relation.

Miss Gilborne, according to Mrs. Dunham, admitted that the marriage had never taken place, but she refused to promise to end the relationship with Dunham.

After hearing the testimony Judge Miller said: It is a general rule of law that courts of equity may enjoin only where the property rights of individuals are at stake. However, both Georgia and Texas courts have set a precedent in holding that the rights of a mother and child to the love and protection of a husband and father are more vital than tangible property. It is on this basis that I will issue the order."

The writ of injunction was served on Miss Gilborne by a deputy sheriff two hours later, when she appeared at her home. Dunham, unaware of the proceedings, is motoring to Chicago from Texas.

At the suggestion of Attorney Cantwell, the court issued a second injunction to restrain Dunham from disposing of bonds which he has placed in a safety deposit vault in the Madison-Kedzie State bank.

Police Fail to Disclose Motive in Laundry Bomb

CRIMINAL COURT.

Phillip Zwerkowski, larceny, sentenced to 1 to 20 years in the penitentiary by Judge Walter T. Stanton.

An investigation yesterday by the Shakespeare avenue police failed to disclose any clews into the bombing earlier in the day of the G. A. R. laundry, 3122 Armitage avenue, which caused damage estimated at $5,000. Albert Severinghaus, former vice president of the school board, the owner of the laundry, told Capt. James Fleming that three months ago he withdrew his membership from the Chicago Laundry Owners' association, but said he was satisfied that had nothing to do with the attack. He has had no union difficulties, he said.

COLDS

RUB Musterole well into your chest and throat—almost instantly you feel easier. Repeat the Musterole-rub once an hour for five hours . . . what a glorious relief!

Those good old-fashioned cold remedies—oil of mustard, menthol, camphor—are mixed with other valuable ingredients in Musterole to make it what doctors call a "counter-irritant" because it gets action and is not just a salve.

It penetrates and stimulates blood circulation and helps to draw out infection and pain. Used by millions for 20 years. Recommended by many doctors and nurses. All druggists.

To Mothers—Musterole is also made in milder form for babies and small children. Ask for Children's Musterole.

BRITAIN SAVES ON MILITARY FORCE, BUT NOT ON SHIPS

Leaves Navy Building Program Alone.

LONDON, March 3.—(AP)—Great Britain today tentatively sliced $18,342,036 off the cost of her army, navy, and air force for 1932, but left her naval construction program at last year's level.

Total expenditures for the three branches of the service were estimated in a government statement at £104,364,300 [about $373,188,064], a reduction of £5,270,700.

This announcement was lumped in with estimates of civil service and revenue department costs, showing that the armed forces, and the two civil departments must lop off a total of £12,857,360 [$44,743,632.80] if government estimates are followed.

Cut Navy Personnel.

The navy estimate called for an expenditure of £50,476,300 [$175,657,524], a decrease of £1,128,700 [$3,927,876]. Most of this was accounted for in a decrease in wage allotments and similar expenses to the tune of £1,059,000 [$3,685,320]. An average personnel of 91,410, a decrease of 2,240 men, was provided for.

The army estimate was £36,488,000 [$126,978,240], taking the biggest cut of the three services, £3,442,000 [$11,978,160].

The air force was allotted £17,400,000, a decrease of £700,000, or, translated into dollars, $70,552,000 and $2,436,000 respectively in estimate and decrease.

Construction Program Same.

The new naval construction program contains little change from last year's. Two cruisers of the Leander class top the list, with one of the Arethusa class (5,000 to 6,000 tons). Also are included one destroyer leader and eight destroyers, four sloops, three submarines, one shallow draft gunboat, one destroyer depot ship, and the following small craft:

One boom defense vessel, one tug, two tenders, and three lighters.

The announcement of naval estimates was coupled with a warning from Sir Bolton Eyres-Monsell, first lord of the admiralty, that the total expenditure must not be regarded as "adequate provision for the navy's needs."

Lillian Davies, Actress of British Music Shows, Dies

MANCHESTER, England, March 3.—(AP)—Lillian Davies, 37, noted British actress, died at a nursing home here today where she underwent an operation three weeks ago. Miss Davies' greatest success was as Polly in the revival of "The Beggar's Opera" in 1922. She went to New York in October, 1926, remaining in the United States until 1927.

JOE M. BROWN, EX-GOVERNOR OF GEORGIA, DIES

Marietta, Ga., March 3.—(AP)—Former Gov. Joseph M. Brown, whose long political duel with Hoke Smith, likewise an ex-governor and former senator, was an epic of Georgia politics, died today in his eighty-first year.

The old political enemies were not reconciled until 1928, when they buried their personal differences and joined in support of Alfred E. Smith for the presidency. Hoke Smith died last summer.

William Holden, Veteran Actor, Dies in His Sleep

Hollywood, Cal., March 3.—[Special.]—Motion picture celebrities will conduct burial services tomorrow for William Holden, veteran actor, who succumbed to a paralytic stroke in his sleep last night. He had been ill a year. He began his stage career 46 years ago at the age of 13, interrupted it to be graduated from the University of Rochester, and for 13 years was a star on Broadway. He appeared in 20 films since entering the movies in 1928. He is survived by his widow and a daughter.

BLOOMINGTON, Ind.—(AP)—Fred Matthews, 72, president of the Matthews Brothers Stone company, died following a stroke of paralysis.

FORT MYERS, Fla.—(AP)—Charles John Miller, 55, formerly of Joliet, Ill., died at his residence after a long illness. The body will be sent to Joliet for burial.

EUGENE D'ALBERT, FAMOUS PIANIST, LISZT PUPIL, DIES

RIGA, Latvia, March 3.—(AP)—Eugene D'Albert, 68, Anglo-German composer and pianist, died here today. D'Albert, who had been described as "the world's most married man genius," came to Riga to obtain a divorce from his eighth wife, Hilda Feis D'Albert. His home was at Lugano, Switzerland.

He was world famous as an interpreter of Bach, Brahms, and Beethoven, and made many tours of the United States.

D'Albert, who once studied under Liszt at Weimer, won renown as the composer of 16 operas. The most popular of these probably is "The Black Orchid," based on a story of bootlegging in New York.

IT'S EASY TO SEE...WHY ACCURATE TUBES
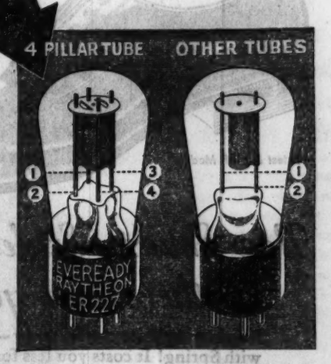
MAKE A DIFFERENCE



Notice the four strong pillars. With this solid foundation the fragile parts cannot move a hair's breadth from their fixed position. All other tubes have only a two-pillar foundation. Two supports instead of four! Jolts, bumps and vibration often impair their vital accuracy.

IF YOU want a sharp, clear photograph, you make sure your camera is accurately focused . . . or if you want the exact time, you consult an accurate watch. In the same way, if you want faithful reception from your radio, with each musical note strong, true and well-rounded, with speech that is living instead of metallic and harsh, be sure to use tubes which you know are accurate.

EVEREADY RAYTHEON 4-PILLAR TUBES have rigid strength, to safeguard their vital accuracy. Four sturdy pillars anchor their elements in place, one at each corner of a square. Ordinary tubes use only two supports . . . and their elements are easily jolted out of position by the knocks and vibration of handling and usage.

Your dealer can demonstrate the superiority of 4-pillar tubes. Compare them tube for tube with others, and the difference is amazing. But to realize what an enormous improvement they can make in a radio, install a complete set of 4-pillar tubes . . . then listen!

Eveready Raytheon Tubes are Quick Heaters. Don't be fooled by tubes of the old, slow-heater type with which the market is flooded. A modern tube should heat up in 10 seconds or less. Time it yourself!

Miss Gizycka Writes Vivid First Novel

'House of Violence' Done in Modern Manner.

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

"The House of Violence," by Felicia Gizycka. [Scribners.] Published today.

A FIRST novel of vitality and a strange vividness of insight into minds is published today. It is the work of Felicia Gizycka, the daughter of Eleanor Medill Patterson, who herself did a brilliant first novel in "Glass Houses" under the name of Eleanor Gizycka. Felicia Gizycka has chosen a peculiarly modern technique with which to tell her peculiarly modern story. Like all of modern art in whatever form it is shorn of all the "prettifying" rococo. It is concerned with the actual bones of the subject, the skeleton of man as the artist sees it articulating underneath all of the surface flesh and expression. The "bones" of man's and woman's sentient life are his or her inmost thoughts, spoken only to himself or herself.

Felicia Gizycka has chosen to portray her characters mostly through their own unspoken thoughts, with only as many narrated actual events as are vital to the explanation of the character's thoughts. It is a modern technique which gives a rare reality to a book. It is not a facile technique, either for the author or the reader, but the net result of its use for both of them is a reality which is difficult to get in any other way, even by the most minutely detailed description. "The House of Violence" has strength that is unusual in a first novel. The people in it are real.

Characteristic of Modern Life.

To the ordinary reader most of them will be rather unpleasant. Too much money, too much drink, too much "violence" of all sorts as is characteristic of modern life. But in the "violences" of modern life honesty and frankness are no less evident than overindulgence. The light and air which good modern architecture has let into houses is paralleled by the light and air which good modern novelists let into their judgment of their characters. There are no dark unexplored corners in the minds and motives of really modern heroes and heroines. However unpleasant, however unkind they may be, the modern novelist sees them for exactly what they are without reservations.

The two main characters in "The House of Violence" are a mother and a daughter, the mother disintegrating, the daughter integrating before the reader's eyes. There is no sentimentality about the author's picture of those two phenomena. There is not one emotion in the book that is sentimentalized. Before the opening of the story Marcia (who is to become the mother in the book) had loved the young man who was engaged to her sister. He had loved her. But together they had given their love to the sister. The book opens with the double wedding of Marcia's sister to the man Marcia loved and of Marcia to his brother. On their wedding night Marcia left her husband in a drunken stupor and John left his wife in a fury, and they drank themselves into forgetfulness of the fate which faced them. On the events of that night some of the "violence" of the next generation turned, for Marcia's sister's son fell in love with Marcia's daughter, and the question of their relationship is the cause of tragedy.

Life Series of Violent Affairs.

Marcia, unable to stand life with her drunken husband, left him and her two children, and life became for her just one series of violent affairs, all without love. The elder of the children has a violent life with her father, who beats her (the mildest of his tortures of her) after a young childhood of cruel loneliness. She would like to kill her father, and tells him so, often. As a person neither the mother nor the daughter is an alluring fireside companion, and yet, with the author's skill in sharing their thoughts with the reader, the reader understands them and has a deep sympathy for them. The child especially pulls at the reader's heartstrings, and that, I insist, is no mean accomplishment on the part of an author who never writes one sentimental word about a character and preserves a complete detachment from all of them. "The House of Violence" is an interesting and intriguing piece of work, and, as a first novel, offers brilliant promise for the author's future.

Edna Ferber Returns.

A picture postcard from Edna Ferber from Mexico, with one of the gargoyles from an Aztec temple grinding its stone teeth at you, had written on it in her nice sprawly writing, "This is a picture of one of the local boys." And then not long afterward she arrived herself, for two days, with a ticket on the Ward line boat from Vera Cruz to Havana in her pocket, but just so eager to have the sight and the feel of the west again that she couldn't take the boat.

Feathered Hats

Miss Jane Rowe and Miss Catharine Noyes both had perky feathers adorning their wee hats the day the photographer met them on Michigan avenue near Orchestra hall. Miss Rowe, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edgar C. Rowe of 33 East Division street, spent last winter working in Boston, but this winter she is at home, devoting herself to Junior League work. Miss Noyes, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Marshall Paul Noyes of 19 Scott street, is doing her charitable work this winter with Mrs. Frank D. Montgomery's clothing committee of the United Charities. Laud Mary McDowell in Several Languages at Gym Dedication

Miss Mary McDowell was praised in several languages and by foreign born mothers and university professors alike last night for her 37 years of work in the University of Chicago settlement in the "back of the yards" district. The occasion was the dedication of the new $40,000 settlement gymnasium, 4630 Gross avenue, which replaces the old gymnasium whose roof fell in 16 months ago.

The history of the settlement for the last 38 years, when he became active in its support, shortly after it was founded by University of Chicago professors, was sketched in humorous vein by Dean Shailer Mathews.

"Sociologists were then in that idealistic state in which they thought they could reform the world," Dean Mathews said, "rather than functioning as sociologists now do in obtaining information about the world as it ought not to be.

"They thought that they should be good, and you and I should be good; in fact, that every one should be good—if they could get some one else to finance the goodness. So in the name of faith, hope and some one else's charity they set out.

"Like all reformers, they had to have some one do the work for them, so they went to Miss Jane Addams and with her usual insight she suggested Miss McDowell.

"In 1894, I came into relationship with the settlement. With the romantic interest of inexperience, I brought Mrs. Mathews with me to find this Elysium. After considerable of what would today be called research we found it—in four rooms of a second floor in a tenement on the alley near here. One large room was for the babies—in those days they still had babies."

President Robert Maynard Hutchins of the university said the settlement symbolized the university's interest in the welfare of mankind.

Declares Romances of Movies Prevent Disruption of Homes

Hollywood, Cal., March 3.—(AP)—Movie heroes, says Adela Rogers St. Johns-Hyland, have prevented many a home from breaking up.

It is Mrs. Hyland's opinion that the John Barrymores, the Richard Dixes, the Clark Gables, the Gary Coopers, and the rest provide the romance lacking in the average marriage. To a woman who leads a drab domestic existence, a few moments of screen romance are godsends.

Mrs. Hyland, who this week assumed the post of story adviser for Radio Pictures—her job being to watch the woman's angle—believes this substitute romance is a healthy illusion.

"This typical woman goes back home satisfied after her yearning for romance has been gratified," Mrs. Hyland continued. "She becomes tolerant of those economic and social equations which prevent a continuation of romance late in marriage because pictures and their heroes feed her emotional craving."

De Paul Little Theater Presents Religious Drama

"Pilate's Daughter," a religious drama, was presented last night at the Little Theater of De Paul university at 64 East Lake street. The play was under the direction of David Itkin. It will be presented each Tuesday, Thursday, and Saturday night until March 20.

Smart Dresses at Low Prices Cure for Blues

Inexpensive Frocks Offer Snap and Style.

BY RHEA SEEGER.

WHEN Chicago shops start something they certainly do things in a grand manner, for instance, in this matter of smart, inexpensive dresses for the rich little poor girls as well as the poor little rich girls. Even Scotch budgets seem munificent these days after a good shopping trip around the town. After you select one, or even two, dresses, and survive the shock of such modest prices for more-than-good-looking clothes, you'll still have enough left in the buying bag to match them with a hat and coat, to say nothing of such necessary extras as hosiery, jewelry, and a new handbag.

This is the time to buy, for it's a chance in a lifetime to dress like you had a million dollars instead of the same old sadly restricted allowance that has, to put it mildly, certainly cramped your style.

And these inexpensive frocks have plenty of snap and style, models that are guaranteed to turn the most shrinking soul into a dangerous siren for various small sums considerably under your weekly stipend, only you are sure it isn't a stipend, just the piffling small income of a wage slave.

Bright Prints the Best Buys.

A collection of bright colored silk prints and sheer wools seem to be the best buys in one of these shops that have tried to solve the troubles of the average crushed and undernourished clothes allowance. These dresses are crisp and delightfully new and different. The prints are inevitably chaperoned by a plain, one colored jacket, but that's another advantage, for the months ahead when you can wear it with a renewed difference as a very smart suit.

But the smartest way to make your mark in the fashion world is to go about in stripes, not the confining sort of stripes that inspired the prison song, but stripes that are decorative streaks of dark color against a preferably plain white or cream colored background. Dresses of this stripe must have been planned, solved, and proved by a geometrical genius, it's probably the only time the feminine mind has understood the isosceles triangle motif, or the rare instance when an oblong or square has been used as important segments of a fashionable frock.

Offer Tailored Symmetry.

You can buy tailored symmetry in a cleverly put together dress of brown and white striped sheer wool, the skirt and a good portion of the blouse being on the up and up, but the center pieces decided to get across with their smartness in a lateral direction, which proves that no matter how you start the result will be still going strong with stripes. As a generous reward for all this rectitude, white pique collar and cuffs are bestowed as a fitting finish, together with a wide brown patent leather belt.

Doubling the effect of more stripes, an extremely good looking two piece dress stops the stripes of the sleeves at the elbow. The skirt is flared and is cut with the lines forming a V in the front and the back of the skirt. The ground work for these tweedy mixture and colored stripes is a white material that is rough and uneven in weave. Startling smartness is attained with perky brilliant red patent leather bows on the blouse and a red leather belt.

All the newest dresses in this shop are very chic and very modestly priced and will likely help cure the depression, at least locally.

Two Busy Debs

The Misses Myra Little and Peggy Glidden are among the Junior Leaguers working hard just now collecting old clothes for the annual spring second hand clothes sale the provisional members of the league will hold on March 17. Miss Little is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles G. Little of Evanston, and Miss Glidden is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry L. Glidden of Highland Park. Both girls were debutantes of the last season. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

Mother of Prince Lennart Arrives to Attend Wedding

SOUTHAMPTON, England, March 3.—(AP)—The young Swedish prince, Lennart, who renounced royal prerogatives to wed a commoner, got a happy approval from his mother, Grand Duchess Marie Pavlovna of Russia, who arrived from America aboard the Europa today.

"I've come over to hear wedding bells," the grand duchess told her son at the gangplank.

Miss Karin Nisswandt, the prince's sweetheart, was unable to come from London on account of a cold.

The young couple arrived from Sweden recently when their marriage was forbidden by the king. They plan to be married at the register office in London within a fortnight.

Two Chicago Girls Score Big Success in Paris Opera Ballet

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, March 3.—"The Ballet Americain," or maybe it ought to be called the "Ballet Chicagoan," was officially discovered tonight by the French public with the appearance at the Paris opera of the Oukrainsky ballet, including the Chicago girls Ruth Buchanan and Lenora Felden. The crowded house thundered its applause, giving particular attention to Ruth in a difficult butterfly dance and to Lenora in a graceful number called "Bee."

Royalty in England See Movie Story of Record Climb

[Copyright: 1932: By the New York Times.]

LONDON, March 3.—The king and queen today saw a film record of the British Kamet expedition. It was shown to them by Frank S. Smythe, leader of the expedition, in the big ballroom on the first floor of the palace, converted into a temporary theater with darkened windows. Princess Louise, the duchess of Argyll, Prince and Princess Arthur of Connaught and other members of the royal family attended. The film was rejected by British film distributors as unsuitable here. They suggested a "love interest" would have improved it. It is a breathless epic of the adventurous ascent of the highest summit yet reached by man.

Audience Yells Disgust at Play Written by Mussolini

BUENOS AIRES, March 3.—(AP)—Premier Benito Mussolini's play, "One Hundred Days," or in Italian, "Campo De Maggio," nearly caused a riot when it was staged for the first time in a local theater last night. Part of the audience tried to halt the production with cries of disgust, but the police established order. The play deals with the life of Napoleon between his escape from Elba and the battle of Waterloo.

Women Voters' League Enjoys Exciting Talks on County Board

Feminine Commissioners Describe Problems at Luncheon of North Shore Group.

BY JUDITH CASS.

NO ONE minded waiting for the women commissioners who were late at the luncheon given for them yesterday by the Lake Shore League of Women Voters for not only did they arrive almost as soon as the last bite of cherry tart had been consumed—the proper time for speech making—but it was sort of exciting to be awaiting women who were sitting in on such an important thing as fixing the 1932 budget for Cook county.

And it was more exciting when Miss Amelia Sears and Mrs. Glenn E. Plumb did arrive for along with all the other interesting information they gave us, Miss Sears frankly admitted that she felt it was hopeless to expect the budget to be passed before the election, and getting that first-hand information was almost like being at the county board meeting, which must be fairly exciting, judging by the accounts of it that have been in the papers these last few weeks.

Miss Sears talked about the work of the board in making and cutting the 1932 budget, answered questions and told something of the bureau of public welfare, which has just taken over the offices of the Joint Emergency Relief commission and will administrate all unemployment relief in Cook county.

Mrs. Plumb spoke particularly of the special departments of the Cook County School of Nursing, which she said probably would come under the ax in the economy budget.

Speakers Hasten to Conference.

Mrs. Edward J. Fleming and Miss Mary McEnerney were not at the luncheon, the latter being ill and the other detained by a conference with Judge Bartelme. Miss Sears and Mrs. Plumb had to hurry away to another session of the board so Miss Sears ate while Mrs. Plumb talked and then Mrs. Plumb enjoyed the creamed, stuffed eggs au gratin, tomato aspic salad, fluffy rolls, cherry tart, and coffee which the Fortnightly served for luncheon.

Mrs. Augustus A. Carpenter presided and made several announcements, including one about the need for workers at the precinct headquarters for the election which seemed to interest some of the young voters considerably when it was added that the pay was $10 a day! Mrs. Savilla Millis Simons, public affairs secretary of the Cook County League of Women Voters, also spoke—very interestingly, too—about the work of the Cook county board before the commissioners came. Some of those at the luncheon were Mrs. William S. Ennis, Mrs. Murry Nelson, Miss Paula Wilms, who had the important job of collecting the money at the door, Mrs. John Stuart Coonley, Mrs. John V. Farwell, Mrs. Frederick W. Upham, Mrs. William H. Hubbard, Mrs. Carroll H. Sudler, Miss Marie Rozet, Mrs. Frank J. Loesch, Mrs. Gerhardt Meyne, Mrs. William G. Hibbard, Mrs. Edward R. Litsinger and her daughter, Mrs. W. Calhoun Smith, Mrs. Edward A. Leight, Mrs. Emanuel J. Senn, Mrs. Ralph C. Otis, Mrs. William Butler, Mrs. William P. Conger, Mrs. Edwin Brand, and Mrs. George Packard.

Scribblers Meet Today.

Miss Helen Sargent will be hostess this morning at the residence of her mother, Mrs. George H. Sargent, of 1711 Hinman avenue, Evanston, to the Scribblers, that little organization of writers in the Evanston Junior league which meets at Miss Sargent's on the first Friday of every month to write "fillers" for Sparks, the Evanston J. L. publication, and for the National Junior League magazine. Some of the Scribblers are Mrs. Horatio Rogers, Mrs. Arthur W. Rogers, Mrs. Gordon Whitney, Mrs. Anan Raymond, and Mrs. J. Horton Fall III.

A popular place for tea this afternoon after the Symphony concert—it is unthinkable that Chicago will not have the concerts next winter, isn't it?—will be the Arts club, for two exhibitions are being opened this afternoon from 4 to 6 and both artists will be there to meet and to be met by the members and their guests. The artists are Isamu Noguchi and H. E. Schnakenberg.

Another interesting tea party this afternoon will be the one that Mrs. Murry Nelson is giving at the Woman's City club for Mrs. Walter Cavanaugh and the Misses Josephine Schain and Alice Conway, directors of the Girl Scouts, at 4 o'clock. Mrs. Francis R. Dickinson, Mrs. Samuel Insull Jr., Mrs. Thomas E. Roberts, Mrs. F. W. Sanborn, and Mrs. Charles Yeomans will be among those assisting Mrs. Nelson.

Mr. and Mrs. Randolph Owsley are giving a buffet supper tonight for about 60 at their Lake Forest residence, after which the party will adjourn to the roller skating rink at the Great Lakes.

Mrs. Charles S. Dewey announces a violin-cello concert by Madeline Monnier at noon on Saturday for the members of the Alliance Française.

Change Place of Opera Tea.

Mrs. Leonard O. Karcher's children are going through a siege with chicken pox, so the musical and tea of the American Opera society which was to have been held on Sunday at her residence will be held instead at the Three Arts club, 1300 North Dearborn street.

Victor Elting will preside, and Mrs. Mitchell D. Follansbee is chairman of reservations for the annual luncheon of the League of Nations association to be held next Monday at 12:30 o'clock at the Hotel La Salle. Ben M. Cherrington, head of the University of Denver Foundation of Social Sciences, who has just returned from the disarmament conference at Geneva, will speak. Among those who have made reservations are the George Packards, Mrs. Robert B. Gregory, Miss Dorothy Stirling, Miss Katherine Ewing, Mrs. Ralph Winston, and Prof. and Mrs. Quincy Wright.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter B. Wolf of 209 Lake Shore drive have gone east for a week of visits in New York and Philadelphia.

Miss Priscilla Guthrie, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Brandon Guthrie of Winnetka, has returned from a visit in Washington, D. C., with William P. McCracken Jr., former assistant secretary of commerce for aviation, and Mrs. McCracken.

News from Palm Beach.

From Palm Beach comes word that the Volney Fosters have gone to Nassau after a fortnight's visit with Mr. and Mrs. George A. McKinlock. And a very gay visit it was, too, for the McKinlocks and all their friends kept the social calendar of the Fosters full. Mrs. Foster's parents, Mr. and Mrs. George White Baxter, and the Fosters' daughter, Mrs. Conde Nast, and Mr. Nast also were in Palm Beach and there was much entertaining for the entire family.

Mrs. Frederic McLaughlin [Irene Castle] of Lake Forest is now in Palm Beach, the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Somers Roche. The Herbert McLaughlins are visiting Mrs. William Waller Jr., whose daughter, Virginia, left Palm Beach Wednesday to sail tomorrow from New York with her aunt and cousin, Mrs. Robert C. Wheeler and Miss Winifred Wheeler, for Egypt, to be gone until late spring. Miss Betty Smith, daughter of the Harold C. Smiths, who has been a member of the Waller house party, left yesterday, but Miss Louise Brewer, daughter of the E. Harris Brewers and sister of Mrs. Herbert McLaughlin, will remain with Mrs. Waller throughout the season.

Mr. and Mrs. George F. Baker Jr. of Evanston will arrive in Palm Beach Sunday to be the house guests for a fortnight of Mr. and Mrs. Henry H. Windsor Jr., and after the Bakers leave the John Elliott Warners of Winnetka, who now are at the Brazilian Court, will visit the Windsors. Mrs. Windsor made one of her few public appearances as a singer since her marriage last night night at the Kiwanis club concert for the benefit of the Underprivileged Children of Palm Beach County.

Franklin B. Smith and his son, Durand Smith, have joined Mrs. Smith at their Palm Beach villa, and Mrs. Kay Wood, who has been visiting Mrs. Joseph B. Long at the Everglades club, has returned north. Mr. and Mrs. John F. L. Curtis have joined the Chicago colony at the Breakers.

Claudia Muzio Goes to South.

Mme. Claudia Muzio of the Chicago Civic opera, who has been at the Pearson hotel for a few days between concerts, departed yesterday for Palm Beach for a concert engagement on Monday. She will sail on the 14th for Rome, where she has a month's contract, and probably will remain in Europe until she returns to Chicago for the opening of our opera season next fall.

As Mr. Witherspoon told the Friends of Opera on Wednesday, there is no question about the return of the glorious voiced Muzio nor of any of the other songbirds. Their loyalty to the Chicago Opera company is one of the chief incentives for the Friends of Opera drive for the money needed to guarantee next season's opera.

Berta Ochsner (Mrs. Douglas Gordon Campbell in private life) is to give her annual dance-concert on Friday evening, March 18, at the Goodman theater. This will be Miss Ochsner's only appearance in her native city this year, as she will leave shortly afterward for a tour on the western coast. Last week she supervised and presented the "Ballet of the Mirrors" by the University of Chicago Tower Players.

John McCormack to Give Benefit Concert April 3

On Sunday afternoon, April 3, John McCormack will give a concert at the Chicago Civic Opera house for the benefit of the John B. Murphy Hospital clinic and the Sisters of Mercy. Mrs. George W. Mahoney is general chairman of arrangements. Mrs. Edward F. Garraghan is in charge of the box committee. Ticket chairmen include Mrs. A. Cosmos Garvy, north side; Mrs. Edward M. Brown, south side; Mrs. Charles R. Lahey, west side; Mrs. Thelma Sorenson, Riverside; Mrs. Robert Helz, Milwaukee.

WASHINGTON SOCIETY

Washington, D. C., March 3.—[Special.]—Vice President Curtis was the guest for whom the Danish minister and Mme. Wadsted entertained a large company at dinner tonight at the Mayflower.

The Italian ambassador was the guest for whom the Czecho-Slovakian minister and Mme. Veverka entertained at dinner tonight.

Mrs. James Couzens, wife of the senator from Michigan, gave a tea this afternoon in compliment to their daughters, Mrs. William E. Yaw of Detroit and Mrs. William Jeffries Chewning Jr. of Washington.

Mrs. Lowell Fletcher Hobart was the honor guest at luncheon today of the District of Columbia D. A. R. Mrs. Ruth Bryan Owen was a guest and made a speech to the company.

NEW YORK SOCIETY

New York, March 3.—[Special.]—Mrs. Alexander C. Barker sailed on the President Roosevelt to pass several weeks in France and Italy.

Mrs. John A. Logan will sail tomorrow on the Roma.

Mrs. James Roosevelt will give a reception on March 8 at her city residence for Mr. and Mrs. Elliott Roosevelt, who were married on Jan. 16 at Bryn Bawr.

Mrs. Archibald Rogers, Mrs. Jerome Napoleon Bonaparte and Mrs. Clarence H. Young were among those who gave luncheons at the Hotel Pierre.

Mr. and Mrs. John J. Watson will return next Sunday from their plantation, Hickory Grove, near Leesburg, Ga.

8 NATIONS SHIP PRODUCE TO FEED CHICAGO MARKET

45 States Contribute to Midwest Diners.

BY EVERETT SWINGLE.

Forty-five states and eight other countries contributed fresh fruit and vegetable delicacies for Chicago's three meals a day during 1931 and if it hadn't been that the California grape crop was less than normal the total amount consumed here likely would have been just as many or more carloads than in previous years.

In a survey of Chicago's South Water market, second largest in the world, a tabulation just completed indicates the huge volume in which produce rolled into Chicago by rail and truck in the twelve months of 1931. If one had been some sort of a traffic expert and could have brought these fruits and vegetables into the city in 50 car trains, there would have been 2,587. And even then there would have been a special train to take care of some additional 13 carloads of turnip greens, 17 of Brussels sprouts, and 4 of casaba melons.

Much Is Reshipped.

Of course, Chicagoans didn't eat quite all of this, for approximately 40 per cent of the 129,384 carloads were sent on their way out of Chicago after wholesale dealers here had purchased sufficient for the city and suburban needs.

Chicago attracts fruits and vegetables from 45 of the 48 states in this country and receives sizeable shipments from eight other countries.

China sends us peanuts, though not very many of them, as our own southern states ship us these "goobers" by the hundreds of carloads. But look at the list for Cuba, whence come ordinarily out of season foods such as cucumbers and tomatoes in January, February, and March, as well as pineapples, grapefruit, oranges, mixed citrus shipments, potatoes, watermelons, and eggplant.

Market for World.

From the Argentine we get grapes in April and May and honeydew melons. Tomatoes are imported from the Bahama islands; Mexico sends us garlic, peas, tomatoes, peppers, and beans; Porto Rico, grapefruit; Spain, onions; and Canada, rutabagas and turnips, potatoes and a sideline of Christmas trees, the latter hardly edible but highly ornamental.

To those unacquainted with fruits and vegetables except through introductions at the table, a new game might be introduced amidst ever popular guessing contests, the subject in question being, "What foods in 1931 were most popular in Chicago?" excluding the well known potato, which, like Abou Ben Adhem, "led all the rest."

Potatoes in bags and barrels were brought to Chicago last year in amounts totaling 29,937 carlots. But in the rest of the list of those eaten in large quantities, other commodities offer the guesser a problem. It seems that next to potatoes, Chicagoans consumed 9,937 carloads of grapes in one form or another.

Lettuce Comes Third.

Third was lettuce, 8,648 carlots; fourth, apples, 8,608 carlots; fifth, oranges, 8,430 carlots; bananas, 6,345; watermelons, 5,007; peaches, 4,726; tomatoes, 4,409; cantaloupes, 3,488; cabbage, 3,440; onions, 3,032.

From two carlots of romaine to more than 2,000 of such commodities as cauliflower, celery, grapefruit, and pears, the remainder of the list would be a guide to most any housewife distressed with the necessity of offering a variety for the table.

There are anise, apricots, artichokes, asparagus, avocados, beans, beets, blackberries, blueberries, broccoli, Brussels sprouts, casabas, cherries, chicory, collards, green corn, cranberries, cucumbers, currants, dewberries, eggplant, escarole, honeyball melons, honeydew melons, garlic, kale, limes, mustard greens, nectarines, okra, parsley, persimmons, plums, pomegranates, radishes, raspberries, rhubarb, rutabagas and turnips, shallots, spinach, strawberries, sweet potatoes, squash, tangerines, and the previously mentioned turnip greens.

Some of these are most commonly on the market when "homegrown" supplies are available in nearby counties and states, while those imported from other countries are brought here usually because at the time of the year they are available the nearby growers find production unseasonable for them.

California has many crops to ship to Chicago each of the 12 months. Last year a total of 37,331 carlots, or slightly less than a fourth of all receipts here, were from California. Other states, whose products are consumed here in order of importance, are Idaho, potatoes, apples, lettuce, onions, peas, spinach, peaches, pears, and plums; Wisconsin, potatoes, cabbage, onions; Florida, green vegetables, citrus fruits, strawberries; Texas, citrus fruits, potatoes, onions, cabbage, early sweet corn; Washington, apples, rhubarb, potatoes, cherries, asparagus, apricots, lettuce, onions, peas, spinach, pears.

SEASONING A-PLENTY IN 50 GARLIC KNOBS

Those who use garlic for seasoning likely know that it is purchased in retail stores "by the knob." Henry Ewert, a South Water market merchant, finds 50 such knobs in this string. Under his right arm he holds some of the fashionable leeks. In the foreground at the left are some icicle radishes, next some parsley, celery root, spinach, parsley root and green onions. More garlic hangs on the barrel edge.

FOOD SPECIALIST SUGGESTS DISHES FOR LENTEN SEASON

One dish meals are a Lenten device to provide simplicity with wholesomeness and appetite appeal in meals that omit meat.

Among the suggestions offered by Inez M. Hobart, foods specialist of the University of Minnesota, are such one dish preparations as shirred eggs with rice and tomato, macaroni ring with carrots and celery, or baked lima beans with tomatoes. In any menu where meat is omitted, she says, the meat should be replaced with generous amounts of milk, eggs, cheese, fish, legumes and nutmeats.

DROUGHT IS HELD ONLY CHANCE FOR DAIRY FARMERS

Another drought is the only possibility for higher prices for dairy products, is the prediction of H. A. Ross, speaker at a recent farmers' meeting at Cornell college, Ithaca, N. Y.

His statement holds cheerful news for food shoppers, although it failed to add encouragement to the farmers.

Over production of milk finds butter storage supplies increasing rather than decreasing, with farmers of the nation keeping 11.8 per cent more cows than in 1929, according to Mr. Ross, representative of a dairy products manufacturer.

Pot Roast and Veal Sell at Attractive Prices

In its regular weekly report issued for the guidance of consumers, the committee on marketing information of the Meat Council of Chicago states:

"Pot roast of beef and shoulder roast of veal represent the best meat buys over the coming week-end. Pot roast is selling in Chicago retail meat stores now at prices around 20 per cent lower than those prevailing a year ago, while fore quarter veal is nearly a third lower than at the same time in 1931."

CHILLY? THEN TRY HOT CHOCOLATE; IT WARMS YOU UP

BY FLORA MARTIN.

When looking around for a warming beverage to counteract that chilly feeling after braving the March winds, stop a minute and consider hot chocolate. You'll find it a worthy substitute for one of those daily cups of tea or coffee, at whose pedestals most of us worship far too often.

There are probably few of you who know much about the early history of chocolate which the United States department of agriculture avers was first used by the Indians. Whatever else is checked against Cortez, the Spanish conqueror, at least he has to his credit the spreading of the use of chocolate in the old world some 400 years ago.

How It Came About.

It all came about when he led his little army into the valley of Mexico and from the Indians there learned of a new food, chocolate, which they made from the coco beans. From the chocolate they made what the Spaniards dubbed a delicious beverage of which it is reported Montezuma was a great advocate.

Having acquired the secret of making this beverage, the Spaniards hoarded their recipe, trying to keep it from the rest of the world. But to no avail, for soon the chocolate vogue spread through the wealthy circles in France, England, and other European countries.

And It's Still Popular.

Four hundred years of usage has not decreased the popularity of this blue blooded beverage in the least, for it still plays an important part in the modern age. There are few cooks who are not thoroughly familiar with the method of making hot chocolate, for it is probably one of the first recipes learned in the early stages of cooking apprenticeship. But cooking directions are seldom amiss, especially for those who are just starting to develop their cooking technique. So here are the directions for hot chocolate making:

1 square bitter chocolate.
2 tablespoons sugar.
Few grains salt.
¼ cup hot water.
3 cups milk, scalded.

Cook Ten Minutes.

Melt chocolate over hot water. Add sugar and salt, mixed together, and hot water. Cook over a low flame ten minutes, stirring occasionally to prevent burning. Add hot milk and continue cooking over hot water ten minutes. Whisk with a rotary egg beater before serving. This amount should yield enough for four servings.

Serve it on any informal occasion and above all, don't forget that it very easily fits into the afternoon or midnight supper beverage menu. There's no trick to making hot chocolate, but whatever you do, serve it hot, for there's nothing less appealing than what should be hot chocolate in a lukewarm stage.

Household Hints

Hot water, strong soap, hard rubbing, wringing, and drying in strong direct heat all help shrink knitted woolen materials. Knitted woolens should never be ironed.

Cream soups are a simple way of using left-over vegetables and of meeting the day's milk need.

CARROT IS ROOT STALK AND FRUIT IN FEEDING BRUTE

It's Kindly Vegetable, So Everybody Likes It.

BY IRENE STEYSKAL.

You don't have to be a Peter Rabbit or one of his twin sisters, Flopsy or Mopsy, to enjoy nibbling carrots. All you have to have is the bunny family's discriminating taste for what's good.

There is a lot to be said for the carrot. Its spirit of true democracy, for one thing. Here is a vegetable, to use Mr. Kipling's phrase for it, might consort with kings nor lose the common touch. It's a sort of Sir Lancelot among the turnips, beets, onions, radishes, and potatoes. King Arthur's favorite could never have flaunted in his helmet a jauntier plume than the graceful green glory that crowns the knight-errant of the root vegetable kingdom.

Carrots and Cocoanut.

But that is beside the point. Consider Lancelot, poised and charming, with the elite of the Round Table at Camelot; then in humbler surroundings, still the "kindly man moving among his kind." Consider the carrot, shredded with cocoanut, in company with a lettuce leaf and mayonnaise dressing on a Wedgewood salad plate; then in the center of the kitchen table in a brown crockery bowl of Irish stew, just as succulent, just as satisfying, just as innately excellent.

What is more, carrots are simply full of vitmains. Miss Mary Mead says so. Which reminds me that you can fill them with something else, if you like, by this recipe:

Wash and peel smoothly two large well shaped carrots. Scoop out the inside vein, being careful not to break the shell. Fill with stuffing [the recipe for the stuffing follows] and cover the open ends with oiled paper. Tie the paper in place with a little cord. Brown two tablespoons of chicken fat or butter with a tablespoon of sugar in a sauce pan. Add a little beef broth made with a bouillon cube. Stir until the mixture is smooth. Lay the carrots in the pan carefully and let them stew slowly until half cooked, adding a little more broth from time to time if necessary.

Serve with Sausages.

Smooth a little flour into a few tablespoons of the beef broth and add to the mixture in the sauce pan. Put a few drops of lemon juice on each carrot, and cook until entirely tender. Serve as an entree with small sausages.

Stuffing.

Cook together one small minced onion, one to two tablespoons of butter and chopped meat left-overs—chicken, beef, or veal—using a tablespoon of the meat to each tablespoon of onion, two tablespoons of washed rice, a dash of paprika, a pinch or salt, and a half teaspoon of sugar. When the mixture is browned, add a half cup of beef broth and cook until the rice is soft.

Carrot Sauce.

Carrots can be made into a delicious sauce for meat. It is best served with lamb chops, veal cutlets, or fish. This is the recipe:

Slice fine the outer part of a dozen carrots [three cups], parboil for ten minutes, and drain. Cook gently again, until tender, in a pint of water, adding one teaspoon of salt, one teaspoon sugar, and one-fourth of a teaspoon of white pepper. Add two cups of stale bread crumbs and a quart of veal or chicken broth. Simmer for twenty minutes. Strain through a puree sieve.

FANCY THE EARL GIVEN ONE MADE BY THIS RECIPE

And Yet They Call 'Em Sandwiches.

BY PHYLLIS HAMMOND.

This is the story of the earl of Sandwich, as told to me by an old man with a long white beard. According to the old gent it was not the earl who lived about one hundred years ago that originated the now famous sandwich, but one of his great-great-great-granddaddies. Though historians will contest this point vigorously, I am inclined to believe it; besides, it sounds better, anyway.

The earl lived in Ye Merrie England, and his descendants still live there. He was the sort of chap that any suburban living, commuting, club man of modern times is. In addition, he was round and fat. He was red cheeked and did most verily love a thick cut, juicy steak.

Interrupted Again.

Being a clubby sort of person, he was extremely busy, what with tournaments, round tables, politics, and his horses and hounds. One day the earl was in a terrific hurry. I think he just received a phone call from some loyal henchman or other telling him that unless he got to the polls in double quick time King Arthur's men would get in their dirty work by stuffing the ballots and Merlin would be good for another term as "exalted high hoodwinker."

This information rather took the starch out of the earl's ruff. He had been trying to queer Merlin's act for forty years. Another term and the king would be out in his own corner. There was only one thing that stopped him from grabbing the handiest machine gun—his dinner. Mrs. Earl had just finished broiling a steak. Not an ordinary steak. A thick, juicy, succulent, golden brown, porterhouse steak. If anything was the earl's weakness, it was that. And he not only wanted the steak, he wanted his whole dinner. In short, he was a hungry man.

He Gets His Steak.

The inspiration came while he was buckling on his visor. Then he had to go to work and take off the visor and at last when the "blankety-blank thing" did come off he shouted in a voice that was most noble, "Bring on the steak!"

And it was brought to him by Mrs. Earl herself, who was, I might mention, a subservient little creature.

"Bring on the bread!" was his next command. Accordingly, a great loaf of white bread was brought to him. Then slowly and ever so grandly, for his wife, servants, and all the tenantry were looking on, he drew his sword from its scabbard, slit the loaf lengthwise from end to end, inserted the beloved steak, pressed the whole firmly together, took a large bite, jumped on his snow white charger, and was off to London town, munching as he rode.

And Then He Swore Off.

And that is the origin of the sandwich. When the earl returned home he found every one had taken it up, just like contract bridge. Everywhere you went people served nothing but "sandwiches." So, of course, as is the way with people who start fads or new ideas, he dropped it, and the old earl and his wife were known to eat, as he put it, "three good full meals a day" ever after.

I confess I would have liked to have seen him make a racket of it, copyright and patent the process, and so be able to run his political dabblings with do-de-o-do instead of machine guns. I guess what he did do was best after all, for he was happier jumping in and out of that bunch of soldered tin and off and on his snow white charger than he would have been any day sitting in a brand new office with nothing to do but push buttons.

All of which doesn't lead me away from sandwiches. Whether the legendary tale of the earl of Sandwich is true or not, the idea has come down to us for many years and we serve them on almost every occasion that doesn't call for a full course dinner.

It Comes to This.

So from a steak sandwich we come at last to the dainty toasted ones of cheese, jelly, lettuce, or sandwich spread. Here is one that interestingly combines white and whole wheat bread. It is called a "checkerboard sandwich."

Cut two slices each of whole wheat bread and white bread, about one-half inch thick. Using one slice of whole wheat bread and one slice of white bread, make two bread-and-butter sandwiches. Cut one sandwich in strips half an inch wide and place together, alternating dark and light strips, with butter in between. Now cut the second sandwich into strips and place on top of the first sandwich [which has been buttered] so that the dark strip of bread is beneath the white strip throughout the sandwich. Place under a weight until the butter is firm. Beginning at the end, cut the strips in slices.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS.

Eggs should be cooked at a low even temperature to keep them easily digestible.

Waxed paper is best for lining cake tins.

FIND CARELESS DIET CAUSE OF MANY COLDS

Recent investigations by eminent scientists have resulted in surprising discoveries concerning the part which food plays in resisting physical disorders. It has now been established that colds, constipation, chronic fatigue and listlessness are often the direct result of a wrong choice of foods.

Over-indulgence in modern, "refined" foods is held responsible for a vast amount of human ailments. Food chemists have recently devised a weapon for combating the diseases which follow from faulty elimination and improper nutrition. A list of Protective Foods has been formulated to guide those who buy for families. Ranking high among Protective Foods are the whole grain cereals, wheat and rice.

In a mistaken effort to "refine" them, most cereal products are still being devitalized—robbed of their rich food value by a process of high milling. Devitalized cereals are NOT Protective Foods! Only whole grain cereals are rich in such valuable minerals as iron, calcium, phosphorus and iodine. They contain much needed proteins and carbohydrates and a natural bran to insure regular elimination.

At last there are two truly whole grain cereals being prepared from entire kernels of wheat and rice—WHEAT POPS and RICE POPS! POPS contain the full food value and the supreme flavor of Nature's cereals in the form of crispy, crunchy tid-bits. Considering their food value, POPS are the most economical cereals you can buy! Ask for WHEAT POPS or RICE POPS—avoid devitalized foods! FOODTOWN KITCHENS, Inc., Chicago.

WHAT HAPPENED TO ART OF DINNER CONVERSATION?

It Was Quite the Thing in 17th Century.

BY WILLIAM IRVIN.

What has happened to the gentle art of dinner conversation? Where are all the little frills, fluffs, and furbelows of thought and expression that graced the dinner talk a century or so ago? [Not that any one really cares where they are.] Perhaps "gentle" is not exactly the word, for I imagine that holding up your end of the sort of glorified chit-chat that was bandied about the 17th century dinner board was almost as prodigious a task as eating your way through the meal itself.

I have an idea that the 17th century dinner guest had to be a fairly brilliant conversationalist, capable of palavering his way through a long and laborious meal with the poise of a tight rope walker. I imagine that he had to be able to keep up a running fire of banter and repartee and a crossfire of witticism and raillery to meet possible counter attacks on either right or left flank.

How Weather Became Chief Topic.

If he could do all this and still manage to get something to eat, he was considered pretty good, and was usually invited out a second time. [If he couldn't do it he at least got one good meal by attending strictly to business.]

The really first big step in the improvement of dinner talk was the introduction of the weather into the discussions. [Up to that time people had been talking about any old thing and boring each other to death.] It was introduced by a dinner guest who was on the verge of jitters as the result of a particularly long siege of conversational inanity, and who finally blurted out, "And how is ye olde weather down Somersetshire way, Lord Chiselworth?"

This probably resulted in one of two things: either the guest was sent away from the table for making a perfectly idiotic remark, or he was hailed as a prize conversationalist for hitting upon anything so novel as the weather as a topic of conversation.

New Era in Dinner Talk.

This marked the beginning of a new era in dinner talk and resulted in giving the word "weather" a new connotation. If you could endure a couple of hours of dinner chatter you were said to have "weathered" it. Thus the word came to mean enduring anything generally dull, boresome, and inane.

The main trouble with dinner talk today is that it is usually aimless and rambling, starting nowhere in particular and ending in the same state of confusion. No one really knows after the meal what's been talked about, and it is doubtful if any one cares. Much of this aimlessness can be traced to a certain timidity on the part of the guests. No one wants to be the first to start the ball rolling.

A Tip to the Hostess.

The clever hostess can oftentimes do a lot to keep dinner talk running smoothly. When there is a lull, or when the conversation is going badly, and one of the guests says, "Nice weather we're having," the alert hostess will take her cue from that.

"Come, come, my man, is that the only kind of weather we're having?"

"Lovely weather we're having."

"Is that all? Think, man, think. What other kind of weather do we have?"

"Beautiful weather."

"What kind were we having when you were here last week?'

"Georgeous weather."

"Come now, you're evading. What other kind?"

"Glorious weather."

This badgering of the guest could continue until he got to crying, then the conversation could be started all over again along more suitable lines.

Here's a New Idea.

Another simple method that would help save the time and patience of the guests, as well as that of the host or hostess, would be little printed cards beside each plate. The card would contain, for instance, something like the following:

As you are enjoying [or we hope you are] our hospitality, you will kindly observe the following rules:

1. Confine yourself to one remark about the weather. Two will be frowned upon, and three will bring you your coat and hat.

2. Think twice before speaking. If you haven't forgotten then what you were going to say, think again.

3. We assume no responsibility for statements made by our guests. Govern yourself accordingly.

By observing these simple rules you can get yourself invited back again sometime. Any infraction of them, however, and you're off of our list for good.

MENUS FOR THE WEEK-END

BY MARY MEADE.

It's a test of any one's ingenuity to make tempting dishes out of rather disconcerting looking leftovers, especially when that leftover is a chicken carcass which still has too much meat on it to waste! Just the same, interesting dishes can be made, even if you find it necessary to offer up the chicken as a leftover more than once to utilize every scrap of meat.

First there's chicken l'orient, which is served over rice. Take one small onion, peel, and chop it fine. Brown this with three-fourths of a cup of cooked celery in two tablespoons of butter. Add to it one-half cup of cooked tomatoes and one-half cup of chicken gravy. If you have no remaining gravy, use chicken broth or milk. Then add one cup of diced chicken to the sauce and simmer the chicken for about ten minutes. Serve the chicken on two cups of cooked rice, and garnish each serving, or the platter, with bits of piemiento and parsley. Don't forget to thicken the milk, should it be substituted, with three tablespoons of flour before adding the milk to the sauce, and then add the milk after it has been heated.

Chicken Shortcake.

Chicken shortcake is a second suggestion. Make a biscuit dough of two cups of flour, one-half teaspoon of salt, three-fourths of a cup of milk, four tablespoons of baking powder, and four tablespoons of shortening. Roll the dough about three-fourths of an inch thick and cut out little rounds with your biscuit or cookie cutter. Slip them into a hot oven (450 degrees Fahrenheit) and bake for twelve minutes. While the biscuits bake, make a sauce of two tablespoons of flour, one tablespoon of butter, salt and pepper seasoning, and one cup of chicken stock or milk. (You may use the leftover gravy here, too, but if you do, leave out the flour thickening). Now brown one-half cup of diced celery in two tablespoons of butter and add it, together with one cup of diced chicken, to the sauce. Heat the whole thoroughly. Break open each biscuit and place a generous serving of chicken between and on top of each biscuit. Pimiento and green pepper may be added as a garnish or be combined with the other ingredients for color and additional flavor. I prefer them as garnishes, but that's always a matter of individual preference.

Chicken Tapioca Omelet.

Ears perk and nostrils quiver when chicken tapioca omelet is the order of the day. If you don't believe me, try serving your leftovers this way to your own family. And, before we go further, if you like the addition of the tapioca to the omelet, you may take the same amount here used—that is, two tablespoons—and add it to your other puffy omelets. It will keep them from falling, if you have to wait a few minutes before serving them after they have once been cooked. The omelet consistency is slightly different, but it is a tasty difference that I think you'll like.

CHICKEN TAPIOCA OMELET.

4 eggs.
½ teaspoon of salt.
¼ teaspoon of pepper.
¾ cup of milk.
2 tablespoons of granulated tapioca.
1 tablespoon of butter.
1 cup of diced chicken.

Scald the milk and add to it the tapioca and seasonings. Cook for twenty minutes in the double boiler, stirring frequently. Separate the eggs and beat the yolks until thick and lemon colored, and the whites until stiff. Add the butter to the tapioca and pour over the egg yolks. Add the chicken and finally fold in the egg whites. Turn into a hot buttered skillet and cook in a moderate oven [350 to 375 degrees Fahrenheit] for about twenty minutes.

IT SHOWS BRAINS TO SERVE FISH AS BODY BUILDER

Fish can be compared with meat, cheese, eggs and milk for value as a "body builder," says Dorothea Muehl of the Purdue university home economics extension staff. The short fibers and small content of fat in fish are considered characteristics that adapt this food to children as well as for adults.

"Salmon and mackerel are among the most nourishing," says Miss Muehl. "Most fish are best just before spawning, but shad and herring are exceptions, being at their best when spawning.

Deep Water Fish Superior.

"Fish that live in deep, clear and cool water are superior to those that live in warm, shallow and muddy water. Any method of cooking used for meat also may be applied to fish. When it is cooked sufficiently it is dry and opaque and separates easily from the bone.

"Serving fish with lemon or some distinctly flavored sauce improves its flavor and makes it more acceptable to many who otherwise consider it tasteless. Canned fish has good flavor and is economical, as a great part of the waste has been removed before canning.

Need Starchy Combination.

"As most fish lack carbohydrates, they should be eaten in combination with some starchy food. Shell fish, including oysters, lobsters, crabs, and shrimps are also a good source or protein. Unlike the others, they contain carbohydrates and this increases their food value. They are, however, relatively expensive and with a few exceptions difficult of digestion."

Rare Glassware Collection in CharmingHome

Mrs. Frank P. Ayer Has Noted Pieces.

BY RUTH DE YOUNG.

THE last word in an electric lift—so responsive it seemed almost human—whisked me up yesterday to one of the most charmingly old fashioned homes I have seen in many a day. Mrs. Frank P. Ayer greeted me at the door.

Certainly, I thought a few minutes later, as she pointed out one rare piece after another, no lady who sipped tea from these Spode teacups or adjusted her curls in this Chippendale mirror a century ago dreamed of electric elevators or a home high in the air. But after an hour or two in the Ayer apartment the guest easily forgets all these modern conveniences in favor of the quaint charm that lingers on with the old furnishings.

Mrs. Ayer is interested in anything old—furniture, quilts, books—but her particular hobby is glassware. "Perhaps," she told me with a smile, "my flair for glass is inherited, since my father was a soda pop manufacturer and I always saw plenty of soda pop bottles as a girl." With this she took from a closet shelf one of the old style pop bottles marked with the name of her father, Andrew Lohr, and the name of her birthplace, Cairo, Ill.

Collector for Seven Years.

"It was just about seven years ago that I started collecting glassware," Mrs. Ayer said. "A friend gave me a book on the subject and I decided to have a few pieces in my home which I was refurnishing with old things I had gathered hither and yon. When an elderly cousin of Mr. Ayer discovered my interest she gave me a few rare articles that became the nucleus of the collection I have made. Soon after I made a trip through New England and added a number of pieces. Since then it has been piece after piece until I can truly say now that I am 'glass conscious.'"

Today Mrs. Ayer is recognized as having one of the finest collections of glassware in this part of the country. It is not among the largest, as she pointed out, but it is inclusive of most all types from the early blown glass to the colored cut glass that achieved great popularity in the gay nineties. Of particular interest are the "bellflower" collection, said to be one of the most complete groups ever assembled, and the 90 or more six inch plates, every one different, that tell the story of pressed glass from the time it came into use about a century ago. Both of these groups Mrs. Ayer has been asked to describe for well known periodicals devoted to a discussion of antiques.

"You know in the old days ladies were very careful of their glass and china and silver," Mrs. Ayer remarked as she showed me her collection of "bellflower" glass, "and many was the mistress who ordered a servant to bring a pan for her to do the washing. Well, that is what I do now whenever I use a piece."

Used Only on Rare Occasions.

But it is only on rare occasions that she removes a plate or compote from her collection for table service. In fact, about the only pieces that come into use are those that make up a lovely Spode tea set and then only special guests are allowed the privilege of sipping tea from these cups. The set is complete, even to the six tea and coffee cups that use the same saucers, with the exception of the sugar bowl.

On the same shelf with the Spode tea set are three little spark lamps that came from Mr. Ayer's generous cousin. In receiving this gift Mrs. Ayer learned that the lamps were always burned when this cousin dated as a girl and when the oil ran out—well, it was time for her suitor to depart. These little lamps also succeeded the candle for chamber use.

Most valuable, perhaps, in Mrs. Ayer's collection are the samples of the Stiegel blown glass made in this country before revolutionary times.

"Of course blown glass goes way back to the Egyptians 2,000 B. C.," she told me, "but William Henry Stiegel, a German, was the first to make it in this country. I always say that he coined the slogan 'Made in America,' since he tried so hard to convince people that the glass made here was as good as that imported from abroad."

Sandwich Glass Occupies Shelf.

Another shelf in the distinguished supboard is devoted to Sandwich glass—all of it pedigreed. There are goblets, wine glasses, plates, and compotes.

"Just about every piece of pressed glass made during the middle of the nineteenth century has been termed 'Sandwich,'" said Mrs. Ayer, "but only a very small per cent of it is authentic. The real Sandwich glass comes from the factory that flourished at Sandwich on Cape Cod between 1825 and 1888. One time I met an elderly woman who had worked in the factory as a girl and she told me it was so located because pine trees in the vicinity provided a fire of the necessary heat for making the glass."

And then as Mrs. Ayer showed me a ruby red plate colored by the use of $20 gold pieces, her prize piece of Sandwich glass, she said that some day her collection, at least most of it, is to go to her daughter who established her home in Boston just three years ago when she became Mrs. James W. Philbrick.

Indiana Farm Co-Operative Group Re-Elects Officers

Indianapolis, Ind., March 3.—[Special.]—Officers of the Indiana Farm Bureau Coöperative association were reëlected by the directors this afternoon, after the association's annual convention. They are: William H. Settle, president; James K. Mason, vice president; Everett Jeanes, secretary-treasurer; I. H. Hull, general manager, and M. J. Briggs, assistant general manager.

HONOR POET

Plans have been completed for the two day observance of the 100th anniversary of the death of Johann von Goethe, German poet and philosopher, on next Tuesday and Wednesday on the University of Chicago campus.

The event will open Tuesday evening, when Dr. Hugo F. Simon, German consul general, will deliver an address on "Goethe and the German Spirit" at Mandel hall. At the same meeting Prof. Robert M. Lovell of the University of Chicago will speak on "Goethe and English Literature."

At this occasion Miss Isolde von Bernhardt, German soprano, a house guest at the Simon home, will sing Goethe songs. Miss Bernhardt, a member of an aristocratic German-Baldic family, received her musical education at Stern's conservatory in Berlin and studied dramatic rôles under Luise Reuss-Belze. She was formerly a member of the German Grand Opera company which toured this country under the direction of the late Mme. Johanna Gadski and Prof. Max von Schillings.

On the second day of the Goethe memorial lectures on Goethe will be delivered at the Oriental institute and in Mandel hall. A dinner will be held at Hutchinson commons.

Arguing Scares Man Away from Trip to the Altar

So Try Being Indifferent, Counsels Doris.

BY DORIS BLAKE.

"I have been going with a young man for over three years. We are supposed to be engaged. While there has been no formal proposal, we have talked of the day when we'd have our own home, etc. But I cannot get him to set a date for the wedding.

"My girl friends are all getting married and constantly twit me about my delay. The man seems to want my company all the time, but he does not want to be tied down to marriage. We quarrel terribly over this. It makes me feel awful. I've lost ten pounds, can't sleep and can't seem to smile any more. I guess I have what could be called the 'wedding blues.'—"ABERGA."

Sure, "Aberga," you're not making the man feel that you're trying to pin a prison sentence on him? Some girls, in trying to sell the marriage idea, do just that. When you begin arguing, coaxing, pleading and demanding that the day be named, the man begins to get scared. You make marriage look like something he has to honor you with, instead of an adventure it would be fun to share with you.

I think that is where some of you girls lose. Once you become accusing, taunting about the thing—well, you just take on another character, yourself, as a companion for the journey. You become a ball and chain, practically. Add to this impression a girl who can't smile, is losing weight, can't sleep and the weeps that go with the "wedding blues"—and what have you to offer a man in return for his promise to take you on for life?

No, darling. You have to make marriage look more attractive or you never will get the cagey gentleman to sign on the dotted line. Remember, marriage these days has terrors for young men not known to their grandads or their fathers. The wonder is that more of them are not scared to try it. You have to sell the idea of being taken on for life in a great, big, cheerful way. Because, obviously, you are the more eager of the two to hear the wedding chimes at work, it's up to you to make them sound like a wedding march and not a funeral dirge.

Shake yourself out of the blues. Stop the nagging and quarreling about the date. Lure it on! Don't try to force it. Work the old gag, if need be, about not caring whether he ever names it or not.

Sports Dress Model Given Raised Waistline, Double Breasted Effect

WOMAN'S AND MISS' DRESS.

Here is a new sports type dress with the raised waistline—the bodice is given a double breasted effect that is decidedly smart, and the inverted pin tucks fit it snugly through the waistline. The skirt is cut in gores that are slightly circular towards the hem. Sheer woolen in black with rose red for the bodice, and brown with Persian green are snappy combinations.

The pattern, 2654, comes in sizes 14, 16, 18, and 20 years and 36, 38, and 40 inches bust measure. Size 16 requires 2¼ yards of 39 inch material for the skirt and 1½ yards of 39 inch material for the blouse.

Tape Measure Is Trusty Gauge of Results of Reducing Diet

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

When you are telling some other woman about your weight loss, not one out of a thousand of you, if that many, ever report your loss in inches. You say you lost five pounds, eight, ten, fifteen, or fifty. You don't say: "I took three inches off my hips, two off my waist, one off my arms, or calves," do you?

Yet, as a denominator, the tape measure is better than the scale, especially if it is some point of local reduction you're trying to conquer. If it is the waistline you want slimmer, it's surer to be slimmer if you measure it by tapeline. You're not fooled about the waistline then. That ten pound loss may not have made the two inch waistline goal. It may have done the creditable thing, of course, of taking weight off generally. But I mean if you want a slimmer waistline, let the tape measure keep tally for you.

Week by week measurement is all you need. In the meantime, be wise and keep up the bathroom scale daily charting. But if the waistline isn't coming down as you want and you discover this by measurement, you will be inspired to do more of the exercises needed for waist refining.

Incidentally, speaking about measurements, I know you girls like to check off yours against a prize winner's record. What more fun, then, than to check yourself against a Ziegfeld ideal? Perhaps you saw Mr. Ziegfeld's 1932 chorus girl ideal in printed figures. Perhaps you didn't. Anyway, here she is: Height, five feet and a half; weight, 120 pounds; neck, thirteen inches; bust, thirty-four and a half; wrist, five and three-quarters. Waist, twenty-six inches; hips, thirty-six and a half; thighs, twenty-one and half; calf, thirteen and a quarter, and ankle, eight inches.

Wrist measurements are something not often prominently brought to the attention. Do you ever think about them? Do you ever notice women's wrists? If you do begin noticing them you'll see what a part they perform in hand and arm beauty. We'll talk about that another day.

BEAUTY ANSWERS

VIC: NOT ONCE BUT SEVERAL times a day is the cleansing rule for oily skin. The glands are pouring out an oil to which dust and grime stick. Powder mixing with it becomes pasty. The pore openings are filled with the accumulation. So that three cleansings a day is not too much.

Special Classes for Gifted Children Show Good Results

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

There has been a great deal of talk recently about the special classes which are being formed all over the country to help gifted children to make the most of their capacities. The reason why these classes are formed is because the course of study of the public schools has been made for the great middle group, the average child. The curriculum is not suited to the needs of either the lower group [that is, the retarded children] nor the higher group, the gifted children.

In the special classes the way of handling gifted children which has been most successful is the so called enrichment method. These children are kept in each grade the usual length of time, but new subjects are added and other occupations which will interest them and keep them occupied.

Remarkable results are being obtained. Some of these are set forth in a recent volume of the White House Conference on Child Health and Protection. The volume is the one called "Special Education of the Handicapped and the Gifted." In the chapter on the gifted, some of the fine results of the enrichment method are noted. To quote: "The children work with an enthusiasm and persistence that is delightful to see.

"There is no problem of discipline, as they are too busy to get into mischief, and are easily led to adjust themselves to the needs and desires of the group. Even children who already present behavior problems become quickly adjusted in the less oppressive atmosphere of the gifted class.

"It is not generally appreciated that the gifted child is more sensitive than the child of average intelligence to unwise limitations to activities, such as are often imposed by so called 'good disciplinarians.'

"This child finds himself in the greater freedom of the special class with its more stimulating curriculum, and in the happiness of his new ordered freedom, becomes a highly satisfactory member of the group. Thus, the children develop into good citizens and at the same time follow the line of their own abilities."

Official Contract

By Charles True Adams

(International bridge authority; author of "Official Contract at Sight")

In contract bridge all talking is [or should be] done by the bid. You make a bid with two objects. First, to help along towards obtaining a declaration at a game going contract, and the second to give certain information to our partner. There are certain times when we should not bid—when it seems impossible to make game, and at the same time it should be apparent that any bid by us will not inform the partner half as much as it will the opponent. Then we are far better off if we learn to sit quietly and pass. Yesterday's play-a-problem was a great example of when not to bid—on the part of South, at least. It was:

NORTH
♥—5,4,3
♦—K,J,10,9,7,6
♣—10,8

WEST [dealer]
♠—K,3
♥—J,10,9,7
♦—A,2

EAST
♠—Q,6
♥—A,K,Q,8,6,2
♦—8,3
♣—9,3,2

SOUTH
♠—A,J,10,9,5,4,2
♥—0
♦—Q,5,4
♣—K,6,4

West dealt and bid a club. North passed. East bid a heart and South bid two spades. South had about 5½ probable tricks, of which at least 2 were high card tricks. He knew this was about the required number to make a forcing overcall. He did not stop to think that after North's pass there was practically no chance of game between the two hands, and that in all probability the vast majority of the strength not held by him was held by his two opponents.

Therefore there is no chance or almost no chance of game on the part of North and South, and his bid could do little but inform his two adversaries of where the balance of the strength lay. A strong preëmptive bid on the part of South might be backed by at least superficial argument. A bid of two spades, under the circumstances, was inexcusable. Immediately after South's two spade bid West knew that the ♠ K was almost sure to take, since he felt definitely that the A was in South's hand. He also saw that the chance of a successful finesse was much improved by the information given to East that South in all probability held the K of that suit. West therefore felt quite safe in immediately boosting East's heart bid to four hearts, which closed the bidding.

South opened the ♠ A, dummy played the 3, North the 7, and East the 6. South then led the ♠ J, which dummy took with the K, East's Q falling. Dummy then led the ♥ J, North playing the 3, East the 6, and South discarding the ♠ 2. In spite of the fact of South showing no trump, East decided to clear that suit and to the fourth trick led the ♥ 10 from dummy, North playing the 4 and East the 2. Dummy then led the ♥ 7, which cleared the suit, East taking the trick with the Q in his own hand. East now led the ♣ 2 and finessed the J in dummy when South played the 4. Dummy now led the ♥ 9, which East overtook with the K. East now led the ♣ 3, South played the 6, and dummy played the Q. To the ninth trick dummy led the ♣ A, clearing that suit. Dummy now led out his two good clubs, on which East discarded the two small diamonds in his own hand. At this point West and East have a superfluity of tricks. Obviously the twelfth and thirteenth tricks go to them, East and West making six odd—their game and two extra tricks.

NORTH
♠—K,10,8
♥—5,4
♦—9,6,4,3,2

That's Coty Face Powder, of course, because Coty creates a round dozen skin-true blends. Fastidious women can't use a face powder that is admittedly made for every complexion. They want the fragrant beauty of a perfectly matched, individual Coty tone. One dollar—at any of the better shops.

The Woman Hater

BY MAY EDGINTON

SYNOPSIS.

Mrs. Chapelle is the owner of Flaxen's Casino, near the water front of Port Bai, which was established by her first husband of dubious color, who had fathered her daughter Aya, and was the refuge of her second husband of dubious morale though unimpeachable antecedents, who had brought his little daughter Faire to the island and remained there until his death.

Malice Bookes, aid de camp of Sir Philip Persian, governor and commander in chief of the Tama islands, Bai and St. Rosario, obtained an invitation for Mrs. Chapelle and her daughters to attend the government house ball. Faire's pride makes her reject the belated honor because the Chapelles had until now been left out of the ball list. Mrs. Chapelle and Aya believe it is because she doesn't want to go in their company. Faire admits to herself, with misgivings, the truth of their accusations. She prefers to remain in the casino, where she and Aya had been trained to work by their mother. She strolls over later to watch the gayety of the ball from a sheltered grotto in the governor's garden. She sees Mira Worcester, a faded beauty, and young Robert Grand, the governor's secretary and ward, steal away to a secret rendezvous. The governor follows them out and finds Faire. He requests her promise of secrecy regarding the incident. Faire is stung by his formal treatment of her. She overhears him tell Bookes that he is leaving at dawn for St. Rosario, where trouble is brewing. From a high knoll over the deep water Faire waves the governor a mocking farewell, but as she does she slips and falls down the cliff and is rescued from the water by the governor. When the governor returns at noon he sends for Bookes.

INSTALLMENT V.

A PLAN.

Bookes had never known the governor to hesitate or to flinch or to take things easy. His passion for the prosperity of these two small islands, which his country had put into his care, was a proverb. His inner life — the life of his resolute spirit — was a mystery. They said he was a cruel man. "Keep on his right side," Bookes had heard men say at the club. He had no softnesses. Except . . . the portrait of the woman on his desk?

"Now, Bookes," Persian began in a changed tone, the tone that meant imminent action of some sort somewhere, "there's a lot of scandal about."

"He sees and hears everything," Bookes thought, "though devil knows how, with the life he leads." He replied quietly, "Yes, sir. Why beat about the bush? You mean about Grand and the Worcesters."

"Robert's not only my secretary, chosen by me, but he's my ward. I'm fond of the boy."

The aide thought: "Yes, you are. The only bit of humanity in you."

"I'm not going to see that woman make a mess of him."

"Difficult job to handle, sir, in a place like this where we're all cheek by jowl."

The governor brushed this aside. "I could send him home if there was a steamer due. As it is . . . She meets him after dinner, when Worcester's off to poker at the club, eh?"

"They say so."

"At the small bungalow that writer fellow ran up and then left deserted, just beyond my oranges."

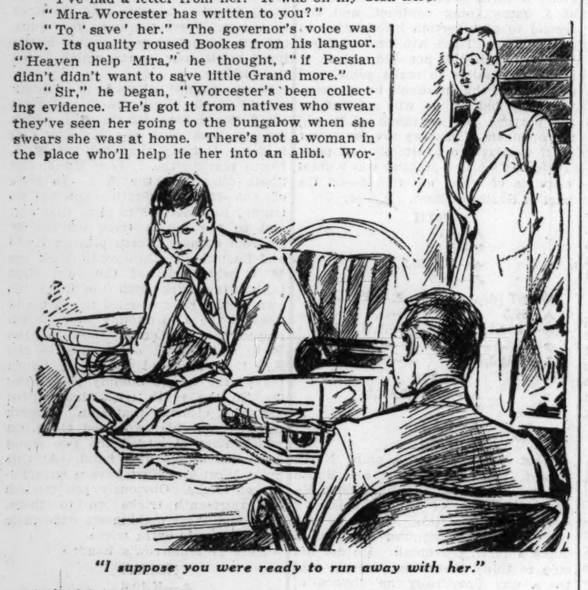
"So they say."

"I've had a letter from her. It was on my desk here."

"Mira Worcester has written to you?"

"To 'save' her." The governor's voice was slow. Its quality roused Bookes from his languor. "Heaven help Mira," he thought, "if Persian didn't didn't want to save little Grand more."

"Sir," he began, "Worcester's been collecting evidence. He's got it from natives who swear they've seen her going to the bungalow when she swears she was at home. There's not a woman in the place who'll help lie her into an alibi. Worcester's drinking, and you know the crowd he's drinking with. We're a pretty queer mixture, socially and racially, here, aren't we?"



"I suppose you were ready to run away with her."

"We need not mix."

"Well, sir, Worcester does mix. He and two or three of his Dago friends are planning to surprise Mira and Grand."

"After the letter I've had," he flicked it scornfully with a thumb and finger, "I judge she won't risk a bungalow rendezvous again."

"Worcester's collected, and is collecting, enough without an actual showdown, though he's boiling to get his hands on Grand."

"Where's Robert?"

But at that moment the young secretary knocked and entered.

"Want me, Robert?"

Then they saw that he held an open letter in his hand.

"Is that from Lady Mira, Robert? She's sent a chit to me, too. Sit down."

But the boy still stood taut while the governor took the letter from him, put it with his own, and set a match to them both. They burned out slowly.

"Robert," said Persian curtly, getting up, "Bookes and I are talking of you. I haven't a minute to waste on you and your silly affairs. But I'll tell you one thing. You are to get out of this. Somehow, boy, you're to get out."

"I don't want to talk to her, sir."

"The whole island is talking. Your lady wants to be saved from you."

"From me! I wouldn't hurt a hair of her head! All I want is to serve her and help her—married to that sozzling swine—she's so unhappy—and——"

"She doesn't want to leave her husband."

"She—she—it's because she's so——"

"Frightened," said the governor. "Women are. Putting aside whatever has been between you, which is not Bookes' business nor mine, you're going to get out of it and incidentally to get her out of it, scotfree."

"That cad Worcester——"

"She married him and she wants the fortune that's coming to him presently when his uncle dies. She's thirty-eight and you're twenty-three."

"What's age?"

For the first time Bookes, watching from a withdrawn position at the other side of the room, saw a spasm of emotion twitch Persian's face. His cold eyes held the warmth and the bitterness of a memory. He said abruptly:

"I suppose you were ready to run away with her, to give up all?"

"Gladly. Absolutely."

"But Worcester may not mean to divorce her. He may mean only to separate, leaving you two in the toils of a scandal such as she'll never live down to her dying day."

"He's told her so! But decent opinion——"

"Decent opinion—for what it is worth—will be with Worcester. Lady Mira has practically not a penny of her own, and you've nothing worth speaking of coming to you."

The boy said hoarsely: "She asks me to save her. If going away would do it—if shooting myself would do it—I——"

"Shut up!" said the governor.

The boy was trembling—at his wit's end—when Malise Bookes suddenly said gently: "The only way, Robert, is to upset Worcester's evidence."

"How?" said the governor curtly.

"Meet a girl at the bungalow tonight! Get a native spying and let him go to Worcester at the club. Get the girl to swear it was she who was with you every time."

"Could we?" young Grand whispered.

"If you can act."

"What girl?" said the governor sharply, "don't have any dirty work."

"Well, sir, you know as well as I do," said the aide de camp, "that I could find half a dozen girls in the district who'd do it for a consideration."

"Yes," he said. "But it's got to be plausible"; his hard mouth twisted into a sardonic smile, "something that Robert might be supposed to fancy."

The boy said nothing, too sunk in wretchedness and anxiety.

"That little Chapelle who was at the ball'd be proud to do it," said Bookes with a faint laugh.

The governor had seen Aya there, dancing with a few dark faced planters, watched proudly by her raddled mother.

He frowned, hesitating.

"Leave it to me, sir?" Bookes asked.

"Leave it to Bookes, Robert?"

The boy said: "I'll do anything! Agree to anything you say, sir, anything that Bookes can think of."

"There's no time to be lost, Robert, from what I hear."

"I know that."

"You're going home on the next steamer that calls."

"Yes, sir. I—I'm sorry."

"My own term's nearly up," said Persian briefly, and he sat down at his desk again. His eyes dismissed young Grand to his business, but his look followed the boy regretfully, affectionately from the room.

When he turned to Bookes he was hard again. "Well, see to it then."

"Yes, sir. Rely on me."

The governor worked on in his study throughout the tropic afternoon when other men—his aide included—dropped comfortably into siesta. The woman of the portrait watched him softly, fiercely, glamorously. He looked at her sometimes, but as if by an effort of will. When he looked his face was inscrutable. But mostly he concentrated on his plans and estimates for the new road that was to run east and west across Bai.

That fair straight road was his son, and the orange grove was his daughter, all the children—he had said to himself—that he would ever father.

Four Nurses Given Scholarship Awards for Summer Study

Four nurses, graduates of Chicago hospitals, were awarded scholarships for postgraduate study yesterday at the monthly meeting of the directors of the Visiting Nurses' association.

Miss Marie Czwalinski, graduate of St. Mary of Nazareth hospital, and Miss Margaret Bleken, graduate of Presbyterian hospital, were given Harriet Hammond McCormick scholarships for the summer course in physiotherapy at Harvard Medical school. Miss Dorothy Armstrong, a graduate of Mercy hospital, was given a McCormick scholarship for the summer course in public health nursing at Teachers' college of Columbia university, and Miss Emma Mae Heinl, graduate of St. Luke's hospital, the Albert H. Wolf scholarship for the same course.

Mrs. Kermit Roosevelt Visits City on Way East

Mrs. Kermit Roosevelt, wife of the president of the Roosevelt Steamship company, arrived in Chicago yesterday on the Rock Island lines. She was on her way to New York after a five weeks yachting trip in the Pacific, in which she caught a sword fish. Mrs. Roosevelt was accompanied by her mother, Mrs. Joseph Willard, and her sister, Mrs. Mervyn Herbert.

Bright Sayings of the Children

Viola, age 7, came home from school one day with some questions her teacher wanted answered. When confronted with the question, "What are you going to be when you grow up?" she immediately answered, "a school teacher." After a few moments thought, she erased it and said, "No, I guess I'll put down 'a lady.'"

"I. M."

I asked Bobby, our neighbor's small son, his reason for not attending the Saturday afternoon show, to which he replied: "We can't afford it, I'm a depression kid now."

"PASSIONATE PLUMBER"

Keaton's 2 Sons Visit Film Lot; What a Visit!

Complaints Keep Tab on Their Tour.

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., March 3.—[Special.]—During the filming of Buster Keaton's "Passionate Plumber" the comedian brought his two sons, Joe and Bob, ages 10 and 9, to the set on the M. G. M. lot with him one day. He won't do it again—that is, if the pleas of technical men, directors, and other actors prevail.

Trouble began soon after Joe and Bob got on the set. The cameraman found his camera always mysteriously out of focus because it had been moved a couple of inches. Lights began to go out mysteriously. The prop man could not find his equipment when the director yelled for it. Director Eddie Sedgwick finally gave the boys a sales talk which induced them to visit one of the other sets.

Then the phone rang on the stage. "This is the Bill Haines set," a voice said. "The Keaton boys are over here. I wonder if they have seen Clark Gable's set yet. Have their father send them over there." From all over the studio calls began to come in.

Buster took it big. "Well, there's one advantage," he said. "The boys never get lost. There are always so many people complaining that I know just where they are every minute."

Buster Keaton and Joe E. Brown raised $3,500 to help finance this summer's Olympic games in Los Angeles with a benefit baseball game between their two teams. Keaton had Charley Rot and Pat Malone of the Cubs pitching for him and Hartnett catching, but he lost, 10 to 3, mainly because Jack Oakie of the movies was playing second base. Oakie made three errors in the first inning, when six runs went over for Brown's team. Grover Alexander and Carl Hubbell of the New York Giants pitched for Brown's team and Tris Speaker played first. The other players were movie actors and present and past big leaguers, with the latter envying the actors' big salaries; and the actors grieving because they couldn't play ball like stars.

When Lionel Barrymore chose his makeup for the part of Kringlein in the screen version of "Grand Hotel," he modeled his makeup after the artist's illustration on the cover of Vicki Baum's novel.

Did you know there are two well known Jack Oakies in the movies? Jack Oakie, of course, is an actor. Jack Okey is an art director at the Warner-First National studio.

The costumers and art directors at Paramount had been having some trouble getting proper camera treatment for Tallulah Bankhead in "Thunder Below." They finally found the trouble was that the Alabama actress' eyes change their hue under different lighting and in different costumes. Most of the time they look blue, but they change to brown in reflecting shades about her.

Mrs. McGrew Willis, wife of the writer, and Mrs. Richard Wallace, wife of the director, gave a stork shower for Mrs. John Milijan, wife of the actor, this afternoon. The Miljans expect a larger family circle in May. So does May MacAvoy [Mrs. Maurice Cleary], whose friends have been knitting little white wool booties in anticipation of an event in May. Dolores Costello Barrymore is another screen colony matron awaiting the stork in May.

Patou Beach Pajamas Are Masculine in Cut, but Add Feminine Details

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special.]—Sports pajamas that are being worn along the Côte d'Azur this season are, without exception, masculine in cut. They are made with carefully creased trousers having cuffs and tailored as are those worn by men. Navy blue flannel is the smartest material for these pajamas, with their jackets that are straight in line and man-tailored.

The newest of these jackets from Jean Patou have short sleeves and sport no buttons, as you can see by consulting the accompanying drawing of the Patou sports pajamas. Some women are wearing brass button fastened jackets but they aren't so new as the buttonless ones.

Jacket and trousers look like those of the men, but while the gentlemen wear Basque and Toulon sweaters with their suits, women turn feminine when it comes to the sweater or blouse worn with sports pajamas. Patou's new backless, knitted, pullover sweaters are the last word in chic. One of these sweaters is shown in our sketch. It is made of beige cashmere wool with beige knitted shoulder straps that meet in a V in front. The bottom of the sweater has a wide red and wider navy blue stripe. A black patent leather belt holds the normal waistline. This sweater that is worn over the top of pajama trousers is newer than the tuck-in kind which flourished last season.

Crowding Evil Proves Peril to Many Gardens

BY PAUL POTTER.

Many amateur vegetable gardeners make the mistake of trying to crowd too much seed and too many varieties of vegetables into the city garden plot. Only where considerable area is available or a special yearning of the family dictates the growing of crops that take considerable space should sweet corn, potatoes or cabbage be planted. Pumpkins, squashes and melons likewise take too much room in small patches.

A list of vegetables for which seed may be ordered during March would include string beans, peas of the dwarf types, beets, carrots, tomatoes, radishes, lettuce, spinach, young onions, lima beans, swiss chard and parsley.

Pole beans owe their popularity in city gardens to their economy of space as compared to the bush types. This is especially true of limas. For the same reason the dwarf types of peas should be given preference.

Most beginners in gardening soon learn that radishes and lettuce should be planted sparingly and at regular intervals through the season. Too often they plant an oversupply at first. Such plants as tomatoes or eggplant may be started between the rows of radishes and lettuce. By the time the latter are consumed the slower maturing plants will need the enlarged space.

Ample greens will be obtained throughout the season from swiss chard and the thinning of early beets. With spinach and parsley, the supply of greens will be varied.

Most gardeners will find it more satisfactory to stick to leaf or cos lettuce. Good head lettuce, like celery and cauliflower, is the production problem for skilled gardeners and many professionals do not fare so well with them at times.

Play of Death on a Holiday Back in Town

New Company Presents Casella Drama.

BY CHARLES COLLINS.

The gracefully written play about Prince Sirki, whose hand is as cold as the grave, whose kiss is doom, and whose right name is Death, is not a new story to Chicago theater goers. It was acted here in the autumn of 1930 under the auspices of the Dramatic league, with Philip Merivale as the gloomy, philosophic masquerader, and was held in much esteem, particularly among people who expect the drama to have a literary polish and among clergymen in search of a theme for a sermon.

Now it comes again, in another and less ambitious interpretation, for an engagement at the Playhouse. As a chatty, slow moving example of the modern Italian drama of ideas it seems to have borne up remarkably well during the depression. It has survived and kept in action while many more frolicsome shows of the period, made to stifle rather than to stimulate meditations upon mortality, have long since given up their ghosts. This piece, with the Dark Angel as its central character, seems to have a dash of that mysterious quality known as box office appeal. Perhaps its undertone to the effect that death is nothing to be afraid of has something to do with its popularity.

The present company offers a workmanlike and satisfactory performance. The stage settings of the original production give it the requisite background of Italian romance, and the cast is decidedly competent.

Don Burroughs has the rôle of Prince Sirki, and while he does not demand comparison with Mr. Merivale's masterpiece of acting, he is sound and authoritative. He misses the amusing irony of Prince Sirki's contact with humanity, but he has a firm grasp upon the emotional phases of the character. His reading of the speeches in which the uncanny visitor reveals his identity is excellent—and I might add that these passages have a definite affiliation with the art of letters.

Anne Forrest, a fairly well known actress with John Galsworthy's "The Roof" in her immediate background, is featured in the company as Grazia, the sensitive and spiritual girl in whom Death finds a cosmic sweetheart. She handles the rôle in an appealing manner, and is quite as good, I should say, as the actress who was Philip Merivale's leading woman.

Percy Grainger Helps Symphony in Happy Mood

BY EDWARD MOORE.

Mr. Stock arranged an entire program of novelties, and Percy Grainger came to be the piano soloist in two of them, one being of his own composition. So, with one thing and another, those of us at Orchestra hall last night had about as exhilarating a time as we have had this season.

Not that it was all exhilaration. There was some relieving gloom in a symphony by Jean Sibelius, the fourth of his series. Sibelius can generally be depended upon to get into a somber mood quicker and stay in it longer than any composer on record. At that, if you accept the mood, his sympathy is a finely wrought work.

Mr. Grainger began his part of the entertainment with a concerto by Frederick Delius, a matter of pleasantly intriguing melodies wherein the pianist is supplied with large handfuls, at times fistfuls, of notes. It is the sort of thing that Mr. Grainger can play with all the spirit in the world, and the mood of the audience went up as rapidly as it had sunk during the Sibelius symphony.

Later he came with his own composition. It is a suite of Danish folk music, three movements in which Mr. Grainger was at one time solo pianist, at another the bass half of a duet of pianists, at a third a brief performer on the celesta. Meanwhile the orchestra was making more or less fantastic presentations of the folk tunes in much the same manner as they do in his English "Shepherd's Hey." His besetting weakness is an overfondness for thick orchestration, leaving little chance for the contrast of a few clear notes played softly, but he managed to find such good tunes during his Danish tours that his suite has every chance of being highly popular.

These were not all the novelties. Mr. Stock managed to find an unknown symphony by Mozart. It is in the key of G minor, not the one in G minor so well known and not as good as that one, but still characteristically Mozartean in matter and manner. He also played the "Soviet Iron Foundry," subtitled "Music for Machines," by one Alexander Wassilevich Mossolow.

It was quite what one would expect under the circumstances, an insistent, driving, rackety rhythm, speeding up in mass production toward the end and making lots of noise all the way. If a person wants to write that kind of music it need only be regarded as an amiable folly. But, as Mr. Stock told the audience, as far as he was concerned, a little of it went a long way.

Guten morgen!

KIND: Ein lustspiel.

FUNNY: Nicht so komisch. That is, there's nothing particularly humorous about the action. The dialogue, of which there is an oversupply, got an occasional laugh from German buyers yesterday afternoon.

ACTING: GUT. Felix Bressart, the hero, is a German comedian of some note, and he is quite ein drolliger mitmensch. On the Edward Everett Horton type, with here and there something about his smile and manner that reminds you—oddly enough—of Chevalier. Supporting players do intelligently what they're supposed to do. [Honorable mention to Lucie Englisch and Adele Sandrock.]

DIRECTION: Painstaking but uninspired.

PHOTOGRAPHY: Commendable.

STORY: The scenes are laid in ein kleine German village where is stationed the garrison of which Herr Bressart is the Schrecken. This chap is a simple-minded fellow who is forever getting into absurd predicaments. His ridiculous luftsprungen are what keep the action moving.

REMARKS: The pantomime is not illuminative enough to make this movie comprehensive to any save verstehers of Deutsch. The latter, if not too hard to please, may find the Cinema's present unterhaltung somewhat amusing.

Auf wiedersehn.

A Friend in Need

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

Urgent Need for Winter Coat.

"I am writing to you for a coat for my mother. I have been ill two years with tuberculosis and unable to work. My father was laid off last May and I don't know when he will return to work. My mother is ill at the present time and has to make three or four trips a week to the hospital for treatments. She has nothing to wear but a thin spring coat and takes cold every time she goes out. She is short, stout, and wears size 46.

"L. S."

The trips to the hospital made with the intention of improving her health will avail Mrs. S. nothing if she is exposed to the cold each time she ventures out. Won't you help her by donating the much needed winter coat?

When Henry Ford gives the word for mass production on his V-Eight and improved Model-A-Four cars throughout the vast organization of the Ford Motor Company—as he will do, probably next week—there will be revealed, well under way, one of the greatest epics of modern world industry.

By so doing Ford will start a wave of industrial revival which, to great or lesser degree, will be felt the whole world around.

And to do that, he is, literally, risking a fortune.

The greatest urge of Ford's heart and brain seems to be a desire to do something to help world depression. He voices that desire earnestly. He expressed it simply and compactly the other day when he said:

"The American people have made the Ford Motor Company what it is today. We have something that the public did not give us. It exists for private benefit—every surplus provided for future use. The future is ours and we are going to do our utmost—every thing, if necessary; to use this surplus for the public, through its dealings with it; to see if we cannot make work where work is needed most—work, jobs! We are going to do just as many people as possible. Ford realizes that operation of his plants alone, will not be sufficient to employ nearly so, thousands of other industries to resume production and the d

NEWS! for DETROIT and for NATIONAL ADVERTISERS

This exclusive Ford story, run last Saturday in The Detroit News, is the best news the people of Detroit have heard in a long time. Together with the previous scoop, published Feb. 11, giving the world the first authentic knowledge of Ford plans, it indicates the editorial enterprise of this great newspaper.

300 million dollars in Detroit and Michigan alone! Possibly it heralds the beginning of a national industrial revival. Unquestionably it means better times for the people of this community and for retail stores in all lines. In turn it means an active market—the fourth largest in America—for manufacturers and national advertisers.

The Detroit News offers you the most powerful approach to this enormous buying power. For nearly 60 years it has been the favorite home-delivered newspaper in Detroit! Today 75% of its city circulation is actually delivered by hand into Detroit homes. It offers you the largest circulation in Michigan, the best coverage of all income classes, and 71% coverage of the best buying group ($3,000 incomes and over).

It leads in department store, classified, national advertising and has the record of being among the first four papers in America in advertising for 18 consecutive years.

When you think of Michigan, remember that 47.8% of its people reside in the Detroit trading area. When you think of Detroit, remember that The News gives you effective one-paper coverage.

GOLDEN GLOVES RUSH IS ON! $3 SEATS SOLD OUT

BY WILFRID SMITH.

The amateur boxing championships of Chicagoland will be decided next Wednesday night at the Stadium. Thirty-two boys, survivors in a field of 3,000 which came from five central states, will fight the semi-final and final rounds.

All $3 tickets to the finals have been sold, indicating once again that when the fifth annual championships are held another capacity crowd will see Golden Gloves. Although 9,400 $3 tickets have been sold, there are excellent $2 and $1 tickets available. The $2 seats are in the end sections of the mezzanine and in the first balcony. The tickets in the second balcony are $1.

No More Mail Orders.

No more mail orders will be accepted. Golden Gloves tickets now must be purchased at THE TRIBUNE'S public service office, 1 South Dearborn street, or at the branch offices at 1101 East 63d street and 4152 West Madison street, and at the Tribune Tower lobby.

While Chicago was reviewing the three days of the Tournament of Champions which [illegible] just been concluded, with the d[illegible]on that it surpassed all previous eliminations, the army of boxers was returning home. Some retired from the lists defeated. Others went back to prepare for the final tests next week.

The out of town sectionals qualified more boxers for the final night than ever before. Rockford, Ill., had five of its champions go through the three days without defeat. Chicago will have less than half of the total of 32. Fourteen Chicago boys from a qualifying list of 48 are in the finals. This number includes Duffy Dvonch, the heavyweight, who, however, will not be able to compete next Wednesday night.

Karpinski Gets New Chance.

Dvonch suffered a broken bone in his hand and Walter Karpinski of Grand Rapids, Mich., who lost a three round decision to Dvonch, will be back for the semi-finals. If Dvonch's hand heals sufficiently he will start training with the Chicago squad and will be taken to New York for the intercity bouts on March 28 in Madison Square Garden.

With Dvonch out of the tournament, and with the other Chicago boys concentrated in about half of the weight divisions, it is likely that the out of town centers will win half of the titles. Last year only two boys were successful in wresting championships from Chicago. These winners, Jack Kranz and Johnny Long of the Gary team, were defeated in their first fights on Tuesday night.

Al Soukop is Chicago's only boxer in the flyweight class. Three Chicago boys remain in the bantamweight class. One of them is Leo Rodak, captain of the C. Y. O. team from SS. Peter and Paul, who won the 112 pound championship last year.

Joe Roman and Joe Romano.

Chicago is not represented in the 126 pound class. Jimmy Walsh of Janesville, Wis., winner of the Golden Gloves tournament sponsored by the Milwaukee bureau of THE TRIBUNE and the Eagles club, will battle against J[illegible] Roman of Joliet, Ill., Joe Romano of Rockford, Ill., and Geno Salvatore of Streator, Ill. Roman was a member of the 1929 Golden Gloves team.

Danny Neenan of Trafton's gymnasium, Chicago, who defeated George Holden, last year's runnerup, and Don Brand of Fort Dodge, Ia., in his advance in the finals, is one of the outstanding lightweights. Stanley Krannenberg of Grand Rapids probably is his strongest rival, although consideration must be given Henry Rothier of Davenport, Ia., and John Houart of Benton Harbor, Mich.

Chicago also will have three boys in the welterweight class. John Phagan, one of two colored lads in the tournament, won his intercity bout last year. Billy Celebron of Rockford, Ill., is given the edge in the championship at this time.

Marek Leads Light Heavies.

Three Chicago boys remain in the 160 pound class, while Max Marek of St. Rita, C. Y. O., is the favorite in the light heavyweight class, although he is the only Chicagoan in the division.

Chester Bukowski is Chicago's only boxer in the heavyweight class, in which Adam Smith of Rockford comes back for a third year seeking a title. Adam has been a member of two previous teams, but never has won the championship.

If the finals are a sellout next Wednesday night it will be the fourth time in three years that Golden Gloves has filled the world's largest indoor boxing arena. The intercity bouts in 1930 started the list of sellouts and it was followed by two capacity shows last winter, one for the Chicago finals and the other in the bouts with New York, which Chicago won, 13 to 3.

Lucas Accepts Reds' Offer of $14,000 for Season

Tampa, Fla., March 3.—(AP)—Charles [Red] Lucas accepted a $2,500 cut in salary today and will report here Saturday, completing the pitching staff of the Cincinnati Nationals. Lucas telephoned Manager Howley from Nashville that he would take the salary of $14,000 offered him, as against the $16,500 he got last year.

Rodak'll Win, South Siders Say; North Backs Ginter

BY FRENCH LANE.

The luck of the draw may bring Leo Rodak and John Ginter together in the first bout for the 118 pound Golden Gloves championship at the Chicago Stadium next Wednesday night.

Still they may have to wait to settle their little differences in the final bantamweight encounter.

But if they finally smash head-on into each other there is going to be a fight that will furnish food for street corner debates for many months to come. And it will be sort of a miniature civil war, for Ginter is the Chicago north side colorbearer, residing at 7044 North Clark street, while Rodak is the idol of the south side. He gets his mail at 9202 Anthony avenue.

Scialaba Is Example.

There have been some great Golden Glove bantamweight champions in other years. Nick Scialaba looked like the finished product when he became the Chicago champion, the intercity champion, and the international champion last year.

But folks who have followed the ups and downs of Golden Glove warriors since the first Golden Glove was at stake agree that Rodak and Ginter have demonstrated in their early struggles that they are equipped with everything that should be included in the répertoire of a champion.

The south siders are certain that Rodak will win. The north siders are certain Ginter cannot lose. Richard Noonan of Lafayette and Edward Sparrow of Chicago are the other bantamweight semi-finalists. One of them might turn up as the champion, but it is the battle between Rodak and Ginter the Golden Gloves fans are awaiting.

Rodak Scored Last Year.

When Rodak won the flyweight championship last year he became one of the most popular amateurs ever to bob up in Golden Gloves competition. The same great army of followers have been cheering for him as he traveled along toward the bantamweight title this year.

"I'LL GET YOU!"

LEO RODAK. JOHN GINTER.

Ginter has been performing just as impressively in each of his victories. And he is the type that fights as hard as he can and as long as he can.

He is a native of Chicago and has always lived here, except from 1927 to 1931, when he was a sailor in Uncle Sam's navy. He was the bantamweight runner-up in the battle fleet championship tournament held in San Diego in 1930. After coming out of the navy last year he won the Illinois state bantamweight title and later was runner-up in the Central A. A. U. outdoor championships.

Ginter Matches Rodak.

He has shown improvement in every bout since then. He has won all his scraps impressively. His punches seem to carry as much steam as the wallops Rodak sends out. He is as aggressive as Rodak and has demonstrated that he can box with the best of them.

It will be some fight when Ginter from the north side meets Rodak of the south side. When the New York champion reads about it he may lose some sleep.

In the WAKE of the NEWS

GOLDEN GLOVES TEAM.

SURVIVORS from the Tournament of Champions—fourteen Chicago boys and eighteen from other cities of Chicagoland—give a good indication of what caliber team will compete against New York in the intercity bouts on March 28. It appears to be the best balanced team since the start of Golden Gloves competition.

In the heavier classes material is more abundant than in the past. While champions will not be determined until next Wednesday night at the Stadium, at least two boxers in each division looked satisfactory. Two boxers from each division will battle in the intercity fray.

In the lower weights there also are good boys to be chosen. They appear fully as formidable as representatives of previous years, but there have been such excellent past performers in the lighter weights that one is more likely, in sizing up the team in advance, to talk of the heavier classes. That is by comparison only with other years.

In one of the most important points Chicagoland's squad is formidable. That point is aggressiveness. Where bouts are only three rounds, with no fourth round called for as in the past, it is essential to start action from the tap of the first gong. A counter puncher, one who might prevail over a longer route, has not time to develop his tactics in three rounds. He will lose to an aggressive boy, other qualities being anywhere near equal.

Most of these survivors from whom the champions will be chosen are of the furious rushing type. It was such tactics that gave Chicago its overwhelming victory of a year ago. At that time sponsors of the New York News team said they hoped for plenty of rushers this year. Certainly their boys will be so coached in the final training period.

Predictions of victory always are dangerous, both because they tend to promote overconfidence and because you do not know what the other team has. But with the right type of material, chances for success certainly are greater. Chicagoland's squad in nearly all the eight classes is the right type of material.

HOME RUNS AND PITCHING PEP UP CUBS' CAMP GAME

Hornsby Plays as Regulars Beat Recruits.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Avalon, Cal., March 3.—The Cub recruits almost attained the status of Catalina island champions this afternoon. They were leading the regulars in a training camp game until two were out in the seventh and final inning, when a belated rally changed everything. The regulars worked over two runs at this point and nosed out their less experienced training mates, 4 to 3.

Manager Hornsby put himself at his old position, second base, for the first time since the camp opened, but he wasn't there by choice. Billy Herman, the regular occupant, sported a sore right arm as the result of being hit by a batted ball yesterday. Despite his decision not to use his aging legs on the theory that they might be badly needed during the season, Hornsby acted very much like a colt. However, his usually murderous bat was as silent as a cemetery. In four attempts he tapped politely to the infield on three occasions and in the other walked. Big hearted Andy Lotshaw, as umpire, is suspected of having had something to do with the base on balls.

Kreevich Hits Homer.

Going into the seventh inning the regulars were one run behind as a result of a home run which Mike Kreevich bounced over the right field fence in the same inning. The regulars started their final assault in the fashion of the afternoon Two were retired immediately. But then the storm began to whistle around Leroy Herrmann. Cuyler slapped a single to center and Stephenson was hit on the arm. Jurges made a whale of a stop on Richbourg's grounder, but didn't get any body. So the bases were filled. Cuyler was forced in by a base on balls to Hornsby and on Grimm's single Stevie hiked home with the deciding run.

Cuyler's single was only part of a busy afternoon for him. In the first inning he drove one of Lon Warneke's foolers on a line into deep center where Johnny Moore finally caught up with it, but not until after Kiki had scored. Cuyler's home run was exactly half of the total hits made off Warneke in a serious four innings pitching exhibition. Herrmann, who was wild as usual, couldn't come close to matching Warneke.

Tinning Does Well.

Another pleasing bit of pitching was revealed by Lyle Tinning, the stocky right hander purchased from Des Moines. It was his first chance under competitive conditions and he made the best of it. He worked the last three innings for the Regulars and the only hit against him was Kreevich's bounding homer, which under big league rules, would have been restricted to a two base hit. Before Tinning's appearance, the Regulars' pitching had been handled by Ed Baecht, who was good enough except in one inning when Barton's single, H. Taylor's triple and a single by Jurges presented the recruits with two runs.

There were others besides Hornsby in the regular lineup who failed to make their bats produce. Hack, the third baseman, who, because of his slimness, has been dubbed "Muscles," got nothing more than a base on balls out of four attempts. English was at the plate the same number of times and was completely baffled by the combined efforts of Warneke and Herrmann.

Morris, Red Sox Pitcher, Dies of Knife Wounds

PARTY FATAL

Century, Fla., March 3.—[Special.]—Big Ed Morris, 31 year old pitcher of the Boston American league baseball club, died today of knife wounds suffered in a fight at a dinner given in his honor at Brewton, Ala., last Monday night, on the eve of his departure for the Red Sox training camp.

Morris was stabbed twice in the chest by Joe White of Brewton after they had argued during the party. White plunged the knife blade into Morris' chest after both fell on the floor.

Began Career in 1920.

Morris began his professional baseball career in 1920, pitching for the Bradenton club of the Florida State league. The following year he went to the Chattanooga Southern association team, where he remained until 1922.

His remarkable pitching for the minor league club attracted the attention of several major league teams, with the result that in the 1922 season he went to the Chicago Cubs for a trial. However, the next year he returned to the Southern association, playing with the Chattanooga and Nashville clubs.

He remained at Nashville until 1927, when he was traded to Mobile. Near the end of the 1927 season he was sold to Boston. The amount was not revealed.

In his first year with the Boston club, Morris won 19 games while losing 15. In 1929 he triumphed in 14 contests and lost the same number. A sore arm the last two seasons hampered his work. He appeared in only 18 games in 1930, winning four and losing nine. Last year he won five and lost seven.

Before joining the Bradenton club in 1920, Morris was with the United States marines in 1918 and then enrolled at Palmer college, Fla., in 1919. He was born at Foshee, Ala., on Dec. 7, 1899.

Assailant Charged with Murder.

Early today, physicans, who yesterday said Morris had an even chance to live, announced that Morris would not pull through. Oxygen was administered early this morning in an effort to keep him alive.

White, who has been in the hands of Brewton police since the stabbing, has been charged with first degree murder. The warrant was issued by Sheriff O. S. Burns of Brewton. White

RED SOX CANCEL DRILL.

Savannah, Ga., March 3.—(AP)—President Bob Quinn today reached the Boston Red Sox training camp a few hours before news of Ed Morris' death was telephoned from Century, Fla. After expressing his sorrow over the affair, he announced he would not attempt to get another pitcher but would rely on either Pete Donahue or Bob Weiland to make the big league grade.

Manager Shano Collins put the squad through a brisk morning workout, but canceled the afternoon session as a mark of respect for Morris.

Falcons Lose 1st Game in 19 at Home, 2 to 1

Detroit, Mich., March 3.—(AP)—A long home winning streak of the Detroit Falcons ended tonight when the New York Rangers downed the Detroit team, 2 to 1, in a National league hockey match attended by 7,000. Previous to tonight's game the Falcons had won or tied 18 home games.

Doug Brennan, Ranger wing man, scored late in the first period and Art Somers got the second Ranger goal midway in the second session. Detroit's goal came early in the last period when Danny Cox sent the puck past John Foss Roach, who put up a sensational game in the Ranger nets.

CANADIENS WIN, 2-1.

MONTREAL, Que., March 3.—(AP)—The Montreal Canadiens captured first place in the Canadian division of the National Hockey league and won the big league championship of the city for the 1931-'32 season tonight by defeating the Maroons, 2 to 1.

The Canadiens won four of the seven intracity games and one was tied. Tonight's victory put them two points ahead of the Toronto Maple Leafs, who were idle.

Only six penalties were called in the entire game, each team getting three.

Cincinnati, O., March 3.—(AP)—Jack Dempsey tackled two more opponents on his comeback path tonight, failed to knock out either of them, and heard a chorus of boos from the crowd.

George Trenkle, Oklahoma heavyweight, took Dempsey's offerings in a two round exhibition without trouble. Ray Vanzke, 210 pound Chicago heavyweight, found the going tougher and was on the verge of a knockout at the end of the second and final round.

Vanzke was substituted for Jack O'Dowd, Columbus, who was stricken with influenza at the last minute.

VIRGINIA VAN WIE IN SEMI-FINALS OF FLORIDA GOLF

St. Augustine, Fla., March 3.—[Special.]—Virginia Van Wie of Chicago today won her quarter-final match in the Florida East Coast Women's golf championship tournament, defeating Miss Bea Gottlieb, Glen Oaks, L. I., 5 and 3. The other three favorites, Helen Hicks, Maureen Orcutt and Mrs. R. C. Lake, also triumphed.

Miss Hicks, national women's champion, defeated Mrs. Leo Federman of Long Island, 1 up; Miss Orcutt eliminated Miss Frances Hadfield, Milwaukee, Wis., 5 and 4, and Mrs. Lake triumphed over Francis Williams, Wayne, Pa., 1 up.

ITCHING PALMS OF SAN ANTONIO WAVE SOX HELLO

Welcome Makes the Boys Think They're Champs.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

San Antonio, Tex., March 3.—You'd think the Chicago White Sox were the world champions of baseball and a few other sports, the way Mayor C. M. Chambers and other civic greeters turned out this morning when J. Louis Comiskey led his athletes into town. Last year both the New York Giants and the Sox trained here, causing little stir, which made today's hullabaloo something of a surprise.

The explanation still is vague, unless the Texas weather boosters are a bit alarmed because all of the major league clubs have left the large state solely to the White Sox. The Giants, the latest deserters, went to bleak California.

Then, too, there is the fact that the Sox are staying at the national headquarters of the Garner for President organization, which gives everything a red fire, horn tooting aspect.

Gets Key to the City.

At the reception this morning Owner Comiskey was given the key to the city in an old fashioned ceremony of hospitality not accorded the Sox in, lo, these many seasons of second division tenancy.

There was only one jarring note in the whole ceremony. One of the local papers, in referring to the arrival of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE representative, spoke of his "huge, portly figure stepping from the Pullman." THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE representative came in by automobile, unlike Owner Comiskey, who came on the aforementioned Pullman.

After the ceremonies Manager Fonseca called a meeting of his athletes, at which the hitting signals for the year were worked out. Then the boys were told that, inasmuch as it had rained pretty hard here last night, they would get a day off. As a hot sun was beaming at the time there was a grand rush for the Willow Springs golf course. The boys had little opportunity to golf in Mineral Wells, so the course here today swarmed with baseball golfers of varying talents.

And Free Baths Are Out.

The formal baseball training season will open tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock, with two squads working in overlapping shifts.

Notice was served on the fellows that from now on those who wish to bathe will have to bathe themselves. The Mineral Wells days are over for at least another year. There is a turkish bath layout in the Sox hotel here and those who got the bath habit in Mineral Wells can patronize the local parlor at their own expense. There is, however, no record of a ball player ever having spent his own money for a bath, what with so many necessities to be bought.

Among the positive announcements made to San Antonio fandom was one that Smead Jolley positively is to be taught to catch while here. Passed balls behind the plate rarely are as disastrous as passed balls in the outfield which cause singles or putouts to bloom into triples, it was explained, in the announcement that the Sox are determined to get Jolley into the batting order. It was intimated that it always will be possible to relieve Smead when the tying or winning run is on third base.

With this persistent attitude prevailing in regard to catching, and the infield and pitching situation an open book, the only mystery hereabouts is the eventual makeup of the outfield.

Perkins Ready to Leave Hospital After Shooting

Miami, Fla., March 3.—(AP)—Hospital authorities tonight said T. Philip Perkins, former British amateur golf champion, had recovered sufficiently from bullet wounds received in a night club raid here Saturday to leave the hospital if he desired. Perkins was shot in the left thigh by a member of a bandit gang that raided the Embassy night club.

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

A splendid scenario with all the old meller-drammer trimmings was disarranged at the Chicago Stadium last night, but the mistake sufficed to give the Chicago Shamrocks a 1 to 1 tie with the St. Louis Fliers in two overtime periods.

The script called for a former home town hero, one Bobby Burns, to come into his own against the club which had renounced him. Bobby, once the speediest of Shamrocks, took his cue perfectly and scored the first goal of the game in the middle of the last regular period.

A Collegian Did It.

The journalists present all were prepared to compose odes about how Bobby had been sold down the river by the Shamrocks a few weeks ago and had come back to avenge the insult. Then Tony Prelesnik, who was just one of those college boys a year ago, mixed up all the lines for the performance by tying the score with only 62 seconds of the regular period remaining.

The tie was the second between the two teams this year, the Shamrocks having won five of the other eight games played. It also removed them by four points from a tie for the league leadership with the Kansas City Pla-Mors, who disposed of Tulsa last night.

What! No Bloomers?

The start was delayed nearly 15 minutes, and the impatient attendance had to be appeased with an announcement that the missing Fliers were in the house, but two of them were unable to find their bloomers. They finally appeared and dazzled the customers with what appeared to be new uniforms—ensembles of green and orange.

Neither team was particularly reticent about its intentions of scoring. The Shamrocks controlled the offensive throughout the greater part of the period, but Goalie Rheaume turned away all manner of shots at him and his cage.

All the Shamrock lines had plenty of scoring opportunities. Try as they might, however, they couldn't drive the puck past Rheaume. Bobby Burns and McPherson worried Karakas to some extent, but not sufficiently to annoy Mike, for the Shamrock wings took the puck right back up the ice.

It's the Goalies' Night.

The Fliers opened the second period with a drive which finally found three of them draped around Mike's form, the puck in his glove and Riley somewhere inside the cage prepared to fend off any wild shots that might have come out of the disturbance.

Before St. Louis could renew the attack the Shamrocks had appropriated the puck and thenceforth proceeded to make Rheaume the target for a dozen assorted shots. Herb was in a very stubborn mood, however, and nary a one went past him, although he was called upon to make some startling saves. One of these came when Riley dashed down and made a perfect pass to Brydson. Gordie's shot was perfect, but so was Rheaume's stop and still no lights blinked in the score board.

The speedy Burns and McPherson then united to give Karakas a time of it. Prelesnik staged a bit of defensive heroism in the last three minutes. Mike was out of his cage and flat on the ice. The puck came sailing out of a pack and would have gone in if Tony hadn't dropped in front of the cage and shoved the disc under Mike for a double play.

Customers Demand Action.

The puck's progress up and down the rink in the third period seemed to be conducted on a time table basis. This appeared to irritate the customers, who suddenly realized the Chicagoans' marksmanship, in view of the many scoring opportunities offered, had been decidedly frowsy, if not a word rhyming with the same.

Certain of the clientele even went so far as to praise Burns, thus encouraging Bobby to hammer his way past the blue line, take a pass from Sectional play in the Chicago Catholic High School league will end tonight.

St. Patrick, which is in first place in the heavyweight race in the north section, must defeat St. Mel, holder of second place, to capture the championship. St. Patrick has suffered only one defeat this season.

In the south section, two heavyweight teams, St. Philip and Leo, are tied. St. Philip will meet Joliet, while Leo faces St. Ignatius. Both St. Philip and Leo are expected to triumph tonight and a playoff probably will be held early next week to determine which team will represent the section in the finals, scheduled for next Friday.

New Trier at Morton.

New Trier's heavyweight team, undefeated in the Suburban league until last week, meets Morton at Cicero in its last game of the season. A victory over Morton tonight will give New Trier the championship.

In other heavyweight league contests Proviso will face Oak Park at the latter's fieldhouse, while Evanston meets Deerfield at Highland Park.

Lights Play Semi-Final.

The undefeated Roosevelt lightweights will play Crane Tech at Marshall gymnasium this afternoon in the first game of the semi-final round for the Chicago Public High School league title. The other lightweight contest between Tilden and Phillips will be played tomorrow at White City.

The heavyweight games also will be played tomorrow, Marshall playing Crane at the 132d infantry armory, and Bowen meeting Calumet at White City.

Shamrocks Tie Fliers, 1-1, in Last Minute

McPherson in the most hysterical moment of the evening and drive the puck beyond the prone Karakas. This was achieved in 11:58.

Then, just when Bobby was on the verge of glory, Prelesnik took a pass from Buswell and with Mr. Rheaume relaxed upon the ice, Tony drove the puck home in 18:58, tying the score.

Rheaume Massages Referee.

Goalie Rheaume became envious of his companions' opportunities to match sticks, elbows, and knees with the brash young Shamrocks and at the beginning of the overtime he intruded upon an argument in which he seemed to have no particular part. He finally stroked Referee Lavelle on the chin with the back of his hand and the official controlled himself long enough to tax Herb $25 for the massage.

The overtime play produced some of the most frantic and futile maneuvering of the game, both teams dashing up and down the ice with great abandon, but without profit. And that's how they finished—without profit.

Half of Big Ten Track Men Compete on Midway Tonight

Half of the track athletes in the Big Ten will compete at the University of Chicago tonight in a five way meet which brings together Indiana, Minnesota, Northwestern, Purdue and Chicago. The meet will serve as a warm up for the conference championships to be decided at the Midway next week.

Indiana and Minnesota, which have never made much of a dent in conference track circles, will dominate the meet, with the margin of victory slight either way. Northwestern, Chicago and Purdue are expected to fight it out for third place.

Indiana Is Favorite.

With dual meet victories over Ohio, Iowa, Purdue, and Illinois, Indiana brings to the meet the finest team in its history. Among the Hoosier stars are Ivan Fuqua, sophomore Olympic possibility in the quarter mile; Henry Brocksmith, who does a 4:20 mile; Cliff Watson, leading two miler of the conference; Bryce Beecher, who does 13 feet 7 inches in the pole vault and 6 feet in the high jump; Charles Hornbostel, a 1:57 half-miler; and Clarence Crouch, all around performer in the dash, hurdles and broad jump.

Minnesota's strength lies largely in the events other than the Indiana specialties. Elton Hess, however, Gopher pole vaulter, who gave up his dairy farm to return to school, and who did 13 feet 7½ inches last week, will be Beecher's chief trouble. Clarence Munn is at least a yard ahead of the rest of field in the shot put. Capt. Cam Hackle, who tied for the conference indoor high jump title last year, should win that event.

Ford Purple's Best.

Zack Ford, who equaled the world's 40 yard dash record in the quadrangular meet at Evanston, should be Northwestern's chief point-getter. Northwestern also should pick up points in the 440 with Norman Heyne and Earl Tetting; in the mile with Jim Payne; in the hurdles with Art Jens; and in the high jump with Mal Read, Ollie Olson, Dave Mandelbaum and Ollie Duggans. The Purple relay team figures as the best of the meet.

The Maroons must count heavily on John Brooks, sophomore star who should take the broad jump with ease and should place in the hurdles and possibly in the dash. Capt. Roy Black has an outside chance to win both hurdle events. John Roberts in the high jump, Don Birney in the vault and a fair relay team comprise the remainder of Chicago's possibilities.

MAROONS MEET 2 BIG TEN GYM TEAMS TONIGHT

The University of Chicago's championship gymnastics team will meet two of its chief rivals, Illinois and Michigan, in a triangular exhibition at Bartlett gymnasium tonight. The Maroons regard Illinois as the most dangerous obstacle in their path to another title, which will be settled in the conference meet at the Midway next week. Rehor and Glasser, Illini stars, who will team in four events, will face Olson and Wright, all around men who gather most of Chicago's points.

N. U. Swimmers Meet Michigan Stars Tonight

Just how the Western conference swimming championships will result next week probably will be determined tonight at Patten pool when Northwestern and Michigan clash in a dual meet.

For several years the Wildcats and Wolverines have dominated conference swimming and this year is no exception. Both teams are undefeated in dual meet competition and have set world as well as collegiate records.

Headed by Johnny Schmieler, one of the greatest all around swimmers the conference has seen, the Michigan team is practically the same as the one which won the national title last year. The Wildcats, on the other hand, will present a team dominated by sophomores.

The feature race should be the 100 yard free style when Schmieler hooks up with two Northwestern sophomores Mert Wilcox and Art Highland. Schmieler has been doing :53 in a long pool while Wilcox and Highland have been doing :52 in a short pool.

COURT RUMOR HAS KEARNS, WIFE NEAR SETTLEMENT

The domestic differences of Jack Kearns, fight manager, and his estranged wife, Legana, who now is ill in New York City, are soon to be settled according to rumors prevalent in the court of Circuit Judge Daniel P. Trude yesterday.

Kearns is expected to appear this morning with a sum of money to be paid on a $1,750 arrears in a temporary alimony order, or face the threat of a jail sentence made recently when Attorney Cornelius Harrington entered a rule to show cause why the manager should not be held in contempt of court before Judge Trude, on behalf of Mrs. Kearns.

The settlement, according to reports, will be made in New York for the sum of $12,000 in cash.

ST. PAUL PREPS ACCEPT BID TO LOYOLA MEET

Cretin High school of St. Paul, Minn., yesterday was added to the list of schools which will compete for the National Catholic Interscholastic basketball championship in the ninth annual tournament at Loyola university, March 16 to 20.

Officials for the tournament were selected yesterday. Leonard Sachs, coach of the Loyola university basketball team, will have charge of the officiating. Others include Edmund Fallon, Lyle Clarno, Jack Travnicek, Wilfrid Smith, John Larkin, John Ladner, Jack Tierney, and Sam Pecararo.

Mistah Powell Picks 'Em, Mistah Beckah Hooks 'Em

BY BOB BECKER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Aboard the Ilderim, Florida Keys, Fla., March 3.—"Come on, Mistah Beckah, I'll pick 'em and you hook 'em. With this outfit I can tell you just what's don theah in the rock pile and then I'll signal you what to take."

Bill Powell's instructions to us sounded as if a deep sea diving expedition were about to begin and we looked around for the heavy outfit worn by the boys who walk on the bottom. This time we were in a small launch anchored in Broad creek, not far from Angelfish creek, where many sun seekers and fishermen anchor their boats during the winter, when Bill, the guide, handed us instructions about "You hook 'em and I'll pick 'em."

The objective of this final fishing excursion in the keys was to catch the smaller salt water fish on light tackle, with a preference for those species which the skipper of the Ilderim wanted for table use.

Paul H. Davis of Chicago had his bass outfit rigged up, ready for use. We hauled out another light bamboo outfit and Bill was going to use a handline.

However, we were unprepared, for Bill's personally instructed hooking program introduced a new kind of fishing. We have had some laughable fishing experiences on this continent during the last 15 years, but here, for the first time, we saw how, with the use of a crude waterscope, a fellow could look over his fish, almost pick out the good fish he wanted and then proceed on a business like basis.

Bill, a skilled tarpon guide, but keen about most any kind of fishing, picked up an object that looked like a big bucket. The bottom of it was glass. You could stick the glass end into the clear, light green salt water and look down to the bottom, some eight feet below the stern of the boat.

"What'll you have, Mistah Beckah?" asked Bill as he bent over the side of the boat and peered through the glass. "O, boy, look at that lawge porkfish. Here's an angelfish that's a whoppah. And I see three or fo-ah snappahs. And——"

But we took the waterscope at this point to look 'em over. The underwater rock garden was a beauty and there were five or six species of fish swimming around, as if there were no boat for miles.

ALLISON WINS IN INTERNATIONAL TENNIS TOURNEY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HAVANA, Cuba, March 3.—[Special.]—Wilmer Allison, Austin, Tex., and Gustavo Vollmer, Cuban champion, today won in the first round of the international tennis tournament here today. Allison defeated Jose Aguero, Cuba, 6-3, 6-0, while Vollmer won from Marcel Rainville, Canada, 6-4, 6-2.

Rainville, however, paired with George Lott of Chicago, defeated Aguero and Lorenzo Nodarse, 6-1, 10-8, 6-4, in the first match in the doubles.

Iowa Expects to Pick Coach Within Week

Iowa City, Ia., March 3.—[Special.]—Announcement of the appointment of a University of Iowa football coach can be expected early next week, according to Iowa athletic officials.

Since Jimmy Crowley, Michigan State coach, refused the Hawkeye offer last week, the board of control of athletics has held daily sessions, lasting two to three hours.

Negotiations Are Secret.

Other than to report progress, the athletic heads have guarded their negotiations with utmost secrecy and have not revealed the names of the men they are seeking. It is thought that the board may atempt to select a line and backfield coaching combination.

The names most frequently mentioned in unofficial reports are those of Harry Stuhldreher, Villa Nova coach and former Notre Dame quarter back; Gus Dorais, Detroit university; Elmer Layden, another Notre Dame "horseman" now coaching at Duquesne; Frank Wickhorst, University of California line coach, and Wallace Wade, Duke university.

Wickhorst Is Favored.

If a combination of two men is chosen, Wickhorst appears to be the most popular candidate for head coach. It is not known whether the board has been in contact with the California coach recently, but he conferred with several board members during a visit here in January. The name of Elmer Layden, whose home is in Davenport, is frequently linked with that of Wickhorst, as is that of Stuhldreher.

Hall Leads Matsuyama in Cue Match, 150 to 148

Allen Hall led Kinrey Matsuyama, 150 to 148, yesterday at the end of the third block of their 300 point three cushion match at Mussey's, 131 South Wabash avenue. Matsuyama won the first block, 50 to 39, and the third, 54 to 50. Hall won the second, 61 to 44. The Japanese star had a high run of 12.

Record Crowd to See Northwestern Five Meet Purdue

The largest crowd that ever witnessed a basketball game at Patten gym will be present tomorrow night when Northwestern meets Purdue with a share of the championship at stake.

A complete sell-out of the 6,000 seats available was effected over a week ago and thousands of requests for tickets have been returned. The game will be the last one of the schedule for the Wildcats and a victory will insure the Purple at least a half interest in the title. Purdue has one more game with Chicago following the Northwestern affair and must win both in order to grab an undisputed title.

First Place Teams Win in C. Y. O. Games

With few exceptions first place quintets defeated the second place qualifiers in the opening games of the Catholic Youth Basketball league's championship rounds last night.

The two outstanding instances in which divisional champions failed to come through with victories were in the St. Gertrude-St. Andrew and the Lady of Sorrows-Blessed Agnes contests. In the former St. Andrew, second place winner in the north division, trounced St. Gertrude, north shore champion, 29 to 23, while Blessed Agnes, west central lightweight title winner, lost to Lady of Sorrows, second place finalists in the west division, 25 to 21.

the south division, 23 to 15. St. Elizabeth of the south division, 23-15. St. Elizabeth walked away with the lightweight title in the south section and its defeat last night was the first this season.

St. Joseph's heavyweights, winners of the C. Y. O. lightweight title last year, tripped Lady of Solace, second place winner of the south central division, 31 to 19. Last night's scores were:

Follow These Rules:

1. Each day for 48 consecutive days (except Sunday) the Chicago Daily Tribune will print a United States Crossword Puzzle. The name of one of the 48 States in the United States will be in each puzzle. You are invited to solve the puzzle and name the State.

2. The Chicago Tribune will pay $5,000.00 in Cash Prizes to persons who send in the nearest correctly solved complete sets of puzzles in accordance with these rules. Note: This means that you do not necessarily have to solve each of the 48 puzzles correctly to win. The prizes will be paid to the persons whose entries rank highest.

3. This offer is open to everyone—men, women, boys and girls—except employes of the Chicago Tribune and their families. You pay nothing. Just prove your skill.

4. Puzzles are to be submitted only in complete sets. Do NOT send in each puzzle separately. Hold all puzzles until you have the complete set of 48. Then send them to "Crosswords," Chicago Tribune, Post Office Box 1539, Chicago, Illinois. All entries must be in by midnight 15 days after Puzzle No. 48 has been printed.

5. Each entry must be sent by First Class Mail, postage prepaid. Entries with insufficient postage will be returned by the Post Office Department. Make your entry simple and neat. Neatness will count.

6. You need not buy the Chicago Tribune. You may copy or trace the puzzles and send them in. The Chicago Tribune may be examined at any of its offices or at Public Libraries free of charge.

7. The judges will be appointed by the Chicago Tribune. Their decision will be final. In case of ties a duplicate award will be paid to each tying contestant.

AMERICANS DROP DEFENSIVE STYLE FOR HAWK GAME

New York Sextet to Rely on Speed Tonight.

The scramble for a playoff position in the approaching Stanley cup finals in the National Hockey league will be resumed tonight at the Stadium, where the Chicago Blackhawks play the New York Americans.

The Americans have relied on defensive hockey, but since their string of losses they have opened up their game. Instead of laying back and waiting for a break they start their attack at the first drop of the puck, which has resulted in more scores if it has not produced more victories.

Hawks Excel on Defense.

The Blackhawks are slightly ahead of the Americans in scores made, but defensively the Chicago team is far in the lead. Chuck Gardiner, the Hawks' star goalie, has 28 fewer goals scored against him than has his diminutive rival, Roy Worters.

In a recent poll of all star hockey teams, Chuck Gardiner won the goalie's position by a wide margin.

The Americans' main scoring line consists of Normie Himes, Joe Lamb, and Rabbit McVeigh, who have netted nearly half of the goals scored by the New York team this season. Burt McInenly and Tommy Filmore, who came to the Americans in a trade with Detroit for Happy Emms and Frank Carson, are playing the wings with the veteran Billy Burch at center, and after a slow start are beginning to make goals.

Two New Players.

Kilrea, Keating, and Burmeister make up a fast third line. The latter two recently came from the minors and are making their first showing in Chicago.

Red Dutton and Vernon Ayres and Alex Shields and Bill Brydge are the American defense men who alternate in helping Worters to protect the nets.

Coach Iverson will use every Blackhawk in tonight's game with the exception of Stew Adams who will be out for the remainder of the season because of a broken arm. Lineup:

BLACKHAWKS.		AMERICANS.
Gardiner	Go a l	Worters
Abel	L. D.	Ayres
Graham	R. D.	Dutton
Cook	Cen tral	Burch
Thompson	L. W.	McInenly
March	R. W.	Filmore

SIGN JESSON AND BRONOWICZ FOR FRONTON MATCH

Another one of the numerous ex-college athletes who have turned wrestlers will make his appearance on a Chicago mat next Monday night at the Rainbo Fronton, Clark street and Lawrence avenue. He is Bob Jesson, formerly of the University of Iowa, who has been matched with Frank Bronowicz, Polish veteran. Jesson has never appeared here before.

This is the fourth match closed by Promoter Joe Coffey. The main event will be a finish battle between Kola Kwariani, Russian, and Gino Garibaldi, Italian youngster. The semi-windup has Hans Kampfer, German, and Jim Clinkstock, giant Indian, as principals. The other match is between Hans Bauer, Chicago, and Marshall Blackstock, Georgia.

One of the two victors in the windup and semi-windup will be matched with Jim Londos here later in the month. Londos defeated Rudy Dusek in his last appearance here.

ARLINGTON PARK WILL ABANDON STEEPLECHASING

Steeplechasing will not be conducted at Arlington Park during the thirty day meeting from June 27 to July 30, Roy Carruthers, general manager, announced yesterday.

The decision was reached because not enough owners of steeplechase horses were interested in the sport at Arlington Park, although nearly $40,000 was distributed in purses for jumping races last season.

State Y. M. C. A. Handball Tourney Opens Tonight

The Illinois state Y. M. C. A. handball tournament will be held at the Lawson Y. M. C. A., 30 West Chicago avenue, tonight and tomorrow. Sixteen teams from Evanston, Oak Park, Hyde Park, Chicago, and Decatur, will participate. The preliminary matches are scheduled for tonight and the semi-finals and finals for tomorrow afternoon.

CHICAGO STOCK PRICES UNEVEN; UTILITIES WEAK

Grigsby-Grunow Reports Big 7 Months Loss.

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

Utility stocks again held the center of attention yesterday on the Chicago exchange. Price movements were irregular but most of the leading utility shares finished the day with lower prices, some with substantial losses.

Shares of the big Insull operating companies were pressed by sellers. The selling spread to the preferred stocks of Public Service of Northern Illinois which lost ground on comparatively small turnover. Aggressive support was missing in all but Middle West Utilities common which managed to finish unchanged on transactions approaching 23,000 shares. The company's notes, maturing in June, were quoted at 50 in New York, up 5 points from Wednesday's last quotation.

Grigsby Reports Loss.

In other classes of stocks price movements were irregular within a narrow range. The report of Grigsby-Grunow company showing a heavy loss in the last seven months of 1931, proved a negligible market factor. Only 500 shares of the company's stock appeared on the tape at 1¼.

The consolidated report revealed a net loss for the 7 months' period of $2,901,305, after all charges, including losses on property sold. Sales for the period amounted to $3,417,589. The previous statement of the company, which covered the year ended May 31, 1931, showed a net loss of $2,169,761 on a net sales volume of $28,350,381.

As of Dec. 31 the company had current assets of $4,159,918 and current liabilities of $1,079,291, as compared with $5,586,327 and $1,262,323, respectively, on May 31. Cash on hand at the close of the year totaled $841,179, against $952,371 seven months earlier.

Funded Debt Lower.

Funded debt during the period was reduced from $3,025,200 to $2,669,800 and inventories were slashed from $2,985,700 to $1,847,169.

Directors of Noblitt Sparks Industries yesterday omitted the quarterly dividend of 40c a share on the capital stock. The action was taken, it was explained, to conserve cash resources. Q. G. Noblitt, president, said that prospects for the coming year are good.

BANKERS COOL TO U. S. POLICY ON EASY MONEY

Disapprove of Vast Bond Sale Plan.

BY O. A. MATHER.

While bankers, manufacturers and merchants, in fact, virtually everybody, is heartily in sympathy with and whole-heartedly supporting President Hoover's campaign to bring out hoarded money for useful purposes, there is not the same unanimity over the administration's "easy money" program. In fact, once again there is a sharp cleavage between Chicago and eastern financiers over the rather palpable plans of the government to lower the federal reserve banks' rediscount rates in order to conduct large scale government financing at what Chicago bankers regard as unduly low rates.

It will be recalled that a few years ago, Chicago bankers and directors of the Chicago federal reserve bank rebelled when the federal reserve board arbitrarily forced that institution to cut its rediscount rate following such action by the New York reserve bank. The Chicagoans then protested that abnormally low and unjustified rediscount rates would lead to stock market inflation. And that is what happened.

Fear Currency Inflation.

While there is no present fear of stock market inflation, there is considerable misgiving of inflation on the score of currency and government bond issues. Chicago financiers are in sympathy with efforts of the treasury to refinance the government's real needs, particularly with a large impending deficit, but they are not nearly as sympathetic with proposals to sell a vast additional amount of government bonds in order to finance the varied and somewhat grandiose schemes now being put forth under the guise of remedies for depression.

In the opinion of Chicago financiers the lowering of its rediscount rate a week ago by the New York reserve bank was encouraged by the Hoover administration as an inducement to member banks of the federal reserve system to buy heavily of government bonds. If rediscount rates generally are lowered, the banks could make a neat profit by purchasing government securities and then borrowing on them at the reserve banks.

Expanding Own Currency.

In this way, too, the federal reserve banks would be able to expand their own issue of currency, which must be backed by 40 per cent gold and 60 per cent government securities. The latter backing comes either through the reserve banks themselves buying bonds or holding them through borrowings of the member banks.

The heads of Chicago's big banks are not entirely willing to load their institutions with additional government bonds, even though some profit might be derived. They have had such profits before, but generally they proved only temporary, being wiped out by later declines in prices. At any event, they have not followed thus far the lead of the New York reserve bank.

Weekly Reserve Statement.

The weekly statement of the federal reserve system, issued last night, shows that holdings of government obligations increased $19,399,000 in the last week. But of this increase $17,347,000 was attributed to member banks in the New York district, which makes it appear that the other reserve banks and their member banks are not entirely "sold" on the idea of lowering rediscount rates abnormally in order to facilitate further large flotations of government securities.

The statement of the reserve board, showing a decline in money in circulation of around $9,000,000 in the last week, was more generally satisfactory. It indicated a further return of money from hoarding, particularly because the March 1 commercial settlements usually bring an expansion in currency. Federal reserve notes in circulation declined $4,339,000.

Judged also by the weekly statement, there doesn't appear to be much need for currency inflation. In fact there has been a further contraction in the demand for credit. The member banks of the reserve system reduced their borrowings from the reserve banks by $6,841,000, bringing the total down to $828,402,000. And the federal banks absorbed credit by reducing their own holdings of bankers' acceptances by $17,742,000 and other securities by $8,608,000. These reductions more than offset the system's expansion in holdings of government securities.

Gold Stock Unchanged.

The country's monetary gold stock showed no change in the last week, holding at $4,350,000,000. Total money in circulation now is $5,583,000,000. Gold reserves held by the federal reserves banks increased $1,426,000, now standing at $2,938,974,000. Federal reserve note circulation totals $2,638,488,000. The system's ratio of total reserves to liabilities now stands at 68.1 per cent, compared with 68 per cent a week ago.

The New York Reserve bank made no change yesterday in its 3 per cent rediscount rate.

Brokers' loans, as reported by the reserve board yesterday, expanded $6,000,000 in the last week, although the current total of $495,000,000 is still $1,295,000,000 below a year ago, when the aggregate was $1,790,000,000. The New York banks increased their own loans by $13,000,000, but interior banks withdrew $7,000,000.

Reports Small Increase in American Gold Stock

New York, March 3.—(AP)—Gold transactions reported by the New York Federal Reserve bank today indicated a $32,600 gain in that metal. An import of $55,800 was received from the Straits Settlements, while $23,200 were exported to England.

Bell System Net Advances for Year 1931

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, March 3.—The American Telephone and Telegraph company in 1931 earned its $9 dividend with 5 cents a share to spare. A record total of $163,588,474 was paid in dividends on an average of 18,419,416 shares outstanding during the year. The company finished the year with over a quarter billion dollars in cash and temporary investments in the form of government, state and municipal short-term securities.

Net income after depreciation, taxes and all interest charges totaled $166,666,533, equivalent to $9.05 a share on the average amount of stock outstanding during the year. This compares with $165,544,707 in 1930, equivalent to $10.44 a share on an average of 15,856,696 shares.

Total Assets 5 Billions.

The Bell system as a whole, which combines the accounts of the parent company and its twenty-four operating telephone subsidiaries, had on Dec. 31, 1931, total assets of $5,024,335,000, an increase of $24,000,000 during the year. Its cash assets, including funds temporarily invested in government securities, were $289,000,000.

The system's operating revenues decreased $28,000,000, or 2.6 per cent. At the same time, in spite of an increase of $4,000,000 in taxes and $10,000,000 n depreciation, total expenses decreased $29,000,000. Operating revenue was, therefore, slightly in excess of 1930, but a reduction of $11,000,000 in non-operating revenues, due to a reduction in dividends received from the Western Electric company, resulted in net earnings of $258,000,000, or $10,000,000 less than in 1930. These net earnings were at the rate of 5.1 per cent on the cost of plant and other assets.

The number of Bell system telephones decreased during the year 292,000, or a little less than 2 per cent, as compared with a net gain in 1930 of 122,500. Local telephone conversations were about 1 per cent less and toll and long distance calls 6 per cent less than in 1930. During the last quarter the decreases compared with the last quarter of 1930 were about 2 per cent and 9 per cent respectively.

Affects Western Electric.

The decline in gross business of the Bell system, even though small, deprived the Western Electric company of part of its usual manufacturing based on the normal growth of the telephone industry. Sales amounted to $229,000,000, compared with $361,000,000 in 1930.

Fewer employés of the Bell system companies were laid off during 1931 than in normal years, thanks to the policy of planning construction programs so as to avoid extraordinary fluctuations from year to year.

Commenting on employment conditions during a depression, President Walter S. Gifford said:

"It would seem that an employment reserve set aside out of earnings in prosperous years might aid in further stabilization of work as well as prove a protection for labor much as a surplus is a protection for capital. As such a reserve could be built up only after conditions improve, the adoption of such a plan not immediate, but it will continue to receive serious study and consideration."

Fuller Picture Presented.

Capital stock of the American Telephone and Telegraph company issued and outstanding at the end of 1931 totaled $1,865,836,100. This figure, however, does not give a complete picture of the paid in capital, for the balance sheet shows $268,568,584 of premiums received on stock outstanding and $72,339,276 of installments paid on stock subscribed for, but not yet issued. The total for these three capital items is $2,206,743,960. While capital stock outstanding increased $78,184,900, the long-term debt was reduced $4,314,800 to $458,300,900. In addition, the company had outstanding $13,122,615 of notes sold to the pension fund trustees. Capital stock and debt items thus totaled $2,678,167.

FRENCH, GERMANS OFFER AUSTRIANS TARIFF SUPPORT

[Copyright: 1932: By the New York Times.]

VIENNA, March 3.—Seemingly as a counter move to the announcement by Premier André Tardieu in the French chamber of deputies Tuesday, that he had promised representatives of the little entente, Austria and Hungary, at Geneva the support of France, Britain and Italy in their negotiations for an eastern European preferential tariff bloc, the German government today presented a note to Vienna stating its willingness to grant Austria preferential treatment if the most favored nation clause were suspended.

Both the action of M. Tardieu and that of Germany are interpreted here as the answers to the appeal recently addressed by Austria to the four large European powers for wider markets to make possible its continued economic existence.

Also, to judge from Vienna press comment, they are regarded as a renewal of the battle recently fought by France and Germany over the Austro-German customs union proposal. That ill fated plan was put forward by Austria and Germany as an economic device, but opposed and defeated by France.

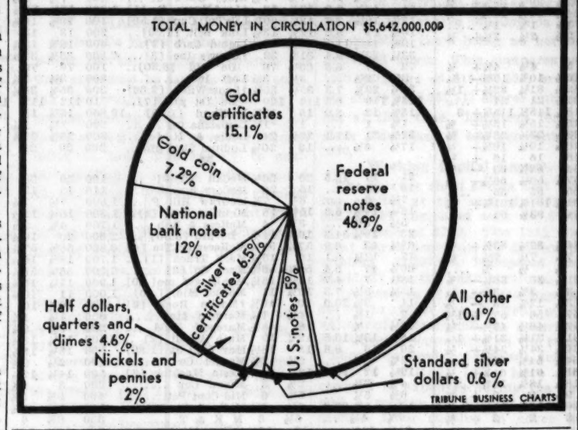
FEDERAL RESERVE NOTES CONSTITUTE LARGEST PART OF MONEY IN CIRCULATION



BUYERS PROFIT BY BANK POOL OF RAIL BONDS

Syndicate Ends Work; Investors Gain.

New York, March 3.—(AP)—The Wall street banking group formed last December to buy railroad bonds when they were kicking around their lowest price levels has been dissolved.

All objects have been achieved, bankers said, with the possible exception of one, namely, that the bankers who at that time pointed to the likelihood of an appreciable market advance did not themselves get any great share of the later market profit.

Investors Profit Most.

The lion's share of the profit, it was stated, went to private investors, quick to act on information that bankers believed the time ripe to buy selected railroad bonds. The bankers' agreement provided for a joint buying movement designed to gather in choice railroad securities on further price reactions. But there were no substantial reactions. The market turned the other way.

Bankers turned bullish last December because, they said, prospects pointed to early transportation relief, through likelihood of a wage reduction and through the agency of the Reconstruction Finance corporation.

While they have been secretive as to the money set aside for investment in the so-called banking concert, it was stated today by one man who had a hand in the organization that $50,000,000 were allocated for such purchase. Of that only $300,000 were actually given a chance to go to work.

The group's profit was placed at $35,000—regarded as chicken feed in comparison with the sum involved.

Price Advance Revealed.

The extent of the gains in railroad bonds since the group was formed was clearly registered in yesterday's Associated Press standard statistics market averages. The average price of 20 representative railroad bonds at the close of yesterday's market was $758 per $1,000 denomination, a gain of $135 from the December 16 low of $625.

The largest individual gain was recorded by Nickel Plate 6 per cents, which mature this year. This bond jumped up $105 in yesterday's market session, selling at one time at $670 per $1,000 unit, a gain of $525 over its low point of $145 reached last December, when investors were worried over how the road could meet the maturity of this issue.

LEGAL DELAYS COST ISAAC GUGGENHEIM ESTATE OVER MILLION

New York, March 3.—[Special.]—Nearly ten years after his death, final appraisal and accounting of the estate of Isaac Guggenheim, the copper magnate, were filed in Surrogate's court at Mineola today. A net estate of $10,163,113 was revealed.

When Mr. Guggenheim died in England in October, 1922, it was estimated his estate would net at least $14,000,000, but long litigation and suits for additional inheritance taxes delayed the settlement; deductions totaled nearly $2,000,000. The gross estate was valued at $12,162,970.

Interest in Guggenheim Brothers, the appraisal disclosed, has a value of $1,366,869. Mortgages and notes were valued at $20,759 and real estate at $791,156. Bond and stock holdings were valued at $9,725,284, including 274,406 shares of the capital stock of the Chile Copper company, valued at $7,186,007, and Chile Copper company bonds valued at $903,025. Ten thousand shares of Kennecott Copper capital stock were valued at $340,540.

The bulk of the estate was left to the widow, Mrs. Carrie Guggenheim, and three daughters.

H. M. BYLLESBY REPORTS DECLINE IN ITS INCOME

The annual report of H. M. Byllesby & Co., released yesterday, reflects the adverse conditions existing in the investment banking field last year. The company reported income from interest, dividends and underwriting of securities of $859,925 after expenses and taxes. In 1930 the company reported net income of $1,807,149.

The company paid out $1,761,750 in dividends on the preferred and common stocks during the year. This outlay, coupled with a depreciation in market value of securities owned of $6,074,608 and a reserve of $783,304 set up against receivables, resulted in a large reduction in surplus. At the close of the year surplus stood at $3,425,702, as compared with $11,130,493 at the end of 1930.

An Exceptional Opportunity for Profit

● The prices at which the 5% Gold Notes of Middle West Utilities Company are now selling indicate, we believe, unwarranted lack of confidence in the financial strength of this great utility system.

● The well-proved earning power of this extensive utility enterprise, during the present period of business stress, is the basis of our faith in the Company's credit. During the past ten years we have sold the underlying bond issues of Middle West Utilities Company, and we believe that following the present period of reaction the Company will continue to thrive as it has in the past.

● We will be pleased to supply information regarding these notes and to execute orders for them at the market.

GERMANS REPAY PART OF LOAN; WIN RENEWAL

Get 90 Days More on 90 Millions.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, March 3.—Directors of the local federal reserve bank have approved the renewal tomorrow of $22,500,000 of the $25,000,000 federal reserve bank share of the Reichsbank credit of $100,000,000. That credit was granted last year jointly by the federal reserve, the Bank for International Settlements, the Bank of England and Bank of France. It was extended several times.

The Reichsbank is paying $2,500,000 on account of principal to each of its four central bank creditors in connection with the renewal, a total of $10,000,000, which will come out of the bank's gold or foreign exchange reserves. The renewal agreed to is for a period of three months, or to June 4.

Will Reduce Reserve.

While the payment of $10,000,000 to the four central banks, the Bank for International Settlements, the Bank of France, Bank of England and the local reserve bank probably will reduce the gold and foreign exchange reserve of the Reichsbank to new low levels, bankers feel that the effect of this will be offset by the good feeling created in Europe by the fact that Germany is paying something on account.

That news follows as it does the recent repayment of the entire $250,000,000 Bank of England foreign borrowings and the coming repayment of the $150,000,000 the British treasury has decided to pay on its American banking credit of $200,000,000. The British treasury, it was announced yesterdaq, has repaid $65,000,000 of its $100,000,000 overdraft credit at French private banks, though leaving the credit line open, as well as leaving outstanding the $100,000,000 one year notes sold to the French republic, which are not callable.

Some Oppose Repayment.

While the sentiment of bankers here at first was opposed to the repayment of any part of the Reichsbank credit at this time on the ground that it would weaken the Reichsbank, it was finally decided to accede to European demand for partial repayment in order to preserve harmony among the four banks.

Senate Group for U. S. Stock Exchange Quiz

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 3.—[Special.]—The senate banking and currency committee today approved and submitted to the senate a resolution calling for a thorough investigation into the country's securities exchanges. Immediate action on the resolution is to be called for, and it is virtually certain that the vote of senate will be favorable.

The full committee adopted without material change the language of the resolution of inquiry drawn up by the subcommittee composed of Senator Walcott [Rep., Conn.], who has acted as White House go between in the discussions over an investigation of short selling; Senator Steiwer [Rep., Ore.], and Senator Bulkley [Dem., O.].

In contrast to the President's demand for the exposure of bear raiding tactics only, the committee decided to go into the whole securities situation.

Limit Curb to Regulation.

Taking as a basis the resolution offered last December by Senator Hastings [Rep., Del.], the committee evinced its desire to limit the possible legislative results of the investigation by providing that any recommendations should be as to regulation rather than prohibition of market prices.

As reported to the senate by the banking and currency committee, the resolution is as follows:

"Resolved, That the committee on banking and currency, or any duly authorized subcommittee thereof, is authorized and directed:

"1. To make a thorough and complete investigation of the practices with respect to buying and selling, and borrowing and lending of listed securities upon the various stock exchanges, the values of such securities, and the effect of such practices upon interstate and foreign commerce, upon the operations of the national banking system, upon the federal reserve system, and upon the market for securities of the United States government.

Tax on Shorts Hinted.

"2. To report to the senate as soon as practicable the results of such investigation and, if in its judgment such practices should be regulated, to submit with such report its recommendations for the necessary remedial legislation and the desirability of the exercise of the taxing power of the United States with respect to such securities."

The phrases concerning the effect of market practices upon commerce, the national bank and federal reserve systems, and the government bond market, were inserted in the Hastings bill in order to insure the jurisdiction of the senate.

New York, March 3.—Nice things were still being said in Wall street today about Uncle Sam and his future, but the many press agents of the old gentleman in the spangle-tailed getup were careful not to let their optimism cost them too much in the way of stock investments. They parted with just about enough to keep the figures on the bull side of the ledger.

Realizing, attracted by yesterday's sharp runup, was a drag on the market all day. The day's news lacked anything in the way of a constructive development which might have served as an excuse for extending the rise and in the face of the many offerings by traders afraid to chance it any further the professionals of the bull camp were evidently content to have the list merely hold its own.

Trade Slows Down.

At any rate they allowed the trading to quiet down to its sluggish pace of last week, the turnover amounting to only about 1,700,000 shares. Pivotal issues were fairly well supported, but few of them were up more than a fraction on the final roll call and there were enough minus signs interlarded among them to make the list look rather ragged.

Evidently much better things had been planned for the day. There was a rush of buying orders at the start, the bulk of them having accumulated overnight in response to yesterday's good showing. In the first thirty minutes volume approximated 400,000 shares, or at the rate of a four million share day. Before the end of the hour, however, profit taking had begun to bear down the list and from that point on to the close the pre-

Some day you wives will request this protection

1882 1932

Many a man, sincerely believing that he is paying a compliment to his wife, appoints her executrix of his estate.

Few men, however, realize the labor and worry that such responsibility brings. But widows know — women who have spent hours studying investments, trying to arrive at satisfactory decisions involving thousands of dollars. They have gone through the difficult tax questions; they know the unending worry of caring for an estate.

This heavy burden can be easily avoided. Any widow may feel secure in the knowledge that her husband's estate is receiving careful and experienced attention. Through a trust company, she can be concerned as much or as little with the administration as she desires.

At the Harris Trust and Savings Bank, each detail of investment, taxes, and other technical matters is in the hands of trained men, backed by the knowledge and judgment developed through our fifty years of banking and investment experience.

Why not discuss this vital matter with your husband tonight?

GIVES A BREAK TO OWNERS AND BONDHOLDERS

This Reorganization Is a Bit Different.

BY AL CHASE.

Transfer of title yesterday to the southwest corner of Chicago and Humphrey avenues in Oak Park by Bernard L. and Marie A. Waindle to the Chicago Oaks Building corporation disclosed one of the final steps in a reorganization which is being effected without a foreclosure or receivership. And with these expensive and time consuming luxuries avoided, those connected with the reorganization predict a satisfactory conclusion to the refinancing. Incidentally, both owners and bondholders seem to be given a break.

D. AVERY KIMBARK [Walinger Photo.]

This reorganization has several interesting points which it might be well for some of our other so-called protective committees to imitate. For instance, this bondholders' protective committee is doing more than merely "protecting" the bondholder—it's cooperating with him. This spirit of cooperation already has brought results in the shape of a 100 per cent deposit of bonds by the bondholders. Every bond has been turned in. And that's a situation most bondholders' protective committees hope and pray for—and seldom attain.

Bondowner Heads Corporation.

The Chicago Oaks Building corporation, which yesterday took title to the property for the bondholders, actually has for its president one of the principal bondholders in the property, Dr. Vaughn L. Sheets, who has his office at 55 East Washington street in Chicago, and who lives at 2828 Pine Grove avenue. The property was conveyed by the original mortgagors, Bernard L. and Marie A. Waindle.

The bondholders' protective committee is headed by Robert C. Senner. The other members are: D. Avery Kimbark, John T. Pain, Arthur C. Leebrick, and L. T. Kelly. Martin T. O'Brien is secretary.

According to Mr. O'Brien, the property, which is 103x150 and is improved with a three story building containing six stores, twenty-nine flats, and seven garages, will continue under the management of the George M. Hemingway organization of Oak Park for the new corporation. The mortgagors have an option to repurchase the stock within four and a half years at par plus any obligations that may have been incurred by the corporation.

Mr. O'Brien states that there is only one store vacant and only three or four of the twenty-nine suites are untenanted. He adds that the building was erected in 1926 and was financed by a $135,000 first mortgage real estate bond issue at 6½ per cent, underwritten by the Reliance Bank and Trust company. Since that time the original issue has been reduced to $105,000. Default in interest payments occurred a year ago. Kirkland, Fleming, Green & Martin are attorneys for the bondholders' committee.

AMERICAN STEEL FOUNDRIES HAS ITS WORST YEAR

The directors of the American Steel Foundries company reported for 1931 a net loss of $791,373.55 carried to earned surplus account. A net profit of $140,079.21 was reported for the first half of the year, so that the entire loss results from the operations of the last half of the year. At no time in the history of the company—or that of its subsidiary, Griffin Wheel company—has the rate of operations been lower. The freight cars ordered by the railroads during the year were 10,880, as compared with 46,360 ordered during the previous year and with an average for the ten years ending Dec. 31, 1930, of 88,233.

The total tonnage shipped by the American Steel Foundries was 243,894 tons, compared with 403,437 tons for 1930.

Dividends of 7 per cent on the preferred stock and $1.25 per share (75 cents for the first quarter and 25 cents each for the second and third quarters) on the common stock were declared and paid for the year. Dividends on the common stock were discontinued after the third quarter.

The operations of the General Steel Castings corporation, in which the company has a substantial interest, resulted in a loss for the year, as did the operations of most other companies engaged in the railway equipment business.

The business of the American Steel Foundries proper, as well as that of the General Steel Castings corporation, is largely dependent upon the purchase of new equipment by the railroads—only a small part is repair business, while the business of the almost wholly owned subsidiary, the Griffin Wheel company, consists principally of wheels used for repair purposes.

SUGAR.

NEW YORK, March 3.—(AP)—SUGAR—Raw was unchanged today, with local refiners not inclined to pay above 2.85c, while holders were asking fractionally higher. No sales were definitely reported, although it was rumored that 30,000 bags of Cuba sold to an operator for prompt shipment at 2.90c. Early steadiness in futures, which carried prices 2 to 3 points above the previous close was followed by reactions, with the market closing nominally 3 points higher for the spot month but 2 to 3 lower for other positions. Approximate sales, 13,250 tons. Prices follow:

	Open.	High.	Low.	Close.	Prev. close.
May	.94	.95	.90	.90	.93
July	1.00	1.02	.98	.98	1.00
September	1.07	1.09	1.04	1.04	1.06
December	1.13	1.15	1.10	1.10	1.12
January	1.16	1.16	1.11	1.11	1.14
March '33	1.21	1.21	1.16	1.16	1.19

Business in refined sugar continued of a hand to mouth character and prices were unchanged at 4.15c for fine granulated.

BETTER PRICES FOR COCOA.

Advances ranging from 19 to 24 points in futures and about a third of a cent a pound in the spot cocoa price in February largely were the result of increased buying by manufacturers.

PROFIT TAKING ACTS AS WEIGHT ON STOCK MARKET

In Narrow Groove.

Standard industrial, railroad, and public utility shares generally swung within a narrow groove. American Telephone got some help in the early dealings from its annual report, which settled the matter of dividends for some time ahead but was rather neglected toward the last, with the result that it wound up showing a net loss of a point from the previous close. United States Steel lost a fraction and American Can gained one. Consolidated Gas finished behind a minus sign, but Eastman Kodak moved ahead a small fraction. And so it went throughout the list.

Most of the rails and utilities were slightly worse off when the clock came to their relief this afternoon. Amusement shares held firm as a group and so did the chemicals, but the coppers and oils could do nothing at all.

Warren Pipe Declines.

Individual performances were almost as devoid of interest. Warren Pipe declined 2 points on the first sale since the dividend omission yesterday and McKesson & Robbins preferred took a tumble of nearly 9 points to a new low. Peoples Gas made another new low on a decline of some 3 points, about half of which it later recovered. Bohn Aluminum broke 2½ points on dividend passing. On the other hand Shell Union preferred was able to negotiate a 3 point gain, rising to a new high. Hahn Department Stores preferred held moderately steady on its dividend cut which had been discounted, since the shares were showing an apparent yield of more than 40 per cent.

Auburn dropped more than 6 points in trading which hit a lively pace at times.

General Electric was closely watched for a clue to the dividend action to be taken by the corporation's board tomorrow. The stock ranged higher most of the time, but finished fractionally lower. Rumors have been going the rounds that a cut was in prospect. Since the last split-up in January, 1930, a $1.60 rate has been in force, but earnings last year are understood to have fallen short of such requirements. The street looks for some downward adjustment in the rate.

HAHN DEPARTMENT STORES OMIT DIVIDEND ON PREFERRED STOCK

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, March 3.—Directors of Hahn Department Stores have omitted the quarterly dividend of $1.62½ a share due on the 6½ per cent preferred stock at this time. The company stated: "This action was in accordance with all steps taken by the company to conserve its present satisfactory financial condition."

The Twin City Rapid Transit company omitted the quarterly dividend of $1.75 on the cumulative preferred due at this time.

The Bohn Aluminum and Brass company deferred action on the dividend due at this time. Previously dividends of 37½ cents were paid quarterly. The company had net profit of $295,333 last year, equal to 84 cents a share, against $724,359, or $2.05 a share, in 1930.

The Finance Company of Pennsylvania declared a quarterly dividend of $3, placing the stock on a $12 annual basis, against $16 previously.

Directors of National Tea company declared a quarterly dividend of 15 cents a share on the common stock, placing the stock on a 60 cents annual basis, compared with $1 paid previously.

Estimated receipts at Chicago today: Cattle, 1,500; hogs, 18,000; sheep, 11,000.

Hogs moved forward again yesterday in a comparatively quiet yet healthy market, which finished at the highest point of the session. Prevailing quotations are highest since Jan. 7, within 10@15c of the highest spot of the year and 40@50c above the 32½ year low spot established about the middle of last month.

The extreme top and the general average price moved up 10c to $4.50 and $4.25 respectively. At the low time this winter, on Feb. 8, the extreme top was down to $4.10, and the general average that day figured $3.75. Since prices started upward receipts have been falling off. Some are scouting the theory that hogs are in stronger hands.

Yesterday's arrivals were smallest of all at 16,000. Only one Thursday has had such small receipts since last July. Thursday totals during recent weeks have been running between 30,000 and 40,000. This week's total is expected to land around 121,000, the smallest since the week ending Sept. 26.

The last six weekly totals at Chicago averaged 188,000. The six preceding weeks averaged 205,000.

Buyers were bidding $4.50 for light weights for today's delivery on the "to arrive" market yesterday. Quotations in future months were unchanged. September contracts were offered at $6.00 and carried bids of $5.50. May and July hogs were bid $5.00, with the former offered at $5.35. March light were bid $4.50.

Cattle Prices Hard Hit.

The cattle trade was treated to an unpleasant surprise yesterday when buyers swung around unexpectedly and knocked the props from under prices. The crash was not as bad as buyers had expected, but the stagnant condition of the trade on the way down to a 25@50c lower close was more discouraging to the selling side than the reaction of prices. Sellers hopes had been buoyed by the slow, steady climb made by prices since the recent low spot. All of the gain was erased yesterday. Poorer grades of steers were hard hit on the break, load after load of 700@900 lb averages going at $4.75@5.00. Those at the outside figure carried a good "kill," while some good fleshy steers were sold at $5.50@6.00. Only a small share of total arrivals went over the $7.00 line, the extreme top stopping at $8.00 for 1,333 lb steers. There was some action in butcher stock on shipping account early, but all classes of cows and heifers shared in the decline when larger houses refused to follow order buyers later. Calves recovered 25@50c of the recent loss. Stockers and feeders were slow and steady.

Lambs Also Drop Back.

The edge was off in lambs, too, and prices receded 25@35c after a deadlock of several hours had ended. Buyers and sellers came to grips over prices, and although the selling side was finally forced to grant concessions in order to move the supply on very late afternoon rounds the undertone to the market was not considered very weak. Packers are determined to hold lamb prices in check until pork and beef work in line. Supplies are running abnormally low for March.

COTTON EASES AFTER BULGE

Cotton was firm at the start with prices advancing slightly to a new high on the current movement due to trade and foreign buying. There was selling by the south and the co-operatives early, and later local and commission house pressure developed and the close was about 5@6 points with net losses of 5@6 points in Chicago, 7@8 points in New Orleans and 7@9 points in New York. At the top May in Chicago sold at 7.28c, equalling the outside figure last August. Spots were 5@10 points lower with New York, 7.10c; New Orleans, 6.95c; Galveston, 6.80c, and Houston, 6.85c. BEARISH FEELING ARISES IN WHEAT PIT; PRICES DROP

Cables Forecast a Better Foreign Demand.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Optimistic views of the trend of the wheat market in the immediate future expressed by traders at the opening yesterday were replaced by a bearish feeling when an opening advance of ⅛@¾c on the active futures failed to hold, due largely to scattered selling on resting orders around 62c for May. This not only checked the advance but put sufficient grain into the pit to prevent any demonstration of consequence on the bull side later. Prices gradually receded and the close was at the bottom, with net losses of ¼@½c.

March wheat finished at 57⅝c; May at 61⅛@61¼c, while July was 62¾@62⅞c, and September 64⅛c.

There was a noticeable lack of speculative interest in the wheat market the greater part of the day, with the day's range ⅞@1c.

Foreign News Bullish.

There was sufficient bullish news in circulation during the day to have caused a fairly liberal advance, according to some observers. Liverpool was sharply higher early, but reacted toward the last and closed only ⅛c per bu higher, with May at 59¾c, going to 2⅛c under the same future in Chicago, while July at 61⅞c was at 1⅝c discount. Selling in Liverpool was based on the forecast for exports of 6,248,000 bu from Argentina for the week, compared with 4,311,000 bu last year.

With the exception of the prospective heavy clearances from Argentina the news from abroad was generally favorable. Cables continue to forecast a better continental demand for cash wheat, but this was not in evidence yesterday and sales of only 300,000 bu Manitobas were claimed in all positions. Winnipeg, however, was relatively firmer than Chicago throughout the day and closed unchanged, with May at 67c in Canadian funds. The latter were at 11¼ per cent discount. Buenos Aires was somewhat firmer early.

Introduction of a bill into the senate to prevent sales of farm board wheat at less than 81c per bu for No. 2 hard attracted some attention. There was buying of wheat at Winnipeg during the day against sales here.

Forecast for colder weather over the winter wheat belt was offset by prospects of an old fashioned blizzard developing in parts of Nebraska and Kansas and rain or snow was expected in other sections in the west.

Corn Futures Unsettled.

Country offerings of corn to arrive dropped almost to the vanishing point yesterday, with only 5,000 bu reported as purchased by local handlers. This was in such striking contrast with the large amounts offered the previous week and had some effect on futures. The latter, while dull, showed a relatively firm undertone and closed ⅝c higher to ¼c lower, with March leading the advance. The latter finished at 36¼c, while May was 39⅞c, July 42½c, and September 43⅛@43⅝c.

Trade in futures was largely of a local character, with no leadership apparent on either side. Argentine exports of corn for the week were estimated at 4,409,000 bu, against 4,390,000 bu last year. Firmness in the Buenos Aires market early attracted little attention.

Oats Close Unchanged.

Oats were firm early on buying by commission houses, some of which was regarded as for foreign account, but the market reacted later and closed unchanged to ½c higher, the latter on March, which finished at 22½c. May was 24⅝@24¾c, and July 25⅝c at the last. Shipping demand was the best in some time, with sales of 66,000 bu.

Bullish sentiment was again in evidence in rye, but the exports of 1,504,000 bu from Russia the last week led to profit taking and a reaction. Closing trades were ⅛@¼c lower, with May at 47¾c and July 50¼c. Export sales of 100,000 bu were claimed at the seaboard on Wednesday.

PROVISIONS LOWER

Lard was slightly higher at the start but hedging pressure appeared and the market reacted, the late easiness in wheat having some effect. The close was at net losses of 2½@5c. Bellies were dull, but a little selling appeared and prices were off 15@20c at the last. Movement of hogs in the west remains small with the movement below that of a week ago and a year ago. Prices at the yards were 10@20c higher and at the best figures since early in January. This had little effect on cured product, however. Deliveries on March contracts aggregated 100,000 lbs lard. Prices follow:

LEAD DEMAND INCREASES.

A somewhat better demand for refined lead has followed the recent price reduction of ¼c a pound, it is reported in trade quarters.

GENERAL FOODS NET EARNINGS DROP DURING 1931

But Working Capital Shows Increase.

Net earnings of General Foods corporation and subsidiary companies for the year ended Dec. 21, 1931, amounted to $18,153,719, according to the annual report of the company made public by C. M. Chester Jr., president, yesterday.

This is equivalent to $3.44 per share on 5,275,667 shares of common stock outstanding, there being no bonds or preferred stock. This compares with 1930 earnings of $19,085,595, or $3.63 per share on 5,256,843 shares outstanding at that time. Earnings for 1931 show a decrease of 4.88 per cent from 1930.

Working Capital Larger.

The balance sheet shows that working capital at the end of 1931 was $30,382,187 compared with $27,677,875 at the end of 1930. The 1931 statement shows provision for depreciation totaling $2,320,865 compared with $2,142,727 for the year previous.

"A reserve of $1,303,434 has been set up to reflect Dec. 31, 1931, market values of investments in securities," Mr. Chester commented on the report. "Losses on foreign exchange actually incurred during 1931 have been charged to expenses during the year, and a reserve of $538,052 has been created from surplus to cover current assets and liabilities held in foreign countries to reflect Dec. 31, 1931, rates of exchange. However, any losses in this direction will be expensed if and when incurred, and the reserve returned to surplus.

"The company's profit and loss statement reflects the company's proportionate share in results of operations of Frosted Foods Company, Inc.

Below Market Values.

"While inventory values are stated at cost or market value, which ever is lower, in most instances the values shown are below market. Inventories for 1931 are valued at $15,820,292, compared with $17,702,875 for 1930.

"Notes payable have not appeared in the General Foods balance sheet for several years. Their recurrence at this time is a result of acquiring complete ownership of Frosted Foods Company, Inc., and the inclusion of its assets and liabilities. 'Notes payable to banks'—$125,000—are current. 'Notes payable'—$1,711,625.23—will not mature until March 1, 1933, and are convertible into preferred stock of Frosted Foods Company, Inc., at General Foods' option."

A net gain of 10,000 new stockholders of the company was shown during the year, bringing the total to more than 52,000. Of this number nearly half are women. In slightly over two years the total number of stockholders has doubled. During 1931 the company made dividend disbursements of $15,767,147, comparing with $15,581,422, in 1930 and $14,878,230 in 1929.

Paul H. Davis Elected Director of Peerless Motor

New York, March 3.—(AP)—Paul H. Davis, president of the Chicago Stock exchange, was elected to the board of directors of the Peerless Motor Car corporation at the annual stockholders' meeting in Richmond, Va. Stockholders ratified the previous action of the board in extending to stockholders an offer by the corporation to purchase stock at $3.50 a share, and extended the offer from Feb. 20 to

EGG FUTURES HIGHER

Fair gains were recorded in egg futures on the Chicago Mercantile exchange yesterday, closing prices being ½@½c higher. Butter futures lost an early advance and closed ½@¾c lower. A somewhat improved tone in the egg market brought in better buying, short covering and new support both appearing. The storage figures were rather neutral, there being 300 cases more stored in the four markets than on the same date last year. This failed to influence sentiment materially, although buyers operated cautiously. Butter news was slightly bearish, the slight improvement in storage news being offset by another production report. Sales: Butter, 57 cars; eggs, 58 cars. Deliveries: Eggs, 7 cars. Prices follow:

Commonwealth Customers—Pay LESS-for-LOANS

$2.93 is the average Monthly Cost of a $225 loan under COMMONWEALTH'S Reduced Rate. This allows 25 months for repayment. There is no lower cost than this in Chicago.

COMMONWEALTH'S rate on amounts above $100 is substantially lower than the lawful rate usually charged.

THE personal property which nearly every family owns and the signatures of husband and wife enable one to secure any amount up to $300 quickly and easily.

NO FEES. You get full amount of the loan and up to 25 months to repay. Interest at the Reduced Rate is charged only while you keep the money.

Also Salary and Auto Loans.

Why pay more than
HOUSEHOLD'S LOW RATE on loans? . . . .

Household loans, $300 or less, to families at reasonable rates. Rate on loans above $100 almost one-third lower than maximum permitted by small loan law.

For example, average monthly cost of $200 repaid in 20 equal monthly payments is $2.63—the lowest in Chicago.

Strictly confidential. Husband and wife only need sign. No endorsers. Quick service. Twenty months to repay.
